WORLD OBSERVES CHRISTMAS EVE

President Lights Nation's Yule Tree; 3,000 Pilgrims Gather At Jerusalem

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Festive parties and religious observances marked Christmas Eve from the newest nations of Africa to Europe, America and Asia.

African carol singers in flowered costumes paraded the streets of Lagos, Nigeria, in 91-degree temperatures and 90-degree humidity, celebrating their first Christmas Eve as an independent nation.

Near-zero temperatures, laced with blizzards, gripped the Northeastern United States from the Upper Mississippi Valley to the seaboard.

President Eisenhower, lighting the nation's Christmas tree in Washington last night, expressed gratefulness "for all the material comforts with which we have been blessed." But he urged the nation to look seriously at its imperfections — racial prejudices and apathy toward violations of law and standards of public and private integrity.

NO MAN'S LAND

Pilgrims from far corners of the world in unprecedented numbers made the devout trek to the manger scene in Bethlehem. About 3,000 of them passed through Jerusalem's Mandelbaum Gate and the no man's land between Israel and Jordan.

Most European countries closed out one of the most prosperous Christmas sprees in history. Britain reported Christmas spending up 25 per cent over last year. Shopkeepers in Italy said they were running out of sable, mink and chinchilla.

OLIVE DRAB SANTA

In Korea, the Army is serving up 32 tons of turkey, plus trimmings. Many units will be visited by a Santa in a jeep with an olive drab duffle bag.

Three American prisoners were likely to have an austere Christmas in Soviet prisons. They are Francis Gary Powers of Pound, Va., pilot of the U-2 reconnaissance plane downed last May 1, and Capt. Freeman B. Olmstead of Elmira, N.Y., and Capt. John R. McCone of Topeka, Kan., among those aboard an RB47 reconnaissance bomber shot down over the Barents Sea July 1.

BEHIND CURTAIN

Communist regimes behind the Iron Curtain took varied ways of dealing with this year's Christmas. In some, such as Romania, Bulgaria and Albania, the Communists have tried to purge the old customs of Christmas Eve and turned Christmas into a regular work day.

In others, such as Poland, Hungary and Czechoslovakia, the authorities have decided to tolerate Christmas, permitting trees and midnight church services.

Radio Free Europe announced it will carry several hours of Christmas broadcasts daily during the holiday season to Eastern Europe.

BULLETIN

A Christmas Eve house fire gutted the attic at the home of George A. Ballantyne, 320 Laurel Place, San Rafael, this afternoon.

"The attic just went up in flames," said Ballantyne. "I don't know what started it." The family was routed out of the home, but no one was reported hurt.

Dark smoke poured over the city and attracted hundreds of spectators.

Accidents Mar Yule Weekend

COMBINED AP & UPI

Traffic deaths across the country inched upwards today as the long Christmas holiday weekend got under way.

At least 10 persons were killed in California highway accidents, including one in Marin.

Icy or snow-packed highways were reported in many parts of the country. The National Safety Council issued a reminder that speeding and drinking have been foremost factors in Christmas holiday traffic fatalities in past years. The council estimated 510 persons may be killed on the highways this year.

By 2 p.m. today, 111 had been listed as dead in traffic accidents; 15 died in fires, and 14 others died in other accidents.

In brief some of the holiday tragedies involved:

Two dead in Boston explosions and fires.

A five-car crash on a fog-shrouded Oregon highway killed two.

At Flint, Mich., Donald J. Seymour, 39, was killed when his car hit a tree near his home. He leaves a pregnant wife and nine children.

Driver Of Stalled Bus Dies

A Mill Valley soldier was being held today on charges of felony hit-and-run driving and manslaughter after a Greyhound bus driver was struck and killed last night on Highway 101 south of the Richardson Bay Bridge.

The victim was Julius Nabers, 57, of 219 Los Gallinas Drive, Rafael Meadows, north of San Rafael.

He was struck down at 5:25 p.m. while standing alongside his stalled bus while his passengers looked on in horror.

Daughter Of Kents Hurt In Car Wreck

Molly Kent, 24-year-old daughter of State Democratic Central Committee chairman Roger E. Kent, was reported in good condition today in Marin General Hospital following an accident last night in which her face went through the windshield of her car.

According to the California Highway Patrol, Miss Kent's car ran broadside into a car driven by James Mark Lindsey, 16, Redwood High School junior of 165 Via Lerida in Greenbrae.

The accident happened on Bon Air Road at the entrance to Marin General Hospital where both drivers were taken following the crash.

Young Lindsey, who was pulling into the driveway of the hospital where he was to sing Christmas carols with a group of students, was treated for an injured wrist and released.

Miss Kent was taken from the car by Albert Carpenter, 35, a surgery nurse, at work when he heard the crash.

Miss Kent was treated for deep lacerations of the face, hospital attendants said.

She was home from her studies at New York University to visit her family for the holidays.

In another accident Edward James Mahoney III, 17 of Ross, received back injuries when the car in which he was riding rolled over last night on Kent Avenue in Kentfield.

Driver of the car was Andrew William McFarlane Campbell, 20. He told the California Highway Patrol his car skidded when he applied the brakes. Mahoney's condition at Marin General Hospital today was described as "good."

Quiet Worship Planned At Marin's Churches

Tonight — Christmas Eve — many Marin residents, along with Christians throughout the world, will put aside hectic seasonal activities to quietly worship God in their respective churches, or as a family at home.

Some Marinites will spend the evening caroling, and then later along with others, attend candle-light services or Masses at midnight.

Tomorrow worship services will also be held in sanctuaries throughout the county in honor of the birth of Jesus in Bethlehem almost two millenniums ago.

At many services a profound and beautiful expressions of the significance of Christmas will be read. It is in the stanza of a poem in the ninth chapter of the Book of Isaiah, here in modern translation and verse form:

For unto us a child is born,
Unto us a son is given,
And His name is called—
Wonderful Counsellor,
Mighty God,
A Father Forever,
Prince of Peace.

A story on Marin church services is on pages 4 and 5.

Two Perish, 12 Injured In Two Boston Blasts

BOSTON (UPI) — The Charlestown waterfront area was shaken "like a big rocking boat" by two shattering explosions early today. Two persons were killed and 12 injured, five seriously.

"If this had happened an hour later we'd have had 200 dead instead of two," said a policeman at the scene.

The thundering twin blasts, believed caused by a gas leak, destroyed the newly reconstructed Diamond Nugget Cafe and the adjacent Purity Ice Cream Cone Co. and shattered windows for 100 yards in all directions. A three alarm fire flared out of control for nearly three hours in the debris.

The explosions came when the city square area of Charlestown was nearly deserted. Only a handful of persons including sailors from the nearby Charlestown Navy Yard and longshoremen were on the streets.

An hour later under ordinary circumstances on the day before Christmas, several hundred persons would have occupied the buildings hit by the blasts.

One of the victims was Benjamin Siegal, 42, owner of the cafe. Frederick Lyman, 16, one of three youths delivering oil in cans to apartments in the area, also was killed.

Boston police first described the blasts as a "major disaster," and based an estimate of four dead on apparently lifeless bodies picked up in the streets by firemen. Two of the bodies proved to be persons critically injured with severe burns.

Boy, 10 Burned Grabbing Wire

Steve Yates, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Yates of 614 Glenwood Avenue, Mill Valley, will be able to spend Christmas with his parents, but he will have to return to the hospital to undergo skin grafts to his left hand.

Yates grabbed an electric wire while climbing a tree at 603 Glenwood Avenue yesterday. He was thrown some 20 feet to the pavement.

He was admitted to the Marin General Hospital with burns on his left hand, and a slight concussion.

Holiday Spotlight On The Debutantes

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

The holiday spotlight is on the young women who will make their formal bow to society at the Cotillion at the Sheraton-Palace on Tuesday night. These weeks have been filled with balls and parties for the debutantes. One of the most spectacular and gayest of these events was the reception on Tuesday night given by Mr. and Mrs. William Kent Jr. for their grandniece, Evelyn Thacher (Lyn) Bossange at the Bohemian Club. It was like old home week with Lyn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edouard Bossange (Evelyn Arnold) of Syoset R.I. here for the event. Until they moved east last year the Bossanges lived in Kentfield, named for the family which included Lyn's grandmother, the late Mrs. G. Stanleigh Arnold (Elizabeth Kent) and her great grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. William Kent.

The pretty curly haired deb wore an American beauty peau de soie dress and carried a small bouquet of roses and carnations. Mrs. Kent's gown was a beige and gold brocade. Mrs. Bossange's royal blue dress was full skirted. With the hosts and her parents, Lyn received guests in the Red Room in front of white columns. The huge iced tree in the Owl Room held the gift orchids. The orchestra played for the dancers in the Art Gallery. It was certainly a three generation party with grandsons taking a whirl around the floor with their grandmothers. Among those pouring coffee (champagne and cocktails were also served) were relatives and close friends including Mesdames Thomas A. Thacher, Nichols Clark, A. Crawford Greene John Kittle, Benjamin Dibblee, Herbert O'Brien, John Cushing, Thomas T. Kent, Roger Kent, G. Stanleigh Arnold Jr., Peter Arnold and George Wolff.

Lyn's escort at the Cotillion will be Daniel Abbot, who is a member of another old and prominent Marin family. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Leonard Abbott (nee Foster) of Diablo.

AN EXTENDED VISIT in the East has been made by Mrs. Norman B. Livermore of Ross. She went to New York more than a month ago and remained over to celebrate the seventy-fifth birthday of her sister, Mrs. Clifford Mallory of New York City and Connecticut.

CHRISTMAS AT SEA is being enjoyed by Sandra Sommers, who, accompanied by her parents Capt. and Mrs. K. J. Sommers of Belvedere, is spending her vacation on the Mormaemar, which is heading north for Canada. Sandra is waiting Santa's arrival, via the smoke stack. FROM LAUSANNE, Switzerland, I received a holiday greeting card, showing the cathedral and street scenes, from Zora and Dan Sweeney Jr. of Greenbrae. They are spending the holidays at Zermatt near the Matterhorn and enjoying skiing. The family will return home in the spring.

TO INFORM friends of their change of address the Fred Figones state on their Christmas card "We've made our move" and give the address of the home they have just completed as 137 Oak Avenue, San Anselmo.

VISITING Mrs. M. Galloway Ferrin at her Kent Woodlands home are her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Galloway of Evanston, Ill., who arrived last Saturday for a weeks' visit. Tonight Mrs. Ferrin is entertaining at a Mexican Christmas Eve party complete with a pinata and Mexican food. In addition to her parents, Mrs. Ferrin will entertain Mrs. Alyce Reyburn and her three children, also Mr. and Mrs. James Lysle, Dr. Margaret Maroney, Mrs. Juliet Vennard and Dr. Gordon Knowles.

IN HAWAII for the holidays are the Joseph Hickingbothams Jr. and their daughter Heidi, who are headquartering at the Halekulani in Honolulu. Diana and her daughter went over first and Joe flew to Honolulu today. From Hawaii, the family will fly to Tahiti and will be back in San Rafael in about a month.

The Joseph Hickinbothams III (Catherine Moretti) are back in Marin and have a new home and are awaiting the birth of their baby in January. Since their marriage a year ago Joe and Catherine have been living in Glendale, Ore. (near Grant's Pass) where Joe was associated with the Robert Dollar Co. He has been transferred to the San Francisco office and he and his wife have bought and moved into the Sydney Dorn home on Coleman Drive, San Rafael. The Dorns have taken an apartment in Marina Landings on the San Rafael Canal until they find another place to buy.

IN LOCH LOMOND, the Arthur Sauters hosted a large cocktail party on Sunday.

Marin Women

Couturier Collection Captivates Audience

The John Cavin Couturier collection completely captivated the Thursday audience at the Ondine who filled every nook and corner to watch "Fashions With View."

They forgot unwrapped packages, unmailed cards and their list of things-to-do, preferring to look, eye and long for each Cavin creation and to give tremendous applause to John Cavin as the "guest with a viewpoint."

They welcomed the designer and his family to their first Christmas in Marin after a move of bag, baggage, workshop and studio from Beverly Hills.

Now John Cavin, Ltd., will be located in the Industrial Center Building of Sausalito. There, Mr. Cavin will design and make his fashionable originals bringing great distinction to Marin with his tremendous talent, impeccable craftsmanship and superb styling. A number of the Cavin designs are copied to be sold to the most select shops in the country.

Opulent, exquisite fabrics characterize the Cavin collection, many fabrics were woven in India to the designer's specifications. Simple, uncluttered lines and pure genius treatment of the fabric, plus a harmony of color make every Cavin creation impossible to forget.

Christmas standouts from the Cavin collection were: "The Season's Ensemble," a subtle silk beau monde town sheath, collarless and sleeved highlighted by a long sleeveless tunich of tussah silk woven in India; Mrs. William Byron Wallace accenting it with a high hat of nut brown maline. "The Cape," a reversible interplay of citron and tangerine silk bound in black, striking over a citron sheath dramatically emphasized by Jane Mapes. "The Sari," pure gold in an intricate, lacy pattern edging the black silk sari from neckline to hem; the dress strapless and beautiful in the matching black and gold; Mrs. John Bellamy Jr. showed it. "The Ting A Ling," jingle bells on a shocking pink purple and cerise plaid silk tunic to ride over lavender at-home-tapers, Mrs. William Donohoe, the Christmas accent.

No Decision Yet On Post, Democrat Says

Mrs. Elizabeth Smith of Kentfield, appointed United States treasurer last week, said today that she does "not indefinitely" plan on retaining her post as California's Democratic national committeewoman.

Mrs. Smith, who will leave Marin Jan. 15 for the East coast, noted that she "will be busy enough" with her new duties but added, "I expect to come back to California frequently until June."

She said that she has been too busy this week to give the matter much thought.

Her replacement as national committeewoman must be voted on by the executive committee of the Democratic State Central Committee, Mrs. Smith said. This body is not slated to meet until around the third weekend in March.

When asked if she planned to hand in her resignation, she answered that she had not made a decision and that it was "not the most pressing matter at the moment."

Mrs. Smith expects to be sworn in as treasurer of the United States Jan. 20 in Washington, D.C.

She resides at 21 Rancheria Road, Kentfield.

Three women have been mentioned as possible successors to Mrs. Smith. They are: Nancy Swadesh of Mill Valley, State Central Committee member; Martha Jane Morrison of San Francisco, women's vice chairman for Northern California; and Eleanor Heller of Atherton, former national committeewoman.

Nasser Warning

CAIRO (AP) — President Gamel Abdel Nasser has threatened Israel with a shooting war if it starts construction of an atomic bomb.

The United Arab Republic leader warned that "it means the beginning of war between us" if Israel's new atomic reactor in the Negev desert is used to build a nuclear weapon. He declared the U.A.R. would attack the "base of aggression."

Nasser spoke for two hours last night before cheering crowds commemorating the British and French troop withdrawal after the Suez war in 1956.

Ike Orders Pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the closing days of his administration, President Eisenhower has taken a strong stand on refusing to turn over documents demanded by a House subcommittee investigating foreign aid.

The president acted on a provision Congress wrote into the act that created the inspector general's office in the State Department.

The provision said that all funds for the office would be stopped if the office refused to turn over documents requested by Congress.

Eisenhower said yesterday that to turn over the documents would be an invasion of executive privilege. He ordered the Treasury to write checks to cover the pay of the employes.

Laos Talks Refused

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States says bluntly it never will agree to a Russian proposal for a new Geneva conference to end the civil war in Laos as long as the Soviet Union gives arms to pro-Communist rebels.

This country charged Russia with a "double violation" of the 1954 Indochina war armistice—first by sending weapons to Red forces in Laos and second by airlifting them in through North Viet Nam.

The U.S. position was spelled out yesterday.

The U.S., which is sending military aid to the pro-Western forces in Laos, reacted with almost unprecedented speed to the Soviet proposal for a new Geneva conference, made in a note to Britain.

BARNESVILLE, Ohio (UPI) — The J.C. Penney department store was thronged with Christmas shoppers last night when fire broke out in the basement and gutted the interior of the two-story brick building.

Before being brought under control the blaze caused damage estimated unofficially at half a million dollars to the store, its contents, and two adjacent buildings. None of the shoppers were reported injured as they hurriedly evacuated the store.

Traffic Jam

BLYTHE (Riverside County) (UPI)—Destruction by fire of a bridge on U.S. 60-70 last night caused a massive traffic jam involving up to 1,000 vehicles, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Officers said westbound traffic alone was backed up 1½ miles and motorists traveling between Los Angeles and Phoenix, Ariz., were rerouted at Desert Center.

The fire, of undetermined origin, destroyed a bridge 37 miles west of here.

Adm. Hughes died yesterday of a heart attack while being examined in the Norfolk Naval Station dispensary for a sudden illness.

Plane Slips, None Hurt

Weather Warmer

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A bitter cold wave that plunged temperatures to record lows yesterday gave way to more seasonable weather today including more snow for broad areas of the Midwest eastward into the Northeast.

The frigid temperatures moderated gradually during the night.

The warm front and accompanying cloud cover responsible for the rising temperatures behind the cold wave also brought snow to Kentucky and Tennessee northward into the Great Lakes region and northwest to Minnesota and the Dakotas.

Temperatures climbed to the 40s and 50s in southern Texas and southern Florida.

No Paychecks

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — New Orleans teachers planned a mass meeting today after the school integration hassle prevented some 5,500 of them from receiving their December paychecks.

The local unit of the Louisiana Teachers Association called the meeting to discuss "the teacher pay issue." There were rumors of a teachers walkout after the Christmas holiday if salaries are not paid.

No Negligence Seen

NEW YORK (AP) — The deadly, disastrous fire on the aircraft carrier Constellation was the result of an unforeseeable chain of circumstances and not caused by general negligence or by an individual, says the commandant of the Brooklyn Navy yard.

The fire took 49 lives and did an estimated total of $75 million damage.

Rear Adm. Schuyler N. Pyne, testifying at the naval court of inquiry into the fire, called the start of the blaze "inconceivable—a chain of circumstances which was inconceivable to foresee."

Hall Riots View

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Judge Albert A. Axelrod, presiding judge of the San Francisco Municipal Court, said today "I very definitely agree" with the view of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover Thursday that the City Hall riot last May 13 was instigated by Communist subversives.

Judge Axelrod said in an interview that his dismissal of riot charges against 62 arrested persons, mostly college students, had been misinterpreted by some people as condoning the disorders during a hearing by the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Marin Judges Given 1961 Assignments

Judge Thomas F. Keating will be presiding judge of Marin Superior Court, and Judge Leonard A. Thomas will preside in Marin Municipal Court for 1961.

In Marin County the presiding judges are chosen on a rotation basis each year.

Judge Keating — pre-trial; Judge Richard M. Sims Jr.— criminal and juvenile calendar; Judge N. Charles Brusatori — probates. All three will also handle the "law and motion" calendar and trials.

In municipal court, Judge Thomas will take traffic court; Judge Harold J. Haley, criminal calendar; and Judge Joseph G. Wilson, civil, small claims, and law and motion. All three will also handle trials.

For January and February, Judge Thomas of municipal court will serve as acting superior court judge to help with the backload of cases in the higher court.

TO TAKE OFFICE FIRST

Kennedy Going Slow On Slump Policies

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy is taking a cautious approach in deciding what the new administration will do about the business slump and unemployment.

He says there will be no decision regarding such controversial steps as tax cuts and pump-priming public works spending nutil after he has taken office Jan. 29.

Kennedy's go-slow policy on the problem was clear today as he slackened his work pace for the Christmas weekend and made ready to enjoy the holiday with his family at their ocean-front home.

Kennedy's only announced engagements during the day are with Rep. Abraham Multer (D-N.Y.), and Peruvian Sen. Juan M. Pena-Prado.

Kennedy headquarters said it had no advance information on the purpose of Multer's visit. He requested the appointment. Pena-Prado is bringing a message from Peru's President Manuel Prado.

The president-elect probably will get in another round of golf in the afternoon and then turn tonight to a traditional and happy assignment of many an American father. He plans to help trim the Christmas tree, assisted by daughter Caroline, 3, and hang stockings at the mantle.

John Fitzgerald Jr., who will be one month old tomorrow is being showered with Christmas presents — toys, dolls, clothes—from all sections of the country.

Kennedy's caution on the business slump and unemployment of more than four million was pointed up as he announced yesterday the appointment of Walter W. Heller, University of Minnesota economist and tax expert, as chairman of his Council of Economic Advisers.

Heller said there has been a business recession the last six months and that the economy has been lagging for 3½ years.

This was Kennedy's answer when asked what he plans to do about what he last week called the lack of vigor in the nation's economy.

"By the end of January," he told his news conference, "we will be able to take a much better judgment as to what the prognosis is for the economy. But I think it would be premature to try to do it now."

During the campaign Kennedy said he favors keeping the federal budget in balance except in times of serious business recession or depression, or in event of a national emergency.

His problem after inauguration will be to decide whether the business dip and unemployment are severe enough to warrant spending more than the government takes in.

Terra Linda Group Pushes For Annex

Proponents of Terra Linda annexation today called on the Dixie School District and the Community Services District not to throw any further stumbling blocks in the path of annexation.

Anton T. Lonich, chairman of the Annexation Committee, issued the statement, as the annexation movement got a new lease on life. The county counsel and the city attorney of San Rafael yesterday disclosed that Dixie School District's protest had failed to stop the proposed annexation proceedings that would bring Terra Linda into San Rafael.

Lonich said:

"Our group is disturbed that the Dixie School District Trustees and the C.S.D. Directors have seen fit to protest the proposed annexation. Obviously they are attempting to perpetuate themselves in power. Their personal desire for political gain and importance has unfortunately overwhelmed their sense of good judgment. By their petty actions and small minded tactics they are endeavoring to frustrate and impede a democratic process."

Two Meetings Scheduled By County Board

Marin County's Board of Supervisors will finish the old year with two meetings during next week instead of the usual one.

The second, tentatively set for Thursday by decision reached after adjournment of the meeting last Tuesday, will convene at an hour to be agreed but probably 9 or 10 a.m.

It is expected to settle the reappointment of or successor to Leland H. Murphy of Inverness as director of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District. His current term will expire Wednesday.

Prospect for a change, considered strong some time ago, is understood to have weakened since the San Francisco supervisors reappointed two directors and gave endorsement of the way the bridge affairs are being handled.

Thursday's meeting will be the last for two supervisors, Mrs. Vera Schultz of Mill Valley who is to be replaced by J. Walter Blair, and James A. Marshall who is to give way to George Ludy as West Marin supervisor. There have been rumors that the two outgoing members have some final business, nature unspecified, to be taken up Thursday.

During the Tuesday morning session the board will complete arrangements for exchange of some Civic Center property with the Smith brothers. This will pave the way to awarding of a contract for excavation and grading at Civic Center and fairgrounds, the low bid of nine having been one of $111,424 by J. W. Richards of Rio Vista, Solano County.

Set for 2 p.m. are 10 planning matter including tentative map of 15-acre Montecito Heights near Novato, development plans for the Marinero planned residential area at Red Hill on Tiburon Peninsula as well as Red Hill Unit No. 1, and rezoning at Dillon's Beach.

Novato Pair Announce Sale Of Market

The Food Fair in Novato will open the new year under new ownership.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jonas announced today they are selling the Food Fair to Mr. and Mrs. Dan Blaga of Novato. The Blagas have been in the grocery business for 18 years.

Jonas will operate a new store at Ignacio, where he will open his second Roger Wilco market. His other market is in Petaluma.

The Blagas will be assisted at the Food Fair by their son, who graduated from Novato High School last summer.

There will be no change in the management at present. Jonas, Dick Walker, Arnold Walker and Kenny Rowland will all retain their managing jobs until they move to Jonas' new store at Ignacio.

Salvation Army Aids Marinites

This week the Salvation Army distributed some 55 food baskets — which included a ham and trimmings for a Christmas dinner — to needy families in Marin County.

This act was part of the Salvation Army's Christmas effort in Marin and a small portion of the organization's world-wide effort, reported Virgil Getchell, representative of the army's Redwood Empire area.

He said that the gesture was "one way of meeting the need at the point of need."

"The reason members of the organization attempt to meet material needs as well as assist people spiritually, is because members of the army themselves are spiritually motivated," said Getchell.

While those in the organization or those who aid it are concerned with the material well being of others, they are also "and perhaps more concerned that others will come to an individual knowledge of God through Jesus Christ," Getchell declared.

The baskets distributed this week were prepared on the basis of the situations revealed in applications received for the help, and it was hoped that the ham and all the trimmings would be enjoyed tomorrow, Christmas Day. Included with the food was the organization's magazine, War Cry.

The Marin Christmas-relief headquarters is temporarily located at 1840 Fourth Street in San Rafael, and the organization's pickup station and Thrift Shop is at 910 Lincoln Avenue in the same city.

Although regular full-time members of the army are in continual contact with the Marin headquarters and efforts locally, the actual workers in the county are all volunteers. In addition to the Christmas giving which also included "Sunshine" baskets for rest homes, hospitals and institutions, the Salvation Army raises money for the rehabilitation of alcoholics and for children's summer camps.

Beverly A. Sill, manager of the Corte Madera office of the First National Bank in San Rafael, is chairman of the county committee, newly organized this summer.

Study Shows Building Costs Have Risen, But Not A Lot

Despite spiraling prices of labor and materials, the actual cost of building a house in Marin today is less than 8 per cent above what it was 10 years ago.

E. Dougas Roberts, manager of the Marin Builders Exchange, has the signed bids to prove it.

Roberts, a man who believes in getting the facts, sets up a comparison test to learn just what had happened to building costs in the last decade.

Today's house is not the same as those built in 1950. It is likely to contain many improvements which add to the cost. So for text purposes, Roberts decided to call for bids on an actual Marin dwelling built a decade ago.

In selecting a home suitable as a "comparison residence," consideration had to be given to the type of dwelling, availability of architectural plans, use of equivalent building materials, topography of the site and other factors which would make the comparison test a fair one. The idea was turned over to a committee consisting of Etienne Rolin. Don Presco and Ernest Schallenberger.

The home selected was that of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Douglass on Loma Avenue, Tiburon, a typical Marin dwelling of some 1,500 square feet, with three bedrooms, two baths and a 380-square-foot carport. It was built on a hillside view lot of approximately one-third of an acre, but the house site had been graded level, thereby offering for all practical purposes a house on a concrete slab foundation on a level lot.

Plans for the home as originally submitted for bids in 1950 were obtained from architect Eugene E. Crawford of San Rafael and the original bids themselves were dug out of the files.

Some modifications of materials specifications had to be made to allow for changes and substitutions now in use—aluminum sash, for example, which is more commonly used today in place of steel sash, but at no increase in cost.

While the Douglasses eventually built the home with some variations from original specifications and subsequently made other improvements, these were not included.

In setting up the test, the Marin Builders Exchange could not foresee the outcome. It was hoped that findings would establish that present day home costs are higher principally by reason of increased lot values. But wage scales, with fringe benefits, in the construction crafts have been hiked considerably over 10 years ago. The average increase in the four basic crafts — electricians, plumbers, carpenters and painters — has been about 74 per cent.

Checking out the cost of materials showed that structural lumber is about the same, redwood rustic has risen about 8 per cent, sheetmetal 31 per cent, reinforcing steel 26 per cent and concrete 31 per cent.

One fact did show up to bear out the thought that the price differential in lot values was considerably more. The original housesite was valued at $5,000; present value was authoritatively set at $18,000—a 260 per cent increase.

Plans and specifications were submitted for bid to Larkins Construction Co., H. S. Meinberger and Son and Charles Hendrickson, with the understanding that the low bidder would agree to build the same house on any level site in Marin County falling under jurisdiction of the county building inspection department, within 30 days.

The three original bids received in 1950 were $24,252, $28,376 and $28,600.

Bids turned in last week by the three contractors named above were $25,954, $30,453 and $31,219. Lowest bid, which was submitted by Larkins Construction Co., was only a fraction over 7 per cent higher than the 1950 low bid. The comparative average of all three bids showed an increase of 7.8 per cent.

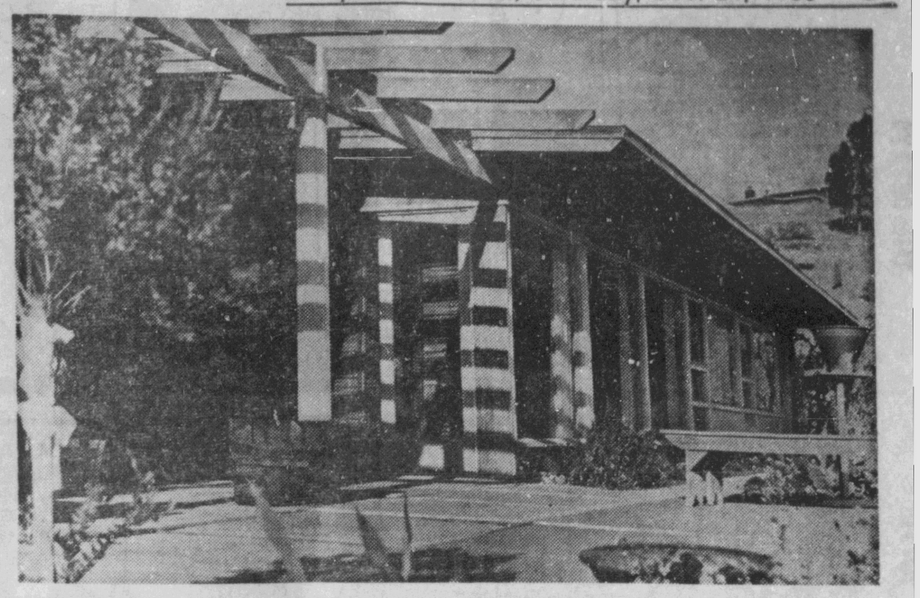
Significance of the comparison test was manyfold. The less than 8 per cent increase in building costs was far better than the Marin Builders Exchange had dared to expect.

The test bore out the exchange's contention that increase in lot values accounts principally for the higher prices of today's homes, and that builders have cut down on their own profits to help equalize the increase.

The Marin Builders Exchange points out, however, that home financing costs have gone up in the last 10 years, also that the tastes of buyers for new architectural designs and improvements are resulting in more expensive houses.

McCarthy To Speak

State Sen. John F. McCarthy (R.-San Rafael) said today that he will offer recommendations to the Golden Gate Bridge directors for the forthcoming legislature when he speaks Thursday at the noon luncheon meeting of the Sausalito Rotary Club at the Alta Mira Hotel.



COMPARISON RESIDENCE—This is the Tiburon house of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Douglass, built in 1950-51 and used in a recent test to determine how much home construction costs have advanced during 10 years.

RADIO ROOM — Tiburon comparison-residence owner H. O. Douglass, a retired Army officer, utilizes one bedroom area with wide window paneling as an all-purpose den and location for his five-watt shortwave radio station W60ZC. He has been a "ham" operator for 24 years; spends many hours transmitting and receiving messages throughout the country and gives calls for the Tiburon Volunteer Fire Department. ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Dec. 24, the 359th day of the year with seven more in 1960. Today is Christmas Eve.

The moon is in its first quarter.

The morning star is Mars.

The evening stars are Mars, Saturn and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1809, American frontiersman, soldier and trapper Christopher (Kit) Carson was born.

In 1814, the War of 1812 ended with the signing of a peace treaty between the U.S. and Great Britain in Ghent, Belgium.

In 1871, Verdi's spectacular opera "Aida" had its world premiere in Cairo, Egypt.

In 1951, Libya was proclaimed a free and independent nation.

A thought for today: British playwright and novelist George Bernard Shaw said: "The test of a man or woman's breeding is how they behave in a quarrel."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden) Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a minus sign (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Lightface type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

Crippled Kids Tackle Hearts Of All-American Stars

Katherine, wearing a cast up to her chin, smiled from her hospital bed at 220-pound Ross Hawkins, center on North Carolina's 1960 football team.

"When the nurse told me I was getting you, I tried to develop a North Carolina accent to surprise you," the 13-year-old girl told the 6-foot-3 athlete who actually hails from Cowan, Tenn.

"But I couldn't. I'm from Oakland."

She got her message across.

So did all the other kids at the Shrine Hospital for crippled children who met yesterday with 48 players from colleges all over the nation. When these stars trot out at Kezar Stadium to play the East-West game Dec. 31 they know now who the proceeds are benefitting.

"I'm from a big family—four brothers, two sisters—and I'm used to seeing them in bed with measles or something," Ron Maltony, Purdue's 210-guard, told another guard, Mark Manders of Iowa.

"But, man, nothing like this."

The hospital, in the interest of rehabilitating the crippled children, asked use of only the first names of the little patients.

Scotty, a 5-year-old with braces on both legs had vowed he would be walking on crutches by the time the players arrived. Hospital nurses doubted he would. But Scotty did.

He made his way bravely up to Bill Kilmer, the sensational UCLA tailback, and bragged:

"They all said I wouldn't be walking, Kilmer, but they were all wrong."

Each child is assigned a player. Scotty explaining somebody had overlooked him, asked "How about . . ." That was as far as he got.

Broke in the 195-pound Azusa, Calif., visitor:

"You've got a quarterback named Kilmer."

Despite being away from home for Christmas for the first time in their young lives, the players didn't seem to mind.

"After that visit to the hospital to see the crippled children for whom we are playing," said All-America end Mike Ditka, of Pitt, "we would do anything for them."

Herb Adderly, a 190-pound halfback from Michigan State, picked up a crippled four-year-old girl and held her in his arms during the visit

"That gives you a funny feeling," he said as he gritted his teeth.

Gail, a freckled-faced girl of nine from Concord, looked over the crop of football players and announced happily:

"When I get a husband, he has to be at least six feet tall."

That made just about every football player in the room eligible except Jim Herbstreit, 5-8, from Ohio State.

If anybody plays their heart out in the Shrine Game it may be Ditka, the Pitt end.

A little lad who was born with arms only six inches long fell madly in love with Mike. Only 3 years old, he refused to leave Mike's side—and even the nurses couldn't tear him away.

Mike held the boy in his arms all during the hospital tour as he talked to other youngsters, reporters and players.

When it came time for parting, the tears in Mike's eyes glistened as much as they did in tiny Dave's.

The players, some accompanied by their wives, spent hours in the wards before bidding a reluctant goodbye. They all left their autographs—and a bit of themselves.

THEIR HERO — Jim Tyrer, Ohio University gridder, took a fancy to Caron, 4, (Center), and Kathy, 12, yesterday when he and other members of the East-West squads visited Shriner's Hospital in San Francisco. The Dec. 31 game's proceeds go to the hospital. (AP Wirephoto)

Desire, Determination Boost Eagles For Playoff Battle

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Desire? Determination? Those are qualities the Philadelphia Eagles have in abundance as they prepare for the National Football League championship game with Green Bay.

Like Chuck Bednarik, 12-year NFL veteran who will be called on by coach Buck Shaw to go the full 60 minutes if needed Monday, as an offensive center and on defense as a linebacker. The 34-year-old veteran says:

"This is a team that needs incentive. If the money and honor is up there, we'll bust somebody to get it." He adds that being rated the underdog is "great. Makes you a little hungrier."

Shaw said that for his Eastern Division champs "there is enough incentive. A lot of these fellows never have been first in anything. I think they'll want to now." For Shaw, in his last season of coaching, there is hope for his first NFL title.

Then there's Billy Barnes. He's heard the comment of many fans that perhaps he's outlived his usefullness to the Eagles. They point to his 2.7 yard average per carry this past season.

Hampered by a leg injury and what generally is acknowledged as a poor blocking line for runners, the former Wake Forest star says that at 25 years of age, "I'm just reaching the prime of life. I'll be playing . . . in the National League for quite a while." Barnes says "I hope I can start proving it against Green Bay Monday."

PAY INCENTIVE

There's the incentive of the money involved—the members of the winning team on Franklin Field will get about $5,000 each. The losers about $4,000.

The title game has gripped these hardened pros with a college player fever.

Bednarik likened the Eagles' attitude to that of the Japanese Kamikaze pilots who dived their planes into targets, giving up their lives.

"We've been yelling that (kamikaze) in workouts. When you have the gang tackling and pursuit, you win in this league. Like those kamikaze pilots, this is our last flight. We've got to hit."

The Packers planned to leave Green Bay by chartered plane today for Philadelphia and hold a brief workout there tomorrow.

They have worked out all week on frozen turf at Green Bay and, according to Coach Vince Lombardi, are "up" for the game. The team is in good condition, he added. A few of his top men have been bothered with minor bruises and injuries, but all are expected to be in shape to play.

Several players who were on Green Bay's 1944 championship team predicted the Packers would win.

Don Hutson, who held the NFL scoring record until Packer Paul Hornung broke it this year said: "I think the Packers have built up a momentum the Eagles do not have. The Packers had to play their season to the end to win, while the Eagles clinched their title early. Once you lose that head of steam, it's hard to build it up again."

Ted Fritsch, former Packer fullback who scored both Green Bay touchdowns in the 14-7 victory over the New York Giants in the 1944 championship game, said the 1960 Packers team is better balanced than the Eagles, "and I don't think they'll have much trouble."

Other members of the 1944 team, Capt. Charlie Brock, halfback Tony Canadeo and lineman Charley Tollefson also predicted a Packer victory.

Review Of 49ers Season Reveals Many Highlights—Glad And Sad

CONNOLLY

Always a bridesmaid but never a bride. That's the life story of the San Francisco 49ers.

Next Monday the Philadelphia Eagles host the Green Bay Packers for the winner's share of the pot and, incidentally, for the pro football championship of the world. The 49ers will be watching on TV, even as you and I.

Our Big Red didn't make the grade, but they left some pleasant memories of the past season and glowing promise for the season to come. Take a look over my shoulder and remember . . .

The sight of number 74, big Henry Schmidt, barrelling down the field on kickoffs and punts, scattering bodies to the right and left and nailing the ball carrier. Who ever watches the ball when this human flying wedge is in action?

R. C. Owens' tremendous touchdown catch that ended with a shoulder injury. Catch the ball and worry about a place to land on the way down. And Muddy Waters' come-through performance that started the Baltimore Colts on a four-game skid. Two for two and the winning touchdown makes a good enough debut.

QUARTERBACK John Brodie's comeback after failing to complete a pass for the first half of the first Packer game. The stuff that makes a pro. And the deadly aim of Abe Woodson's tackles on defense, always at the shoe tops where it drops a man like a log.

Speaking of guttiness, I remember the day John Thomas was hurt. I had my glasses on him as he went down, and when he got up from the pile he looked at his useless wrist and then quickly tucked it under his other hand and went back into the huddle for several more plays before somebody noticed.

MEMORIES OF the old Lion, Nomellini, still clawing his way through foes at an age when most pros have been in the rocking chair for years. At the other end of the age bracket, Dan Colchico making rookie mistakes but learning all the time and ending the season against the Colts with one of the best defensive end plays I have seen for a long, long time.

A few sad memories pop up too. Like . . .

The retirement of end Billy Wilson early in the season after years of being on top. And the season opener against the New York Giants, a tough loser 21 to 19 that didn't seem too important at the time but would have made the big difference at the end of the year. And the mud at Kezar that slid the championship to the Packers.

HAPPIER THOUGHTS again, of the "perfect" game against Papa Halas and his big bad Bears from Chicago. And of the double wins over the Los Angeles Rams and the Colts, enough to make ANY season a success. And Tommy Davis' kicking and improved field goal kicking after a shaky start. The more pressure or the deeper in the end zone, the farther went his boots.

And best of all the way the 49er defensive team bowed its neck all year and came up with the best record in the division. This is more than meets the eye because it must be remembered that the offense put a great burden on the stop 'em boys by giving up the ball too often.

All in all, it was a good season. We want to wish Coach Red Hickey, his staff, and all his players the best at Christmas. And that goes for you fans, too.

Anyway, it will be too cold in Philadelphia next week!

Trippi Mentioned As Possible New Coach At Georgia

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI) — Former football great Charlie Trippi was mentioned today as a possible successor to Wally Butts, who resigned yesterday as head football coach at the University of Georgia.

Trippi presently is backfield coach at Georgia. As a quarterback on some of Butts' greatest teams in the 1940's he gained All-America fame for his unerring passing ability and deceptive speed.

Trippi was voted into the football Hall of Fame in 1959. He captained Georgia's undefeated, untied Sugar Bowl championship team in 1947 and led Georgia to victory in the Rose Bowl in 1943, and the Oil Bowl in 1946. He generally is considered the greatest all-round back in southern football history.

Trippi played for the Chicago Cardinals for almost a decade before returning to Georgia to join Butts' coaching staff.

Butts offered a simple explanation for leaving the head-coaching spot he has held for the past 22 seasons at Georgia.

"I've been a head coach for 32 years," he said. "That's long enough to be in the coaching business."

S.F. May Lose Big Time Golf If Tourney Flops

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Big time golf of the professional variety never has clicked with regularity in San Francisco, but J. Edwin Carter, the PGA tournament bureau manager, wagers it will.

The do or die test comes Jan. 26-29 with the $50,000 San Francisco International Open at Harding Park.

"If this is a flop, we can tear up the contract and forget about it," Carter told Eugene Selvage, president of the sponsoring Lucky Lager Brewery. "Even though it's a three-year contract."

Professional golfer Bob Rosburg of Palo Alto agreed, "Professional golf in San Francisco has not been the success it should have been. Except for the National Open, I don't believe we have had a successful tournament here.

"Professional golfers are dubious about coming to San Francisco," Rosburg declared. "This is the test for all of us."

The San Francisco event, a 72-hole tournament, will be held at Harding Park and follows the $50,000 Bing Crosby pro-amateur at Pebble Beach.

Carter pointed out that golfers have been invited from Japan, the Philippines, Honolulu and Formosa.

"All in all," he said, "this will have perhaps the best international field of any tournament."

San Francisco held the Western Open in 1956, but the gallery turnout proved disappointing. The same was true for the 1958 Golden Gate Open, also held at Harding.

Selvage, who enters the picture for the first time, indicated at a press luncheon yesterday that he doesn't expect miracles in this first year of the International Open.

"Many don't realize the great field that will be here," he said. "It take time to build up a tournament. We won't accept anything but the ultimate goal of success."

Chargers Ponder Move To San Diego

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Barron Hilton, president of the Chargers, says he wants to keep his American Football team in Los Angeles next season. But he's not overlooking San Diego completely.

Hilton disclosed yesterday that he plans to visit San Diego in the near future to investigate the possible move of his AFL franchise there.

Dr. Albert Anderson, chairman of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce major league sports committee, wired Hilton urging him to visit and talk over the situation for 1961.

Huskies Lose Vallejo Star—Appendicitis

LONG BEACH (AP) — Washington's Huskies have suffered the first serious casualty in training for the Jan. 2 Rose Bowl football game.

Joe Jones of Vallejo, the No. 2 fullback on offense, underwent surgery for appendicitis yesterday and will have to watch the game with Minnesota from the sidelines.

Jones complained of severe abdominal pains Thursday night. Yesterday morning he was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, where Dr. Harold Neibling performer the operation.

Jones started two games for Washington this year and was rated as a top-flight defensive man.

Ron Quincy moves up to the No. 2 fullback spot behind Ray Jackson.

Washington held its first scrimmage yesterday and Coach Jim Owens was far from pleased.

"It was about what you'd expect a first scrimmage to be after such a long layoff," said Owens. "The boys tried hard enough, but they were ragged."

Yesterday's morning session was devoted to detailed drill against Minnesota plays as gleaned from movies of the Gophers' games.

Bowden To Return To Cinderpaths

SAN JOSE (AP) — Don Bowden, the first American to run the mile in less than four minutes, says his best Christmas present is the news he can return to track competition.

Bowden, currently a lieutenant in the Army, suffered a torn achilles tendon last June in the Interservice Track and Field Championships at Quantico, Va.

Doctors now say the former University of California runner's leg will return to full strength.

"I hope to be able to try out for the 1964 U.S. Olympic team," Bowden said today at his parents' home here.

Bowden, now 24, broke the four-minute barrier at Stockton, Calif., on June 1, 1957 when he ran the mile in 3:58.7.

Families Homeless In Truckee Fire

TRUCKEE (AP) — Fire today destroyed a movie theater and an adjacent apartment house, leaving seven families homeless on Christmas Eve.

Truckee's volunteer fire department fought the blaze in 18 degree temperatures in early morning darkness.

Firemen said the blaze started in the Donner theater and spread to the building next door.

Six families in the apartment house and another family living in an apartment above the theater were forced to flee. No one was injured.

Traffic Check Turns Up Drunken Drivers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A regular holiday traffic check by nine Bay Area police departments turned up 10 allegedly drunken drivers last night.

Officers reported they stopped 4,550 cars throughout the area as 218 patrolmen manned check points. Beside the drivers booked for drunkenness, one other person was arrested as a drunk and 28 drivers who had been drinking were given warnings. Altogether, 751 violations of various types were found and 552 citations issued, some of them for multiple offenses.

YULE PACKAGE ARRIVES, BUT 10 YEARS LATE

FT. ORD (AP)—The Christmas package was mailed in Kansas City, Mo., on Dec. 13, 1950, to Clara L. Drommer, then in Salzburg, Austria.

It was delivered this week to Miss Drommer, now service club director at this army post.

Despite the "do not open until Christmas" stickers, Miss Drommer couldn't resist. It contained beads and earrings.

There was nothing to indicate where the package had spent the last 10 years.

15 Hurt As Bus, Train Collide

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (AP)—A suburban bus filled with Christmas shoppers slammed into the side of a moving Canadian National Railways train at crossing here today. Officials reported 15 persons injured and called it miraculous that no one was killed.

James Clements, 28, the bus driver, was reported in critical condition. He was making his first trip as a substitute driver on a run from Petty Harbor, six miles away.

Another bus driver who got to the scene minutes later said Clements' bus slid into a freight car at the middle of the combination passenger-freight train. Witnesses said the crossing had not been sanded.

Employees Dunked In Boating Mishap

NEWPORT BEACH (AP)—Forty-three persons got a dunking in Newport Harbor last night during pre-Christmas festivities.

Harbor officials said the group, members of the City Employees Assn. and their families, were aboard a gaily decorated barge that became swamped when the passengers distributed themselves unevenly.

A MAN OF VISION

Donald Andrus, 17, devised this wiper assembly to keep his eye glasses cleared of snow and rain. A flashlight battery powers the device, which is controlled by a lapel switch. Andrus, who lives at Rochester, N.Y., tried out his invention during a snow storm this week, and said, "It works fine." (AP Wirephoto)

Thief Breaks In, Takes Family's Yule Gifts

When a salesman returned to his San Rafael home late last night, he found someone had stolen the family's Christmas gifts from a living room couch, San Rafael police reported.

Ernest T. Louis, a furniture salesman for a San Francisco firm, returned to his home at 23 Knight Drive, about 11:20 p.m. He found the gifts missing, along with a .22 caliber colt automatic and a Bell and Howell movie camera and projector, police said.

The theif entered the house by breaking a small piece of glass over the front door knob, and ransacked the home the police reported. A piano stool was placed in front of the door.

Louis estimated that the missing articles were valued at between $350 and $400.

Vandals yanked lights off a large Christmas tree in Sausalito last night and trampled the bulbs to bits.

Mrs. Martha Pereira of 17 Glen Drive said she and neighbors Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nelson of 15 Glen Drive, decorated a 20-foot tree as they have been doing for five years.

The vandals destroyed the decorations last night while Nelson was away from his home for about 10 minutes to pick up his wife.

shoulder of the highway's northbound lane, and was standing alongside to direct a second bus which was going to give him a push.

A light grey station wagon with Alaska license plates struck Nabers down, knocking him at least 20 feet onto the crowded highway, witnesses said.

He died at Marin General Hospital of internal injuries about two hours later after being given six pints of blood in a futile attempt to save his life.

Walter Mervin Thompson, 44, brother of the suspect said his brother came home yesterday just before 6 p.m. and went straight to bed.

"He asked me to drive him to the police station when he woke up about midnight," the brother said. "He told me he thought he had been in an accident and wanted to give himself up."

According to CHP Officer T. A. Bragg, the death car lost part of its radio antenna. A broken antenna on Thompson's car was found to match the piece found on the highway.

Naber's death was the 26th fatality of the year on Marin highways, compared to 18 for last year.

Naber's wife, Anna, was reported in a state of shock this morning. "He didn't have a chance," she sobbed last night when told of her husband's death. The couple had no children.

Thompson has been stationed at the Presidio since June following a tour of duty in Alaska. His car, a grey station wagon, still carries Alaska license plates.

Funeral arrangements for Naber are pending at Sinai Memorial Mortuary, San Francisco.

There's Wonderful Feeling From Observance Of Christmas Eve

Our rush is over. We've bought our presents and wrapped them. Our trees glow beautifully in our living rooms. Flames flicker in our fireplaces.

It is Christmas Eve, parents. It's our night of all nights in the year.

Do you have a family Christmas Eve? We always do. I can't conceive of Christmas Eve away from the children. Several families gather together. Some of our children are grown now. The others are shooting up. But Christmas Eve with teen-agers is just as nice as with toddlers.

We turn off the radios, the phonograph and the TV. Who wants canned music when we ourselves can sing? Who wants artificial drama when there is the great story of Jesus' birth to hear?

We listen while one of our children reads "And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night . . ." Do you remember the rest? It is a story our fathers have listened to and marveled over for a thousand years. An old, old story. But new and wonderful each time we hear it.

We sing all the familiar carols. Tears come to my eyes as I hear the strong young voices of our children singing "Joy to the world, the Lord is come, let earth receive her King." They aren't afraid. They really mean joy to the world.

Then we have presents. Our Santas used to be little guys. Now they are hulking adolescents. We're proud of them. They do the job well.

Next we have a huge birthday cake, and all the ice cream our big kids can eat. Do you know how much ice cream a teen-ager can consume? Finally we say our quiet good nights.

It's a simple Christmas Eve, but to us it's wonderful.

A very merry Christmas to you and your children.

READERS' FORUM

(Q) "Is it fair to impose your own religion on your children? Shouldn't we wait and let our boys and girls choose their own faiths when they're grown?"

W.A.D.

(A) No, we should not wait. Even small children need the strength of faith in a personal, loving God, and the release which prayer can bring.

LOOKING FOR SANTA

This puppy seems to be waiting for Santa as he hangs loosely in a Christmas stocking at the doorway of the Anti-Cruelty Society in Detroit. The puppy, living at the society home, is one of many looking for a home this winter. The society has issued an appeal that pets not be given for Christmas unless they are really wanted. (UPI Telephoto)

Is There A Santa? This Man Says, Yes

Red suit, black boots, flowing beard and a sash around his middle—that's Le Moyne Porter of Mill Valley who said today, "I never quite quit believing in Santa Claus. I know now there is one." He is.

This year will be his seventh that he has brought presents and good spirit to children and adults alike in his Enchanted Knolls neighborhood.

Porter, personnel manager for Shell Oil Co. in San Francisco, said he delivers toys to children on Christmas Eve and talks to everyone in the house.

"Especially the older people," he said, "who seem to have lost faith in the fact there is a Santa Claus. Grandmothers and grandfathers get my particular attention to renew their faith."

"I have left some rather elderly women standing shaking their heads. They just don't believe this," Porter said.

"We have the unbelievers as to 'where is the sled and reindeer?' I say, naturally, we can't drag them down on the city streets. They are parked on Mount Tamalpais. And youngsters who look can see Rudolph's red nose blinking up there."

Further, Porter explained, before going out I get all weather reports between the North Pole and Mill Valley and can give a complete accurate weather report, rain, snow or whatever. This is often checked on in the newspapers."

"All this is designed to keep up the patter so that the kids are off guard and don't ask me embarrassing questions. The key to the whole thing is speed. In, do the job and get out."

Porter, who is five feet, seven and weighs 215 pounds said, "Sir, I do not need any pillows." He was once asked at the outdoor art club after a performance to remove his pillows and replied, "Lady, that's me." the woman disappeared.

His method of delivery is this: His wife, Edythe, (Mrs. Santa) takes the orders and sets the schedule by telephone, making sure to get names and a description of the children. She also finds out where the presents will be left for Porter to pick up.

"My daughter, Carol, drives the car since one can't see too well in a beard," Porter said. Packages are picked up in the garage or in the car. Santa enters the house and calls each youngster by name. Sometimes families combine their broods and Porter doesn't have to make multiple calls. He leaves the toys, talks a bit and departs.

Besides his daughter, Porter has a son Jimmy, 16. And the family lives at 101 Longfellow Drive. He started being Santa with a cub pack. "I was disgusted with the Santa Claus I had seen and thought I could do a better job." He went from Cub Scout Pack to church groups and individual visits. Starting with two or three houses, last year he visited 16.

He also goes out at other times than Christmas Eve. Last year he went to Marin City School. Following his visit he was called from a convalescent home nearby and pleaded with to make a visit. "I kissed more old ladies than I ever thought I would," he said. Always have my best luck with those under six and over 60."

Terra Linda Bond Issue Meetings Set

Public meetings on the Terra Linda Recreational District's proposed $233,185 bond issue will be held on Jan. 4 and 11 at 8 p.m. in the Barnard Hoffman School.

Representatives from the San Francisco architects Royston, Hanamoto and Mayes, who drew up the plans, and the Terra Linda Community Services District Recreation Steering Committee will be present to discuss the recreation plans.

Included in the proposed bond issue which will be voted on Jan. 17 is $172,395 for total construction costs. Major item in this is $74,278 for a swimming pool.

Also under construction costs are $29,452 for landscaping and parking area at Del Ganado park, $10,000 at Oleander, $30,000 for an addition to the community building, $22,500 remodeling the community building and installing a terrace, $6,165 for a children's play area.

Architects fees are $13,790, and survey and soil tests cost $1,000. The district allotted $40,000 to buy the community building and $6,000 to furnish it.

Firm Wins Contract

W. J. Kubon Co., San Rafael contracting firm, has been awarded a contract by the California Department of Public Works to construct an 11,200-foot addition to the hospital at the California Veterans' Home in Yountville, on a bid of $279,644. Heating, plumbing and electrical contracts were awarded separately.

Promoted In Navy

Arthur Vantrease, son of Mrs. Ralph La May of 212 Clorinda Avenue, San Rafael, has been promoted to senior chef at Oxnard Navy Base. He has been in the Navy for 13 years.

50 YEARS AGO

Marinite Listened To Famous Singer

Fifty years ago tonight Mrs. Jean Bingley of 29 Onyx Avenue, Larkspur, pushed her way through crowds of San Francisco citizens to the foot of Lotta's Fountain.

And there, on Christmas Eve, she heard and watched the famed singer Luisa Tetrazzini give the performance that has become a part of San Francisco's history.

Mrs. Bingley, a young woman of 25 then, went to hear the concert with her husband. They were in the crowd of 250,000 who jammed the area of Third and Market Streets.

Tonight that historical concert will be reenacted at Lotta's Fountain. Soprano Olga Chronis will sing the songs Tetrazzini sang.

"I wish I could be there," Mrs. Bingley said wistfully, but I can't." She is confined to her home by a leg injury and failing sight.

She remembers that Tetrazzini had a "most gorgeous voice. It was a thrilling experience."

Perhaps Mrs. Bingley's memories of that long-ago night were stirred this week by some visitors to her home. The group, young people and adults from the Larkspur-Corte Madera recreation center, stopped to sing carols to her as they made the rounds of rest homes and other shut-ins in the area.

Living here alone . . . it was terrific," she said.

The Larkspur woman, a chiropractor in San Francisco for many years, will manage to leave her home for a Christmas celebration, however. Her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Abbey of Petaluma, and granddaughter Lynn, plan to take her to dinner at a Larkspur restaurant.

Missilemen Top Quota For Blood

When asked to donate blood, the Army's Bay Area Nike missilemen did so—almost 30 gallons.

Capt. James N. Calway of Corte Madera, medical officer for the Sixth Region, Army Air Defense Command, which has headquarters at Fort Baker, disclosed results for the first three-month period of a continuing drive in support of the Letterman Army Hospital blood donor program. At the same time he announced a goal for the second quarter donations: "Top 30 gallons."

In a letter to Maj. Gen. E. J. McGaw, who commands the Sixth Region, Maj. Gen. J. W. Schwartz, commander of Letterman Hospital, said:

"During the first cycle of donations by all units of your command . . . 246 blood donors were supplied to the Letterman Blood Bank. This total represents 51 more donors than had been originally planned by your organization . . ."

Dumont, Firm In L.A. Tell Merger Plan

Dumont Manufacturing Co. of San Rafael has merged with the H. I. Thompson Fiberglass Co. of Los Angeles, it was announced today by presidents of the two companies, Robert Diass and William Winterhalter.

Dumont is a subsidiary of Dutron Corp., also of San Rafael. The merger is subject to audit and approval of stockholders of both companies, Diass said.

H. I. Thompson is a large producer of missile and aircraft insulating materials. Dumont manufactures high-pressure moulded insulation.

Dumont employs more than 200 persons at the plant at 607 Irwin Street. The corporation has been in Marin for 13 years.

The proposed merger was expected to greatly increase local production, Diass said.

Real Estate Firm Seeks Incorporation

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan announced Rancho Del Pantano, Inc., a Marin County real estate company, has filed articles of incorporation with his office, to be capitalized with 1,000 no par shares.

Directors of the company were listed as William Quinby Wright Jr., 8155 Redwood Highway; William Wurtsbaugh Wright, 1040 Sixth Street, and Foster Quinby Wright, 8155 Redwood Highway, Novato.

COMMISSIONED—Albert K. Thompson, son of Mrs. Louise D. Thompson of 37 Barber Avenue, San Anselmo, has been commissioned a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps on graduation from the 12-week officer candidate course at the Marine Corps Schools at Quantico, Va.

Several Boys Caught Shooting Out Lights

Two Fairfax teen-agers last night were caught by police as they shot out street lights with an air gun from an auto.

Police said the boys, 15 and 16, and three others shot out "numerous lights." Police Chief Clifton Cordes said he will keep the guns, taken from the boys, as a warning to others.

Good News Of Great Joy Come To All People

In those days a decree went out from Caesar Augustus that all the world should be enrolled. This was the first enrollment, when Quirinious was governor of Syria.

And all went to be enrolled, each to his own city. And Joseph also went up from Galilee, from the City of Nazareth, to Judea, to the city of David, which is called Bethlehem, because he was of the house and lineage of David, to be enrolled with Mary, his betrothed, who was with child.

And while they were there, the time came for her to be delivered. And she gave birth to her first son and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no place for them at the inn.

And in that region there were shepherds out in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And an angel of the Lord shone around them, and they were filled with fear.

And the angel said to them, "Be not afraid; for behold, I bring you good news of a great joy which will come to all the people; for to you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, who is Christ the Lord.

"And this will be a sign for you; you will find a babe wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger."

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying:

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men with whom he is pleased."

When the angels went away from them into heaven, the shepherds said to one another, "Let us go over to Bethlehem and see this thing that has happened, which the Lord has made known to us."

And they went with haste, and found Mary and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger. And when they saw it, they made known the saying which had ben told them. But Mary kept these things and pondered them in her heart.

And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all they had heard and seen, as it had been told thme.
sene, as it had been told them.

The Boxing Day Holiday

Monday will be a holiday in every city and hamlet in our land. In England, the 26th of December is always a holiday. They call it Boxing Day.

It has nothing to do with prize fighting, however. The kind of boxing referred to is that of boxing gifts for various people, including the postman, deliverymen and servants, if any.

It is widely regarded as one more day of Christmas celebrating. In a chilly country where winter storms roar out of the North Sea to lash the land, people are inclined to make the most of every opportunity to take time off and enjoy themselves during the bad weather season.

We don't have the English excuse, but we are happy so many Americans, including us, will be able to enjoy a three-day holiday. We hope you enjoy yours.

KNOW YOUR FACTS

The average person who owns stock shows an appalling lack of knowledge about the company in which he invests his money. To make matters worse, his grasp of financial affairs is often quite shaky.

These conclusions are the result of a survey of 2,000 shareholders made by an investors' group.

Three-quarters of those interviewed had a college education, but most of them could not name a single product of the companies into which they had bought. An even larger percentage could not name the president of any of the corporations in which they had invested.

We can be our own worst enemies by neglecting to make a careful evaluation of our material, intellectual and spiritual strength.

Take practical steps to become well-informed about your temporal and eternal destiny. Too much is at stake to do otherwise.

Be tireless in seeking knowledge, which is the basis of good judgment. No one can do it for you.

"Be prudent therefore and watchful in prayers. But above all things have a constant mutual charity." (1 Peter 4:7-8)

Enlighten us, O Holy Spirit, with the understanding necessary for salvation.

Let's Spread Christmas Out Over Six Months

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Along about this time every year you can hear a lot of grumbling to the effect that the Christmas season is too long.

To this I say "bah!" and "humbug!"

The trouble with the Christmas season is that it is too short. If I had my way, the "Twelve Days of Christmas" would be changed to the "Six Months of Christmas."

BUT I DON'T mean that the way it might sound. In proposing a stretch-out, I'm not thinking in terms of enjoyment, but rather of survival.

Most of us are old enough to remember the time when the Christmas season started the day after Thanksgiving. That was the day the department stores turned on the colored lights, put a carol album on the record player and opened their Christmas "sales."

But few stores nowadays have the patience to wait until after Thanksgiving. About the only merchants who bother with Thanksgiving are the food store operators. They have a vested interest in the holiday, it being one of the few times when they can unload pumpkins.

IT IS THIS trend toward an early Yuletide that the traditionalists decry. They contend that by the time Christmas itself rolls around, people are tired of the whole thing and are eager to get on with New Year's.

Now let me make clear that I am as weary as the next man of hearing Bing Crosby dream of a white Christmas. And isn't it a blesssing that we don't have those blasted chipmunks with us as much this year?

But in deploring the situation, the traditionalists overlook a vital element which negates their argument — namely, the population explosion. There simply are too many people trying to buy gifts at the same time.

This point has been driven home every night this month as I have driven home from work.

IN ORDER TO reach my little nest, I have to pass two big suburban shopping centers. Maneuvering an automobile by these places is roughly comparable to driving a herd of elephants through a sheep dip.

It is nothing uncommon to find traffic backed up for two or three miles behind nocturnal shoppers who are looking for a place to park. By next Christmas I probably won't be able to get home at all.

There is, of course, a way to avoid this ghastly entanglement. All we have to do is start the Christmas season on the Fourth of July.

I HAVE WORKED out a plan under which people would shop in alphabetical order—A-through-E in July, F-through-J in August, K-through-O in September, P-through T in October and U-through-Z in November.

Note that I am leaving December open. That's when I intend to do my shopping.

Great enthusiasm for prospects of 1941 and the next two or three years was expressed by Edmund Meyer, general manager of Coca Cola Bottling Co., as he visited San Rafael.

Prosperity Almost Causes M.D.A.'s Death

By CHAPIN A. DAY

CHIP DAY

The Marin Democratic Assembly, sometimes a powerful, active organization, almost died last week, and political prosperity was one of the contributing factors.

At a practically unpublicized meeting in College of Marin, an attempt to kill off the county-wide organization was made by some members who felt they would rather belong to smaller, more localized organizations beginning to spring up around the county.

These clubs, like Mill Valley's Democratic Club and similar organizations in Novato and Central Marin, are either affiliated or plan to affiliate with the California Democratic Council, in just the way MDA is affiliated. Their proponents says it's easier to organize and keep enthusiasm in small local organizations.

One cause of dissatisfaction has been inactivity on the part of MDA. Democratic prosperity, national and statewide (not locally), has syphoned off many of the county's top Demo leaders into state or national jobs, leaving great voids in the local leadership.

The most recent blow was the resignation of Bob Guyol as MDA president, not for a political job, but because his boss, Standard Oil, is sending him to India.

When it was finally decided to keep MDA in operation, Gabriel Lehrer of Mill Valley was elected temporary chairman pending formal elections next February.

MARIN DEMOCRATS are happy about one result of the election insofar as our county is concerned, although they failed to tally a majority here for any of their candidates.

The vote showed, they say, that Marin's vote for Kennedy was the highest percentage in the state, 85 per cent, in relation to the number of Democrats registered in the county. San Mateo County had the second highest percentage Democratic vote.

Everyone seems able to find something to be happy about if you just figure percentages long enough.

Another interesting figure, I've been told, (I haven't actually seen the statistics) is in the recent election the Democrats tallied the largest absentee vote, proportionately, of any election in recent years.

Although the absentees swung the state from Kennedy to Nixon, the Democrats tallied a higher percentage of the absentees than is usual.

As I said, you can find a silver lining if you look for it.

A NON-PARTISAN political rumor of the moment is that printer Lothar Salin of San Rafael is about ready to start collecting signatures on a petition to qualify him to run for San Rafael School Board next Spring.

The story goes that at least one and possibly two of the incumbents, whose terms expire, will not seek re-election. Lothar has an interest in schools — he has five children.

THOSE UNINFORMATIVE campaign expenditure statements are still being filed. As an example of how useless they are, Fred G. Dupuis of Tiburon, unsuccessful congressional candidate, filed a statement reporting contributions to him and his committee of $49,624. However, he said he had no personal knowledge of how it was spent, the committee did that.

His successful opponent, Rep. Clement W. Miller of Corte Madera, reported contributions to him of $2,266, expenditures of $2,266 and didn't report at all on his committee. He isn't required to.

Everett Matzen, the unsuccessful Democratic candidate for Marin-Sonoma assemblyment, set a record expenditure of $23,438.72 in his campaign. Contributions toward this amount were shown in one big list with the total contributions all lumped into one sum.

William T. Bagley, who polled about 60 percent of the vote in the two counties, spent $20,360.78, but he listed by name and amount every one of the 150 or so donors to that total.

It's too bad legislators aren't interested in getting some sensible and informative method of required expenditure filings.

IN WISHING ALL a Merry Christmas I'd like to plagiarize a poem sent out by teletype a few years ago by the United Press International bureau in San Diego. Entitled "Feliz Navidad, Amigos," it goes:

'Tis the night before Kreesmas and all through the casa
Not a creature is storing, caramba! Que Pasa?
The stockings are hanging con mucho cuidado
In hopes that St. Nicholas weel feel obligado
To leave a few cosas aqui and alli
For Chico Chica (y sometheeng for Mi!)

Their little cabezas all fool of good theengs

Thanks For Help To Senior Citizens

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

During the year of 1960, hundreds of great-hearted Marin people have contributed through me to good times for our older citizens. Some 200 have sent me Christmas greeting cards.

I wish I could reply to each of these in person and send Christmas greetings to each. But that is too big a chore for me, so I am writing in hope the Independent-Journal, which also contributed so much in publicizing the senior citzens' events, will let me use its "Letters" column to say to all:

Many, many thanks for your help and good wishes, and may you have a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

There's A Miracle On Miracle Mile

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

When our utmost efforts to do something are not crowned with at least some success, our chin is liable to sag.

Such seems to have been our efforts, to interest Marvelous Mariners in its Miracle Mile.

Some front-yards would still not be a credit to the backyards of a hicktown.

We read concerning the First Yule: "When the Three Wise Men saw the Star, they rejoiced with exceeding great Joy."

So also at this A.D. 1960 Yule Time, because of the same Joy—our chin is liftting . . .

The reason: Some doings (finished just before these holidays) on the San Anselmo part of the Miracle Mile verifies the maxim, architectural construction is frozen music. (Not included is jazz and rock-and-roll.)

In order to fill our cup to overflowing, a fountain is playing in front of the new building.

Now the fountain's joyful playing is with H_2O — two gases forming water. Who would say there are no miracles on the Miracle Mile?

Had Faith In School Board

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

Perhaps the Rev. Barkowska will now get back to the concerns of his parish. This is a busy time of year for churches of the Christian faith.

The fact that the Board of Trustees of Tamalpais Union High School District voted unanimously against banning the books in question, is no surprise to me.

Unfortunately, I am not in the habit of attending school board meetings, so I see no reason why the antics of a minister should rouse me from my Christmas card addressing and gift wrapping.

I have faith in the school board and I knew they would know best how to handle the problem.

S. R. Chamber Chief To Move On? It's Tough To Lose A Wife

What's this we hear about San Rafael Chamber Manager Dick Shirley looking ahead to the New Year and to new horizons?

Or is it just wishful thinking on the part of some of these people who are already talking about a possible successor in the Chamber of Commerce post.

Mentioned off and on are people like Paul Richards and Ed Kaenel.

CHRISTMAS CHEER is running high, and some of the well-known court customers are showing up with increasing frequency. The other day, Judge Joseph Wilson asked a regular customer why he imbibed so much the night before. The man peered up sheepishly, then picked up hope when he noticed the judge was new on the bench.

"Your honor," he sagged, in his best form. "I was feeling bad. You see, I buried my wife." Veteran bailiff Jack Bones clutched his face to wipe off the smile.

The judge quickly assessed the situation. "And just when did you bury your wife?"

"Well, your honor," the drunk scuffed one shoe against the other, "I guess maybe six years ago. But for a while there, it sure seemed like yesterday didn't it."

FROM LOS ANGELES comes word that they're looking for two Marin officials of high rank who took someone else's limousine out for a spin without the owner's consent.

It was during the recent League of California Cities convention. Seems the car belonged to some Southern California mayor, who would have been blistering mad. Only, he didn't know about it.

DOESN'T PAY to be too curious. The "exact change" hopper at the Golden Gate Bridge always intrigued me. Every chance, I toss in a quarter and putter away happily while other wait in line.

This time, I decided to try two dimes and a nickel, which should work (and they tell me it always does).

I carefully placed two dimes and a nickel in the hopper and waited, but no "go" signal.

"Aha," I thought. "I caught the mechanical monster cheating." I walked back to the toll taker in triumph. The man said, "Aha, you put in only one dime and a nickel. I argued. But the man showed me a glass case in back. "See, only one dime and a nickel!"

By that time, other motorists were glaring at me. I quickly threw in another dime and drove on.

Wonder if this happened to anyone else? I'm still convinced the hopper has lapses of memory once in a while. At least, that time it did.

THE RASH OF Christmas light thefts has prompted an irate citizen to pen this note:

'Twa the night before Xmas
and throughout Marin, nothing was stirring, not even a pin.
Fireplaces were glowing and gifts wrapped neat, and outside decorations lighting the street.
All of a sudden a dark figure
alights, and just for the heck of it steals all the lights.
Even tho it's Xmas I can't help thinkin, that Xmas
light pifering is downright stinkin.
Merry Christmas to all.
Oops, who turned the lights off the Christmas tree outside, Maw? No one did?

Well, Happy New Year anyway.

During a Christmas rush in a big department store, one of the dear little kiddies kicked the store's Santa Claus so hard in the shin that he had to put up a sign, "Gone to feed my reindeers," for a half hour until the pain abated.

And speaking of last Christmas, here's an entry Joan Brooks swears she copied from a 10-year-old's diary:

December 25: Pop gave me a swell new air rifle, but it's pouring so I can't go hunting.

December 26: Still raining. Can't go hunting.

December 27: Still raining. Can't go hunting.

December 28: Still raining. Couldn't wait any longer. Shot Uncle Morris."

A SILENT, HOLY NIGHT

Here's Christmas Eve Message For People Of Marin County

By DR. THEODORE A. GILL
President, San Francisco Theological Seminary

On certain radio and television shows ingenious contrivances have been used to measure the amount of laughter given the various contestants and their purportedly funny stories. As the audience dutifully brays its response to the jokes, the laughmeter computes in decibles how much noise is made for each, and so the winner is chosen. If such an apparatus could be set against each season of the year, I have no doubt that Christmas would win for noise, hands down.

Just think how loudly we celebrate the day: The laughter and chatter, the swinging bells, the greetings, the carols sung and crooned, bright paper wrappings being folded around gifts, being torn off gifts, kitchen clatter, and dining room clink and rattle, office party pandemonium, corks popping, and much, much later, celebrants still shouting in the streets. All noise, all Christmas noise — some dear and some doubtful —but all noise.

Hundreds of years before Christmas was, squinting down the centuries to see who was to come, the Psalmist thought he spied a quieter event: A silent night which would yet be the holy night, when all would be calm, yet all would be bright. The dreaming poet, hundreds of years before the Bethlehem miracle, sang: "He shall come down like rain upon the mown grass: as showers that water the earth" (Psalms 72:6). What quietness, what peace there is in that.

Rain upon the mown grass. As over against the clamor and confusion of our Christmases, the striking thing about that simile is its quietness. It is a reminder of how seriously we ought to take our own silences. The most important thing that ever happened in the earth was hushed and unspectacular as rain upon the mown grass. No more noisy, no more noticeable than that. The sort of thing we can miss if we are too loud. There is a warning in that for us—a suggestion that we not mistake flamboyance for importance.

The truly important things that happen to us, happen in us, and that without tumult or shouting. Gradually, quietly, we begin to see ourselves as separate individuals, we begin to see the difference between right and wrong, we begin to understand that we are responsible people, we begin to know that what we do matters, and we begin to be concerned for our eternal destinies. And these great mysteries, these all-important mysteries are explored inside, in silence, each man for himself.

Think how Jesus appeared in the earth. All too often, in the excitement of our celebration, we forget how quietly He came and how quietly He lived almost to the end. Because of the revolution which Jesus released in the world, we tend to overlook the serenity of His birth and of His growth. But the remarkable thing about His nativity and His development was their lack of noisy pomp, ceremony, ostentation. There was no specialists, no consultations in the stable; there was nothing flashy about the manger; there was no throne for the growing boy; there was no brassy advertising for Him. The great life progressed in patient peace and quiet. Even when the miracles could have made a great splash in the public attention, Jesus asked that they not be talked about. It just is not God's way to howl us into His train, to dazzle us into following Him.

Instead, the Incarnation of God takes place unheralded save to a few sleepy shepherds. God steals into history one night in a little backwoods town. He doesn't try to impress, He doesn't try to yell down, He doesn't try to force Himself on anyone. He comes to us, He is there — simply there.

Our own rapt attention is called for now and always if we are to understand all that transpires in that silent, holy night. Our own meditation must be hushed and earnest if we are to appreciate the meaning of Christmas. Oh, the fun and the frolic of the season are fine—the Christian may be all for bigger and better celebrations, and be none the less Christian for that. But the important thing about Christmas is what its central silence says to our central silence, what its quietness speaks to our quietness.

This Jesus who was born and who grew up so unostentatiously—who is He really? This humble manger child, this unobtrusive carpenter boy—who is He really? Do I see God in Him? Do I meet God in Him? Does God reach out through Him to me, to claim me and make me His own? These are the questions Christmas asks, the choices it calls for, the decisions it requires. We must decide now about what happened back there in quietness, what really happened, what it means to us—and that deciding takes place in our own quietness; that happens in our hearts. May no one permit the season to go by without letting deep call unto deep: the deepest part of history ask it questions in the deepest part of you. Don't miss the point.

Somehow, in the midst of all the shopping and shouting, the milling and mailing, the festooning and feasting, you must find time to decide why all this is. In some personal solitude, you must let a starry solitude of long ago come through to you. By yourself, you must decide why what was so hushed and tranquil is the focus of the grandest excitement of all. You must decide who this Baby was, who made that particular silence eloquent to all the ages.

Sister Mary Patrick—College President

Her Prime Objective: The Best Possible Faculty At Dominican To Teach 'Her Girls'

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

Sister Mary Patrick, O.P., president of Dominican College, gazed out on the campus and said, softly and proudly: "Dominican compares favorably with any women's college in the country. It is one of the leading women's colleges in the United States."

Sister Patrick can rightly take such pride in the college which spreads over 100 beautifully-landscaped acres in the northern part of San Rafael.

But it is not the buildings and grounds which are her principal source of pride, but the high educational standards maintained by the college.

"MY MAJOR concern is to have an excellent faculty," Sister Patrick explained. And the college brochure with its listing of names of top educators as faculty members is proof that the college president has achieved her aim.

Sister Patrick bears the weight of her considerable responsibilities bravely, and faces the world with a smile. She never loses contact with "her girls."

After graduation from college, many of these go to distant parts. "Hardly a day goes by but I hear from one of them," she said, and reached for a letter on her desk, written in an eastern city. It told about the writer's becoming a director of the Scranton Philharmonic Orchestra. "She wasn't much interested in music when she was here. That wasn't her major," Sister commented.

Sister Patrick was born in San Francisco. When she was a few years old the family moved to Sacramento, where her father was president of the Sacramento Transportation Co., now River Lines which operates boats on the Sacramento River.

She attended public schools in Sacramento, and from Sacramento came to San Rafael and Dominican College as a student. She was one of a class of five which graduated from the college in 1922. This marked the school's first indoor graduation. It took place in Angelico Hall, which was just being completed.

In August of 1922 Sister Patrick entered the novitiate.

"What made you decide to become a Sister?" we asked.

HER REPLY: "Well, I was thinking of it a great deal during my last year at college. I believe it was Mother Raymond (then college president) who gave me inspiration. I admired her very much."

The novitiate was then located on the fourth floor of the main or administration building of the convent.

After four and a half years in the convent, Sister Patrick took her vows. She first taught in the fifth grade of the Dominican Lower School. She was next assigned to teach at St. Agnes High School in Stockton which is under the auspices of the Dominicans. It is a co-educational institution, and Sister Patrick's eyes twinkled as she said: "I liked teaching boys, too." Another year, and Sister was back at Dominican to teach English and French in the high school, and then to come to the college as dean of students in 1944.

SISTER MARY PATRICK, O.P., president of Dominican College, gazes out onto the beautiful campus around which so much of her life has been centered. Following her graduation from the college, she entered the Dominican novitiate. And she taught in the Dominican lower and upper schools before becoming a college administrator. (Independent-Journal photo)

In 1945 Sister Patrick was appointed president of the college. She succeeded Sister Thomas, who became a council member of the community. With her new position, Sister Patrick assumed responsibilities. She not only has authority over nearly 700 students plus the faculty, but she also has all the financial details to worry about including the building program.

She has the advice of the board of trustees of the college of which Mother Justin is chairman, and the further counsel of an advisory council composed of laymen. This council includes three Marin County residents: Dr. G. Thomas Quigg, Norman Ballantine, and John Cahill. Other members are J. Philip Murphy, Clarence Sullivan, Charles O'Gara, Frank Baker and Mrs. Eugene Prince.

SISTER PATRICK is enthusiastic about the growth of the college. And, without looking up a date, she can tell you rapidly when each building was constructed.

The annex to Meadowlands, the former M. H. DeYoung home, was built in 1924. The physics building was put up in 1925.

Sister Patrick, from a window in her office which is in Guzman Hall, pointed to the small red building nearby. "Believe it or not," she laughed, "it was built without an architect. Mr. Faggiano did the work. Dr. Ralph Minor, who was dean of the School of Optometry at the University of California, came over two days a week to teach physics. The building was built at his direction, and he selected the equipment."

The college president went on to say:

"Our relationship with the University of California has always been very pleasant. It has been most helpful, giving up its finest professors as part-time professors here.

"In 1927 Mother Raymond built Fanjeaux on Palm Avenue. It was built on a piece of the William Babcock property we bought. It is a residence hall for 80 college girls. Fanjeaux, of Norman-French architecture, was named for a little town in France where St. Dominic did his first missionary work. Guzman Hall, which houses the library, classrooms and offices, was constructed in 1930. Guzman was the family name of St. Dominic.

"In 1935 Mother Raymond bought the John Buck home and property, and remodeled the house for another residence hall, Benincasa. Benincasa was the family name of St. Catherine of Siena, a Dominican of the 14th century.

"IN 1939 THE new novitiate, Santa Sabina, was built on what had been the Babcock property. Santa Sabina is the house of studies for those training to become Sisters.

"During World War II there was no construction. In 1947 a quonset hut was bought as the art building. It was remodeled under the direction of Ann O'Hanlon, head of the art department. We now need a larger building.

"In 1948 we built a small chemistry wing for what will be a science building.

"In 1957 and 1958 we built the new residence hall near Fanjeaux called Pennafort. This honors the memory of Mother Raymond, as it was named for her patron saint, Raymond of Pennafort. It houses 130 students. In 1958 the dining hall, Caleruega, was built on the former Babcock property. It is equipped to serve 500, and can be expanded.

The college president went on to say that construction of the new library building on what was the Buck property will get under way in June of 1961. That structure, which will cost approximately one million dollars, will house 150,000 volumes, and will have a few seminar rooms, audiovisual facilities, a record library, and a curriculum library for the education department.

And after that, what happens if Dominican's lower and high schools are moved to the 500-acre site recently bought in Sleepy Hollow?

"We are waiting eagerly, I assure you," said Sister Patrick. "The present high school will be remodeled as a residence for Sisters and student Sisters, since the present convent is overly crowded. The college needs more classrooms, which will be available when the lower school moves to Sleepy Hollow.

"We have 28 acres in Forest Meadows, the former Coleman property, where athletic events are held. But we do need more buildings."

THEN, AFTER a pause: "We hope to have a new chapel."

Sister Patrick noted that the college expects an enrollment of 1,000 by 1970. But she also emphasized that no stress is being placed upon an increase in enrollment.

"What we want to make very sure of is that we have top teachers and fine students," she said.

And that, as Sister Patrick sees it, is her prime objective as president of Dominican College.

Marin's Most Unusual Christmas Tree Brightens Hospital Halls

Staff At San Rafael General Puts Its Ingenuity And 'Native Materials' To Work

Patients at San Rafael General Hospital are enjoying this Christmas Eve what must be Marin's most unusual Christmas tree.

It was made entirely of native materials—native to a hospital, that is—plus a lot of ingenuity on the part of the staff.

Started as strictly a fun project, the tree became a thing of real beauty, especially when spotlighted from below. It has been stopping traffic on the first floor ever since it was completed.

When members of the staff started to "build" the tree, they looked around for a supporting pole or trunk, and found a perfect one—an IV stand. This is a standard from which jars are suspended for intravenous feedings.

To provide a conical shape in the manner of a real tree, Mrs. Patricia Leonard, director of nursing, brought from home a hula hoop borrowed from her daughter, Janice.

A lot of IV tubing was strung from the crossbeam at the top of the stand to the hula hoop on the bottom, all around the tree.

Then the fun began. Ampules and test tubes filled with colored water, plastic medicine glasses, discarded plastic needle holders, soap samples and miscellaneous other small items were tied to the tubing as ornaments. Paper drinking cups were turned upside down as bells and inverted pill cups became smaller bells.

There are some real bells, too—old-fashioned patient call bells brought by one of the nurses.

At the top of the tree is an angel, of course. Only this angel is made from "Ah Sticks" (tongue depressors).

When the tree was completed as far as decorating it with hospital items was concerned, the nurses and aides and orderlies and maids stood back and looked at their creation. Well—maybe—they decided—it DID need something else.

So a concession was made to tradition. During her lunch hour one day, one of the nurses paid a visit to a downtown store and brought back some angel hair, tinsel and aluminum foil garlands. These were added, and Joe Bell of the hospital lab rigged up a spotlight.

The result, they decided, was stupendous. At least, nobody had ever seen a tree quite like it. Maybe they never will.

IN ADDITION TO the traditional Christmas decorations at San Rafael General Hospital, this most unusual tree, built by hospital personnel from hospital materials, adds further holiday spirit. Punsters have labeled it a "Quaking Aspirin" because of its medicinal-type ornaments. (Independent-Journal photos)

A PATIENT IN wheelchair, Mrs. W. E. Ball, and her nurse, Mrs. Donna Wills, stop briefly to admire the unique San Rafael General Hospital Christmas tree. It began as a fun project, but blossomed into an effective addition to the hospital's Christmas decor.

KEY FIGURES IN the current television series, "Virus," produced by the Bay Area's KQED for national showing are Dr. Wendell M. Stanley, left, Nobel Laureate and director of the University of California virus laboratory who is the series host, and Evans G. (Red) Valens, producer-director and a Mill Valley resident. The Man Behind A TV Series

He's Producer-Director E. G. (Red) Valens, Whose Job It Is To Surmount Frustration

Thrice a week, on Monday afternoons and on Wednesday and Friday evenings, the Bay Area's educational television station, KQED on Channel 9, carries a program entitled "Virus."

Viewers who watch it see the prominent scientist, Dr. Wendell Stanley, by lecture and demonstrations, and using terms understandable to the layman, explore both the known and the unknown facets of the virus.

It is obviously a painstakingly planned, carefully put-together show.

The man responsible for this polish is a Marinite — Evans G. (Red) Valens of Mill Valley. He is the producer-director for the "Virus" series.

AND WHAT IS the job of the TV show producer-director?

Red Valens will tell you that at times it seems to consist largely of encountering and struggling with frustration.

For instance, his part in "Virus":

The idea of making a television series out of research work being done in the virus laboratory at the University of California was first brought up and discussed at KQED as early as 1956. Two years later the project moved into the planning stage. And at the beginning of 1960 the National Science Foundation granted funds that enabled KQED to produce "Virus" on film for National Educational Television. By last February test films had been made, and in March the series was actually under way.

Here was a challenge to the ingenuity and talent of a producer-director whose responsibility was to do "every thing." The right people, properties and stage settings must appear in coordination before cameras, manned and supplemented by technical crews, at a scheduled time. They must move and speak and appear in a manner so as to tell an exciting story that would invite the attention and response of future audiences in San Francisco and other National Education Television station areas, and in classrooms in schools and colleges.

The "talent" were busy experts, each preoccupied with his own work, each with a different temperament and manner of communicating, many suddenly called upon to travel to distant cities. Prime job of the producer-director was to keep men and cameras matched to each other's timing and happily.

UNEXPECTED technical difficulties during filming wore on energy and goodwill, and the producer-director had to encourage and humor. Tobacco plants, fertile eggs, experimental animals were needed at appropriate stages of maturity or disease to illustrate processes and results of laboratory achievements. The producer-director incubated plants and placated prima donna chicks who wanted to out-chirp the scientists.

A model of tobacco mosaic virus, constructed by a scientist in England, was used as main stage property for the series. Handsome as it was, the U. S. Customs Service refused to consider it a work of art and duty-free. Balloon-models leaked; jelly bean models melted. No frustration was spared the producer-director.

Studio scenes had to be set up in miniature to make sure the camera could "see" the most effective pictures. So the producer-director had to build paper-doll scientists and doll-house scenery to test his plans. Working with these tiny sets and talking with lighting men and camera men, the director plotted a shot-by-shot schedule, briefed his talent where to be and when. He helped each scientist prepare to present his ideas and the results of his research most clearly, with movements and gestures and voice that would be effective on camera. And all this must be measured to the exacting second-hand of the stopwatch.

Working with musicians, the producer-director had to evolve a theme which was unique and evocative — and acceptable to the participating scientists, some of whom were competent musicians. Quality recording of the music had to be done when musicians and music studio were available.

Title and credit cards had to be designed by artists to suit the mood of the programs. More coordinating and planning

FILM EXPERTS went to work on time-lapse movies of growing plants. Drawing and animation sequences were assembled to illustrate laboratory processes and findings not directly available to the camera. Photographs were taken by microscope and electronmicroscope.

Then when the talent had performed, the sets been struck, the producer-director must work closely with film and sound editors for many hours to insure technical synchronization and clarity.

Of course all this activity had been subject to the financial terms of the grant, and at the end—as all along the line — he must reconcile all the planned and unplanned expenses with the money that had been made available and render a competent accounting.

What talents and background did Red Valens take into this formidable undertaking?

He was born in State College, Pa., April 17, 1920, but grew up and went to high school in South Orange, N.J. He then attended Amherst College where he earned his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1941.

He worked for the El Paso Herald-Post in El Paso, Tex., then for United Press in San Francisco, Salt Lake City, Helena, Mont., Boise, Idaho, and the Central Pacific where he was wounded on Okinawa and returned to the States.

While he was recuperating in New York, the war ended. And Valens was sent to Germany where he worked as United Press bureau chief in Munich and also covered assignments in Frankfort and Berlin as well as the Nuernberg trials.

VALENS BEGAN working for KQED in its early days in 1954 and has been connected with Channel 9 ever since, except for two short periods—a six-month stint in Baltimore writing and producing "File 7" for Johns Hopkins University, and another half-year or so with the National Broadcasting Co. in New York writing and co-producing a series on the International Geophysical Year.

At KQED Valens has worked on the production of a series entitled "The Atom" with nuclear scientist Dr. Edward Teller of the University of California, and, also with Dr. Teller, on programs for the "World and Physics" series. He produced a series entitled "Elements" with Dr. Glenn Seaborg and other chemists at the University of California.

His other work has included programs on humanities with Dr. John Dodds of Stanford University, and some of the chapters of "Red Myth," a chronicle of the development of communism which will appear early in 1961.

In addition to his television work, Valens is an author.

He wrote "Me and Frumpet," a fanciful adventure in size and time for children. Together with Dr. Seaborg, he wrote "Elements of the Universe." Early in 1961 "Viruses and the Nature of Life," a book which he wrote with Dr. Stanley as a result of the television series, will appear.

When Valens isn't wrestling with—and conquering—frustration and problems in the performance of his TV duties, he and his wife, 10-year Marin residents, live in a rambling old hillside house in Mill Valley with their four children, ages 9, 10, 12 and 15.

Trees Have Changed, But Not The Spirit

The White Fir Has Become The Favored Symbol Of Yule Gaiety

By DOROTHY SLATTERY

In the days of the horse-drawn sleigh, candlelight, raspberry ices and roasting goose, the men of the family treked through the snow and out into the woods, felled a tree, and dragged it home to decorate the hearth.

Tonight families will gather around brightly-lighted trees to mark a tradition that has been the focal point of the home yule celebration for over 300 years in the Christian world.

The fragrance of freshly cut fir, glowing lights, shimmering tinsel and gaily colored ornaments have become over the centuries symbols of the season: A time of year when people stop and remember and give.

But as the meaning of the tree has remained the same, the way it gets to the hearthside has changed drastically over the years.

TODAY THE family climbs into the car, drives to a roadside lot or grocery store, wades through a tanglement of green boughs and usually ends up buying a tree favored by the 5-year-old member of the group.

Your Christmas tree was marked for the market last summer when a local dealer contacted an agent in the north, placed an order and paid a cash deposit.

When the trees are finally felled in the weeks just before Christmas many Marin dealers run their own trucks to the forests to freight home the shipments of trees.

This year a tree shortage was predicted because of heavy snows falling at the cutting time, but clearing skies within the last few weeks permitted the loggers to go to work and send truckloads of trees to Marin.

As Igor Gordon, a salesman at the Redhill Nursery in San Anselmo, noted: "This year we won't have to burn our trees."

Last year thousands of surplus trees that went unsold during the holiday season ended up in bonfires around the Bay Area.

The Christmas tree business is a risky game and a lot dealer should sell 75 percent of his supply to break even.

Leo Del Santo, partner in United Produce Co. of San Rafael, said that sometimes a lot operator "has to invest up to $5,000 or $6,000 before he makes a profit." Del Santo, a smiling, white-haired man, has been wholesaling Christmas trees in Marin since 1934. This year he and his partners, Al P. Nerviani and George Epidendio, decided to stay out of the tree business. (We'll be back in it next year," he noted.)

Twenty-six years ago the most popular tree in Marin was the Silver Tip ("really named the Red Fir"), according to Del Santo. "They were very expensive in those days and were sold by looks, not by the foot."

FAMILIES STILL tightening their belts in the post-depression years of the 1930s would nevertheless "not hesitate to spend seven dollars for a tree," the wholesaler remembered. ("Those seven dollars would be the same as 21 dollars today.")

"People always forget what they make at Christmas," Del Santo noted, "and will spend 20 dollars for a tree when they won't spend 22 cents for a loaf of bread."

Dealers buy their trees from lumber companies or the state, Del Santo said. "Forest rangers decide what can be cut on the government property," he added.

"The trees sprout stumps and are cut to size so that two trees will come out of one in 10 years," Del Santo commented. Most of the trees sold in Marin come from Northern California, Oregon or Nevada, but "in 10 years they may have to be imported from Canada and Montana the way the forests are being cleared."

During the war years of the 1940s taste in trees switched from the Silver Tip to the White Fir "which has more foliage than the Silver Tip and is less expensive," Del Santo said.

"The Silver Tip is less and less beautiful every year now, because of the forest clearing," he added sadly.

The last decade saw three White Fir trees being sold to every Silver Tip or Douglas Fir (the old fashioned tree), Del Santo estimated.

The Douglas Fir "has been falling off in popularity for the last years because of its tendency to shed in a warm room," he said.

Today the average family wants a tree from five to six feet high, Del Santo reported, and usually "pays about eight dollars a tree."

The 18 and 20 foot trees are almost exclusively sold to banks and private clubs.

THE RETAIL LOT operator starts lining up his space and ordering trees in October, reported Mrs. Hans Weise, whose husband was a partner in a lot this year in Novato and Marinwood.

The retailer buys trees from the wholesaler by the foot early in the season, she stated. "People don't realize the overhead in this business — the insurance liability, workmen's compensation, and rental."

Her husband's young partner, Mike Sandbach, said that the peak of the season is reached around Dec. 17, and that to break even a lot must sell 400 out of 600 trees.

He noted that the "Douglas Fir was more prominent in 1950 than now because as their income increased, people have started buying the more expensive White Fir."

The taste in tree trends may change. New decorations come and go. The electric light replaced the candle, the lot and tree salesman the ax and hike through the woods, tinsel the old strands of popcorn and cranberries. But the tree will always be a towering mass of green, wonderful excitement to wide-eyed children with visions of Santa Claus dancing in their heads.

Mill Valley Tandems: Free-Wheeling Folks

Church Organization For Young Couples Is Full Of Life And Fun

By BRUCE COLEMAN

Wheeling along into its 14th year, Tandems at the Mill Valley Community Church looks back on more than a decade of stimulating fellowship and fun.

Rev. Gordon Lynn Foster, pastor of the church and the one who started the young people's group, describes it graphically: "It's full of life and very funny."

The spirit of the Tandemites is symbolized in its own, ready-to-run tandem bicycle. From this cycle titles of positions are taken. For example, the presidents, man and wife, are the "handlebars," the treasurers, the "coaster brakes," and the publicity chairmen, the "horns."

Hospitality chairmen are the "spokes," head chefs, the "lunch baskets." Officers are called the "wheels" and the constitution is the frame.

REQUISITE TO belong is that the combined age of married couples be not more than 70 years.

In relating how the group was formed, Reverend Foster said, "In 1947, hundreds of young men came home at the end of the war. They were united with their wives and children and most of them were settling down for the first time to married life in peace time."

"They discussed interests of a young married couple—children, the husband's first job, getting a home established, baby sitters, child psychology and problems that go with this period."

"The idea was immediately received with great enthusiasm."

The Tandems vitality, Reverend Foster said, is due in a large measure to the fact there has been an age limit. "There are several stages in life. The young married couple goes into Tandems. But, when the couple's children get into upper classes and junior high school, they have a different outlook on things. For example, a couple in their late 30s or early 40s do not have too much in common with a couple with three kids in diapers.

"So, after Tandems, there is another group called the Voyagers for people between 30 and 45 years.

"VOYAGERS CAN be single people. Then there is yet another group, the Sempervirens, which takes in people from 45 on to the end of life, couples and individuals."

"In Tandems," the pastor continued, "when we have a barn dance, we always have eight or 10 people standing alongside who can't dance. They are pregnant women, people in the early stages of productivity."

Tandem activities include an annual work night when members go to the church in work clothes and do such things as painting the nursery furniture, redecorating a room, cleaning rafters in the vestry, chopping wood for the fireplace or sprucing up the church grounds.

"We have a grand time," said the minister.

"Discussion groups are also very lively," he added. "We take some problem that hits everybody in the club such as how can you make your religious faith relevant to your pattern in life?"

He explained that last year there was an exciting program in which "we started talking about success and threw out ideas about what we thought success really was. We found where some of the success goals wear pretty thin sometimes.

"WHAT CODE OF life do you have to live to be a 'success'? Is it defined materially, as it is in a number of cases, or has it some other meaning? This is a kind of program which starts from an experienced problem which everyone can recognize and have some share in it.

"When you start from where people live, you get some warmth. Maybe not light—but warmth."

Reverend Foster said that sometimes the group outlines a situation that is imaginary and yet has basis in reality. For example, one night he described an industrial dispute where, in an industry, workers were meeting with management and a threat of strike was in the wind.

"We debated a raise in wages, picking a union negotiator and another person to negotiate for management. 'Let's see if you can settle it,' we said, 'without a strike.' We had real information so that we weren't just talking in a vacuum. It got so real, we could hardly cut it off," he said, smiling.

Mrs. H. W. Symmes of Mill Valley, a charter member of Tandems with her husband, Will, said: "There is always a spark of fun and humor" with Tandems. "Kicked out" because the Symmes' ages added up too high, they can remember such commencement exercises as the eighth.

At that time the class of 12 chose lavender and old lace as class colors. All graduated with honors. Class motto was "Sempirvirens en garde." Overture processional was "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

THERE WAS a bequest, presentation of diplomas, acceptance of diplomas, alma mater, recessional and, finally, an informal reception for parents and friends.

In celebrating the Tandems 13th birthday recently, Reverend Foster said of the group: "It's full of life and very funny."

SYMBOLIC OF THE Tandems, young married couple's organization at the Mill Valley Community Church, is the long tandem bike which belongs to the group. Tandemites Mr. and Mrs. Cummins Jr. of Mill Valley test out the bicycle built for two with Lyle up front and Jean taking the back seat. Cummins is chairman of the board of stewards at the church. The New Frontiers

A prime example of the exciting new things that are going on these days in our high schools can be found in the chemistry department at Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo.

It is the result of the inclusion of chemistry instructor Keith McNab among 20 teachers chosen to participate in a program headed by Dr. Glenn Seaborg of the University of California.

MacNab spent the summer at Claremont helping to develop a new textbook in high school chemistry. Now that experimental text, in lithograph form, is being used in the Drake High classroom and laboratory.

MacNab's description of the new text and course: "Modern chemistry concepts with the folderol omitted."

He adds: "It contains the meat of chemistry—not applied chemistry, not about chemistry. It is what the title says it is: Chemistry and Experimental Science."

And it is, MacNab adds, the only text written by chemists and professors actually in the field in consultation with the high school teachers who will use it.

Like MacNab, the other high school teachers who worked on the Claremont project last summer are also using the new material with their classes so that at present approximately 1,500 chemistry students are being exposed to it. Once a week these teachers meet "to iron out the kinks, foresee problems, and avoid pitfalls others have encountered."

The teachers also submit reports to Claremont.

Their experiences will be weighed before the next text goes into print in final form.

teach the students the methods of science, to think critically. Minds, therefore, are not cluttered with useless facts.

For instance, students do not learn valences until they have a sound experimental basis for understanding them.

"The content forces people to think," MacNab emphasizes, "instead of merely regurgitating facts. Most of these students will not be chemists. It's not important for them to acquire facts of chemistry. It is important for anyone to learn how to make deductions according to sound principles."

At the same time, the instructor says, the course grounds students well for college chemistry. The fact that its general content is the work of college professors who were disturbed by inadequately perpared students is the best proof of this pudding, MacNab says.

In the instruction itself, a lot of time is spent on the structure of molecules, their actual shape and size, because "this is the most important thing in determining how chemicals react," according to MacNab. One of the new techniques is the use of models which were made by the instructor himself.

In summary, he said, new frontiers of chemistry are being explored through high school teaching. Basic principles are taught and "frills" are discarded. Students are not being trained as if they are going to be chemical technologists because most of them are not.

"We give them much more laboratory work, much less straight lecturing. Students are actually doing the experiments and, more important, they're solving problems. Mere recitation of facts is less and less useful. We want them to know how to solve the problems from broad principles they learned."

The Loneliest Guy In The World— A Curmudgeon At Christmas Time

THE LONELIEST, the most pathetic figure in the world must be the curmudgeon on Christmas Eve.

We are not speaking of those phony Scrooges who are to be found during the pre-Christmas days in every office and in every neighborhood. For some reason they deem it smart to sneer at Christmas as the date approaches. But when the magic day does arrive, they throw off that false facade. And they become just as wholeheartedly involved in the holiday observance as any one of us.

The curmudgeons to whom we refer are, fortunately, an even smaller, and, unfortunately, a far unhappier group. They are the ones who do not sneer at Christmas. They ignore it.

They simply do not acknowledge the existence of Christmas.

And, in so doing, they miss one of the finest things in life.

The wise guys who enjoy aiming jibes at Christmas sometimes irk us. But those unhappy people who are unaware of Christmas provoke from us a far different sentiment—pity.

They cannot this Christmas Eve share with us the memories of happy holidays of the past, for they have never known them.

They cannot enjoy festivities of the present as will the rest of us this very evening because they are incapable of the festive spirit.

Nor do they have Christmases of the future to look forward to, as do the rest of us.

Perhaps they look upon the rest of us as soft-headed, sentimental slobs. But then, say we, better soft heads than hard hearts.

For Christmas is a time when each and everyone of us can afford to be sentimental without sense of shame. When the customary abrupt nod of the head or vacuous "hello" we give those we meet can become instead a cheery and meaningful "Merry Christmas."

When we can experience the warmth of giving. The fellowship of gatherings of family and friends.

And when we can relive a great and inspiring religious experience.

When we can rededicate ourselves to the true ideals of Christianity, and vow to live more closely by them in the year to come.

Yes, we pity those whose limited horizons prohibit them from enjoying this Christmas Eve with us.

But, then, they may not be entirely lost. As Charles Dickens pointed out, even a Scrooge can see the light if it burns brightly enough.

And every "Merry Christmas" heard on the street, in a store, in the home is fuel that makes those flames burn brighter.

So here's our "Merry Christmas" to our readers. We bet there isn't a curmudgeon in the lot.

Resume Of U.S. Foreign Policy Offered At A Bargain Price

THE UNITED STATES IN WORLD AFFAIRS 1959 by Richard P. Stebbins, Vintage Books, 449 pages, $1.45. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Since it is doubtless true that the vast majority of Americans pay altogether too little attention to what's going on in the rest of the world, Vintage Books is to be complimented on bringing out this volume at a low price.

"United States in World Affairs 1959" is a complete and scholarly resume of the American position as regards our foreign affairs during the year just past. A chronology of world events in the back is an especially valuable feature.

Author Stebbins, however, writes something like a professor and something like a Time-Life writer. Every sentence is "interpretive." This is not calculated to fascinate the casual reader and is likely to irritate the serious student.

THE LOST SENTINEL by Rene Hardy, Doubleday and Co., 221 pages, $3.95 Reviewed by Bill Hendricks.

The pre-ordained death of a submarine during World War II is the centerpiece of this interesting and lively novel.

Limping into a neutral harbor, Tangiers, the commander of an Italian submarine has only 24 hours to make repairs and leave. Since the intelligence of the city has alerted Allied shipping of his whereabouts and necessary time of departure—leaving is like walking into a cannon's mouth.

This then is the atmosphere of this tightly written and moving book. A captain, a crew, a boat, an exotic city, are tied together in a skein of violence and bloody inevitability.

A TREASURY OF WITCHCRAFT by Harry E. Wedeck, Philosophical Library, 270 pages, $10. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Billed as "a source book of the magic arts," this work is indeed impressive from the standpoint of research done and presented. It contains a series of essays on thaumaturgical practices and beliefs plus hundreds of citations from historical records, books (both fiction and non-fiction), and similar sources.

We're a little hard put, however, to understand just what "earthly" good this book might be. But if you are interested in this sort of thing, it most certainly is all here.

OUT FOR THE KILL by Anthony Gilbert, Random House, 235 pages, $2.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Here's a light-hearted mystery written in the best British tongue-in-cheek approach to crime and its detection.

Lawyer-detective Arthur Crook and a somewhat zany crew of colleagues unravel an unlikely but still highly entertaining crime puzzle.

For the most part the rollicking style is delightful. And you are more than willing to forgive the author for the few spots where he seems to have encountered a dry spell and where his humor—which in this book is more important than the mystery—drags a bit.

A Roman Travelog In Music

By JOHN SUNIER

RESPIGHI: PINES AND FOUNTAINS OF ROME—Chicago Symphony conducted by Fritz Reiner—RCA VICTOR LSC-2436 — Another stereo show-off item.

These two tone poems, along with No. 3 in the triptych, "Roman Festivals," are a sort of Technicolor Todd-AO Roman travelog in music.

Beginning at the Villa Borghese, we are taken on a sound-tour contrasting strident and brash orchestral climaxes with quiet and moody orchestral meditations, concluding our day at the fountain of the Villa Medici at sunset.

"Pines" has achieved renown for its inclusion of a rather unusual orchestral instrument—a phonograph. Respighi specified a certain sound effect record of a nightingale be played at one point in the score. Perhaps this was the first step along a route that has now led to symphony orchestras sharing the podium and even the main thematic content of the score with a tape recorder.

The dynamic range of the recording is exceptional. The disc contains Victor's new "Miracle Surface" anti-static material to keep it dust-free and prevent surface noise. However, if anything, I find the disc more scratchy of surface than other recent releases.

Now Science Fiction For The Children

SECRET UNDER THE SEA by Gordon R. Dickson, Holt, Rinehart and Winston Inc., 121 pages, $2.95.

Science fiction is not generally associated with young readers, but this is part of a series in that field which is aimed at the juniors. And if this book is typical, then the idea is a good one and the stories have considerable merit.

The year is 2013. The place: the Point Loma Research Station off the coast of Mexico. The characters: Bobby, his trained dolphin and a huge Martian sea badger.

There is suspense and surprise in the underwater adventure, with some facts on deep sea plant and animal life and general data on underwater exploration mixed in. Little boys, 8 to 12, in particular, will find it all very exciting.

CHRISTMAS PRAYER

Ring loudly, bells.
Acclaim joy because
Joy should be here.
But is it? Are there
Wells of knowing one another,
Of recognizing a brother
For what he is,
Rather than by the label that is his.
Inward Angel, ring
The bells of aloneness
That we may sing
Of Joy deeply!

CHRISTMAS JOY

'Twas the night before Christmas and somewhere out there,
The stockings are empty, the cupboards quite bare.
The children are waiting for Santa Claus too,
But if he's to come, it's up to me and to you.

So here's to you, who always have plenty!
Fill up a stocking that might be empty.
You'll find on Christmas your joy is complete,
For you've laid a gift at the Christ Child's feet!

DECORATED DOORWAYS

Ornaments From Old Tin Cans

"Handwork is great for convalescents" in the opinion of B. R. (Red) Barton of Mill Valley.

And to prove his point he can use himself as an example.

Furthermore, Barton can also demonstrate from his own recent experience that you don't have to go far to find materials for such "physical therapy."

Barton uses old tin cans.

And his tools are simple, too: Tin snips, long-nosed pliers, a can opener, and a pair of heavy gloves to protect his hands when cutting the tin.

Although Barton is currently enjoying the relaxation and stimulation of handwork as a convalescent at his Mill Valley home, it was as a patient at San Rafael General Hospital that he first discovered his new hobby interest. A friend gave him a book on tincraft, and he was off on a dozen creative projects. Previously his hobbies had been drawing and painting, and that served him in good stead in his new undertaking.

As a patient at San Rafael General, prior to surgery, Barton found that all he had to do was ask—and he had plenty of materials. Friends brought him beer cans. Members of the hospital dietary department contributed old tin cans of various sizes from the kitchen. Those with "gold" lining he found especially useful because of the color they added to his creations.

From the tin cans Barton fashioned striking ornaments, sunbursts, and Christmas stars.

In the center of some of them he placed pieces of sparkling costume jewelry from a collection contributed by members of his family and friends.

"I highly recommend handwork for any shut-in," says Barton. "Just reading and watching television get boring after awhile."

To show his appreciation to the hospital staff for the nursing care he received as a patient, Barton made a special big star which was a featured piece this Christmas season in the decorating of the San Rafael General waiting room.

We wish to thank you, our friends and customers alike, who helped us make our first Christmas a real success.
We wish you and yours a joyous holiday season and a very happy, healthy and prosperous New Year.

Clear Varnish Hits Spot For Handyman As Furniture Finish

Clear varnish has deservedly long been the most popular finish used by home craftsmen to enhance beautiful woodgrain and protect the surface of furniture.

The secret of a satisfying varnish finish is threefold: Selecting the right kind of quality varnish, proper surface preparation and correct application.

Since not all varnishes are suitable for furniture, consult your paint dealer for the proper type. A semi-gloss or satin-finish varnish is preferred for most furniture, but glossy varnish gives a tougher surface.

MORE THOROUGH surface preparation is required for varnish than for opaque finishes like enamel or paint since the transparent varnish will show every flaw in the wood.

Old surfaces that are worn only in spots present no problem. Wash the entire surface with a paint cleaner to remove all traces of wax and polish, along with dirt and grime. Shallow dents can be raised by placing a damp cloth over the dent and applying a hot iron. Touch up worn spots with the varnish you are using. When it has dried hard, sandpaper lightly and remove the sandings with a cloth dampened in odorless paint thinner. Then varnish the entire surface.

Cracked, discolored or badly worn surface must be stripped down to the bare wood with paint and varnish remover. Follow the directions on the can carefully as to use and neutralization. Provide plenty of ventilation. Fill any holes with a wood filler that will accept stain, then sand satin smooth.

New wood surfaces should be prepared the same way as those from which the old finish has been removed. Unless the color of the wood is exactly what you want—and this is rare—common practice is to stain it the shade desired. Select the color you want and apply according to label instructions.

Most woods do not have to be filled, but open pore woods such as oak, walnut, mahogany and chestnut require a filler to close the pores and provide a smooth surface for the varnish. Choose a filler of the same color as the stain you have used.

NOW FOR THE actual varnishing which should be done in a dry room, as dust free as possible and without drafts. Do not stir or shake varnish, since this causes bubbles.

Use a good quality, clean brush, which should be soft, pliable and with plenty of flagged bristles. Never dip it into the varnish for more than one third its length, but load it fully. Don't wipe the excess varnish off by dragging it across the inside of the can — this causes bubbles, to. Instead, tap the tips of the bristles lightly against the inside of the container.

Flow the varnish on liberally in the direction of the grain with long, light strokes. After covering the surface completely, immediately cross-stroke it by brushing across the grain. Finish off by stroking lightly with the grain using an almost dry brush. If more than one coat of varnish is to be applied, thin the first as directed on the can label. Sand lightly with 2/0 sandpaper between coats after the first coat has dried hard. Be sure to remove all sandings.

THE BEST VARNISH to use for this rubbed finish is called cabinet rubbing varnish which dries in one day to an extremely hard finish. If this type varnish is not available at your paint dealer, then use any quick drying, hard drying varnish.

The first step, after the varnish has hardened, is to make a paste of pumice stone and crude or rubbing oil right on the surface of the piece. Then fold a heavy, lintless cloth into a pad. Press the pad into the paste and rub over the surface with straight surface strokes parallel to the grain. Use moderate pressure and rub until the surface feels smooth.

Wipe off any remaining pumice with a clean dry cloth. Then moisten another cloth with odorless paint thinner to clean off any residue. Now wipe the surface dry with another clean cloth. The surface will be smooth but slightly cloudy because of nearly invisible fine scratches.

To restore the luster, a second rubbing is necesary, this time with powdered rottenstone and oil. Mix a paste as was done with the pumice and then rub with a pad of clean felt or similar material in straight strokes with the grain. When the surface has been polished to the desired degree of luster, wipe off the paste with a clean cloth.

HEART OF THE HOME

Don't Neglect Your Fireplace

In hundreds of Marin dwellings the hearth is truly the heart of the home.

Yet it is surprising, interior decorators will tell you, how many of these homes fail to take full advantage of the potentialities of the fireplace.

Often you walk into an otherwise beautifully decorated home, only to find the fireplace little more than a stark, blackened gaping hole—or a hodge-podge of conflicting fixtures, accessories and gimcracks.

And very frequently some simple addition—or a bit of subtraction—will turn an out-of-place fireplace into a real asset to the home.

Here's a checklist to help you determine whether you are fully capitalizing upon your fireplace:

Q. Does your fireplace equipment fit with the fireplace design? Does it blend with the overall picture, yet lend an effect of richness and color? Is it clean and shining, or blackened and discolored —vintage 1890?

A. Fireplace equipment is available in a very wide range of styles and materials — brass, bronze, copper, nickel, Swedish steel, etc. Your local fireplace equipment dealer can advise you on the problems pertaining to all fireplace accessories. If your fireplace equipment is basically sound and harmonizes with the room decor, it can frequently be cleaned and relacquered to restore its original beauty. However, if you do decide to give your hearth a lift with new accessories, remember that there are no "bargains in equipment. Here, as elsewhere, you get what you pay for.

Q. Does the general design of the fireplace blend with the overall decor?

A. If you aren't certain of the answer, ask the aid of an interior decorator, who will advise you for a very reasonable fee. If your fireplace needs alteration, you can often change its whole appearance with a coat of paint, some wood paneling or in any number of inexpensive ways.

Q. Is your hearth cluttered with non-essentials.

A. Homeowners seem to want to display all of their most prized possessions in the hearth area. Perhaps the reason why so many modern fireplaces are designed without mantels is to encourage the stark simplicity that makes every fireplace more attractive. The answer to clutter is to select one or two outstanding accessories and highlight them.

Big Plants Are Decorating Aid

Sometimes you have to wait a while—and save—until you can afford to buy all of the furniture your heart is set upon.

A green thumb will come in handy. While you are nurturing the savings account, you can use some big plants to fill up the empty places and balance the furniture arrangements. The half-empty wall will some day have more bookcases and stacking units. Meanwhile, you can fill it with these plants.

California Gardeners Too Often Overlook State's Native Plants

Nature has been kind to Californians. While it has shorted us on rain, it has still given us exciting native plants that seem to do without it.

As one English plantsman has said: "California is that country of flowers."

However, how many of us have profited from nature's gift? Far too often we snub our own native trees and shrubs, choosing for some reason to fight nature instead of swimming with her tide.

Aren't there areas in your own garden that could use plants which seem indifferent to drought and present a pleasant front despite neglect? We are tempted to suggest that there should be if there aren't.

And if you think the natives are common, you just don't know.

You can't see, or even read about, the lovely Matilija Poppy, for instance, without knowing it for a prince among plants. The lovely blooms with their crepe-like white petals and prominent orange stamens are only one of Matilija Poppy's recommendations. Its grayish-green foliage is a permanent attraction.

Our "Native Lilacs" present a varied number of garden attractions from ground-hugging creepers to prominent background shrubs and small trees. The gardener will appreciate the crisp foliage and clean blooms mainly in shades of blue, which the many forms offer.

There are almost too many to list: The showy yellow blooms of the Tree Poppy—eye catchers in any garden; the myriad white flowers of Bush Anemone; the golden-yellow blooms of Fremontia—all the richer for the coppery foliage against which they bloom; and the shining red berries of our Toyon or Christmas Berry. They are all fitted to garden use; and if you try them, you won't go wrong.

LILACS FOR MARIN

Here Are Some Varieties That Thrive In Our Area

Lilacs are shubs of memories.

So often have poets sung their praises that most of us—whether we've grown them or not—view lilacs with a certain nostalgia. And if you grew up in a colder climate than this, your memory of these beauties of spring is no doubt strong, indeed.

Why more Californians do not treat themselves to "Lilac time" is anyone's guess. Likely as not, however, it's because many people are not familiar with the varieties bred and grown for this climate.

In an earlier day, when lilacs were imported direct from the East, they found conditions so different that they often sulked. Lilacs offered by nurserymen today are a different story.

Wait until you've cut the fragrant blue flower heads of Clarke's Giant, the delicate lavender blooms of Sweetheart or the pink Esther Staley. There are countless more, and not the least of them is Lavender Lady, a recent introduction which really thrives in the Marin going.

Lilacs like a sunny spot in your garden, warm in summer and as cool as a sunny exposure allows in winter. They are bare root this time of year and should be planted with the bud union well below the surface—three inches at least.

Lilacs bloom each spring on new growth from the previous year, so the gardener should aim at encouraging all the new growth he can. This means heavy watering after bloom and through early summer. Once the growth is attained, however, you can slack off. The shrubs are actually better for being kept on the dryish side when fall approaches.

We know it hurts to pass up bloom, but all flower buds should be removed during the first year. Lilacs reach their full stride in the third year and after that they'll repay your first year's loss with plenty of bloom. Be sure to cut these as you need them. Flower heads should be removed as they fade, anyway, and what's the good of waiting 'til then?

A CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Early planting of dormant roses is preferable to late-season planting. The shrubs have more chance to establish themselves before spring growth starts.
- Crabgrass controls can be applied now to kill seeds that are awaiting spring germination. Ask your nurseryman to recommend a product for the job.
- Post-Christmas care of gift plants includes plenty of water and an occasional breather outside the stuffiness of a heated room.
- Prune grapes and berries now or next month. When in doubt, ask your nurserymen for pruning advice.
- Fuchsias should not be pruned until later—not before February at least.

Think Ahead For Next Spring Now

Gardeners who think ahead are rare specimens. While others are trying to remedy past mistakes, they are planning for the months to come.

If you would be such a rare specimen yourself, start setting the stage for spring right now. Don't be satisfied with planting a few bulbs and figuring on adding other things later. Plant the bulbs and add the other things at the same time.

It's a well know fact that perennials, for instance, will do better if planted now than if you wait for early spring to set them out. Their roots take hold during the cool months and sturdier, more prolific plants are the result.

Set out Delphiniums now, also Canterbury Bells, Sweet William, Columbine and Gerbera. With the latter, perfect drainage is a must. Nurserymen suggest planting them with the crowns above the surface and keeping an eye out for any sign of water standing about them after a rain.

Annuals, likewise, do better with planting now. Some, as Pansies, show color in winter. Others, as Cineraria, will start showing it early in spring. Calendula, Fairy Primrose, Snapdragon and Viola will all help to make your spring a happy one if you plant them now.

All manner of spring shrubs can go in now or in the next few weeks.

Deciduous Trees Help Mark Changing Of The Seasons

You find gardeners in every block who shun deciduous trees and shrubs because "they are so bare in winter time." To us, they miss the point.

We seek this very bareness as a reminder of seasonal change in a land where seasons change so little. A deciduous plant's return to life after winter's sleep can be a highlight of spring.

The flowering deciduous shrubs concern us here. They are many and varied, but any member of the California Assn. of Nurserymen will tell you that some do better than others in given areas. Check with your neighborhood nurseryman to see which are best for you.

Flowering Quinces start showing color early in the New Year and keep going well into spring. They are well adapted to our climate. So too, are the delightful Pomegranates, with foliage and flower to match the freshness of spring. Decorative fruits follow the first red blooms and coincide with blooms to follow.

Viburnums reward the gardener with lovely white-to-pinkish flower heads in late winter and early spring—as fragrant with their perfume as any blooming thing. Some are evergreen, some are deciduous. We're thinking of the latter.

Saucer Magnolias are slow to start blooming when very young, but patience is amply rewarded in later years when they are profuse with tulip-like blooms of white to pink and even purple. The smaller Star Magnolia has no reluctance to show off right from the start.

As to deciduous trees, if you're looking for bloom, look to the flowering fruits. They often provide the most spectacular show of spring. Flowering Peaches, Flowering Cherries and Plums are without peer when full of bloom. Plant them and you'll greet the spring in a fashion no one could argue with.

A Touch Of Orient In Marin

HORIZONTAL REDWOOD SIDING with vertical batten trim was used in the exterior of the home of Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence Vireno of 18 Balboa Street, San Rafael. The deck overlooking the pool is reached through sliding glass doors from the family room. The paved pool area provides plenty of room for sunbathing at the edge of the pool. Custom Builders-Parnow Bros. constructed the house and the pool. (Photos by Ken Molino)

Taking advantage of the contours of a gently sloping lot, Custom-Builders-Parnow Bros. of San Rafael built a two-level, three-bedroom, two-bath home to meet the requirements of Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence Vireno at 18 Balboa Street in the Villa Real of San Rafael.

A graceful oval-shaped pool by the same builders accents the lower end of the property and is reached by easy steps from the convenient shower rooms and playrooms on the lower floor. A spacious deck off the comfortable family room overlooks the poolside activities from top side.

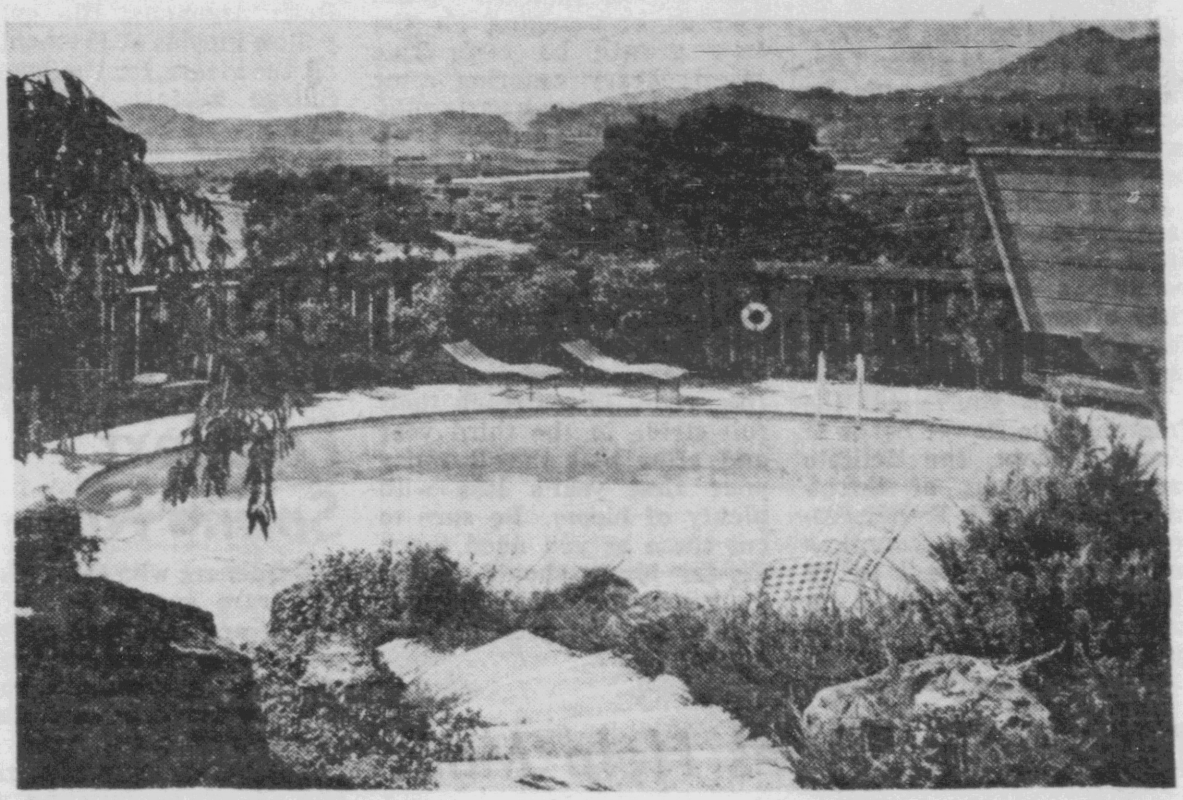
AN ORIENTAL theme in interior decor, as well as exterior landscaping, gives harmony to the house and grounds. George Mirata, landscape architect, has chosen plantings to carry out the oriental scheme, and has added a delightful Japanese tea house on the graveled walkway leading to the pool area, where a miniature waterfall is the focal point in the patio.

A Japanese Hinoki tree is framed by a handsome Shoji screen decorating the breezeway which leads to the main entrance on the upper level. A skylight in the covered breezeway makes the entry light and cheerful. Exterior redwood horizontal siding is accented with vertical battens and stained a soft grey tone.

Soothing grey was also employed by Custom Builders in the living room walls, where the Philippine mahogany panels were stained a grey-green shade.

Featured in the living room is the unusual double fireplace which also serves the adjacent family room. Dramatizing the stunning black fireplace on the living room side is an Oriental carving in gold. The living room carpet repeats the grey tone. The ceiling is in warm white. Teak furnishings in the living room accented with burnt orange cushions add a pleasing contrast. From the living room a door leads to a downstairs bedroom and bath and the playroom-shower section for the pool, while the carpeted entry hall gives access to other rooms on the upper level.

ON THE OTHER side of the double fireplace is the pleasant family room. The same tone of grey-green stain is used in this room for the Philippine mahogany walls, with ceiling and fireplace finished in warm white. Custom Builders used a cork tile floor. Louvered doors fold back to make the bar available for entertaining. Brown, gold and orange accents are used to complement the informal rattan furnishings. Sliding doors open onto a large deck which commands a view of Tamalpais and the Bay in the distance plus the landscaped pool area. Landscape construction for the Virenos was also done by Custom Builders-Parnow Bros.



EASY STAIRS lead from the oval-shaped pool to the patio area of the Vireno home in Villa Real. Rocks and planting in the Oriental manner complete the picture of good living. See facing page for additional photos.

Following the open plan arrangement, the kitchen and dining area adjoin the family room, with only a decorative wrought iron separation. The cork flooring is continued, and the warm white ceiling is repeated. Excellent storage space is provided in the well-arranged square kitchen. Cabinets are finished in the same soft grey tone throughout the house and blend well with the stainless steel stove, refrigerator oven and hood.

Charcoal rice paper is featured in the dining area. A parchment lantern light fixture and Chinese figurines provide a continuation of the Oriental motif. From the dining area a door leads to the patio at the side of the house where the eye-catching Japanese waterfall is a center of interest.

Master bedroom and bath on the upper level repeat the color scheme of subtle greys, which provide an appropriate background for the Oriental decorative motif of the Vireno home.

MRS. VIRENO'S interest in Oriental art objects began several years ago when she acquired three decorative panels, which are now displayed in the entry hall. This led to an interesting collection of ceramics, metal work and furnishings by Orental artists and craftsmen.

Dr. Vireno, who has dental offices in San Francisco, and his wife have lived in Marin County since 1946. They moved into their home in Villa Real three years ago. They have derived much pleasure from developing the home and grounds. And collecting suitable Oriental objects to enhance their home has become something of a hobby with Mrs. Vireno.

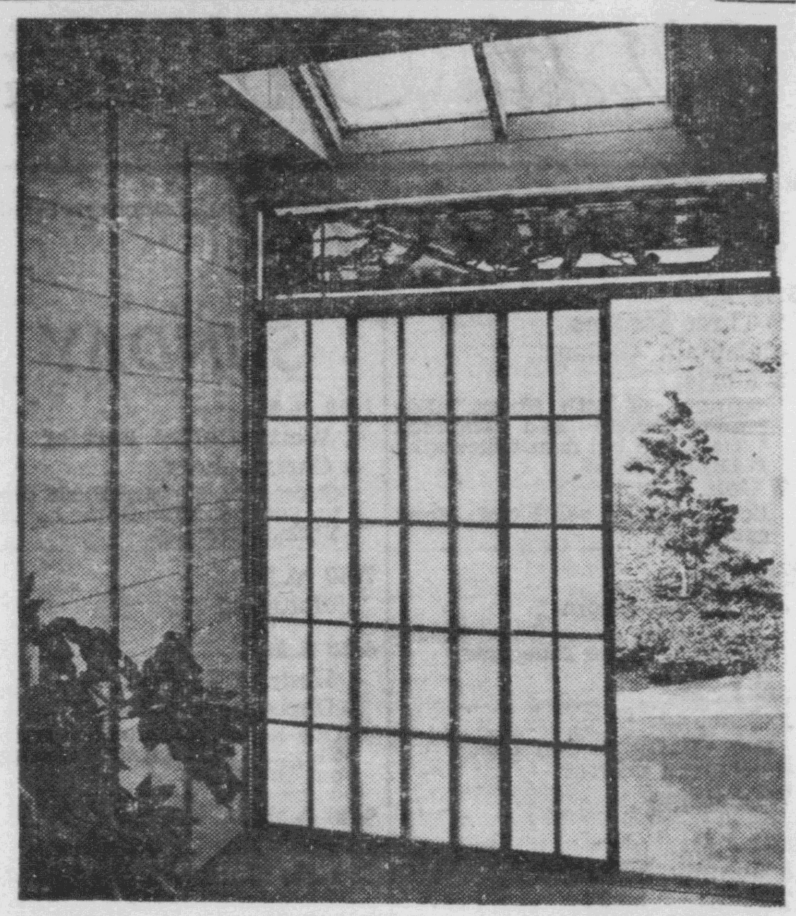
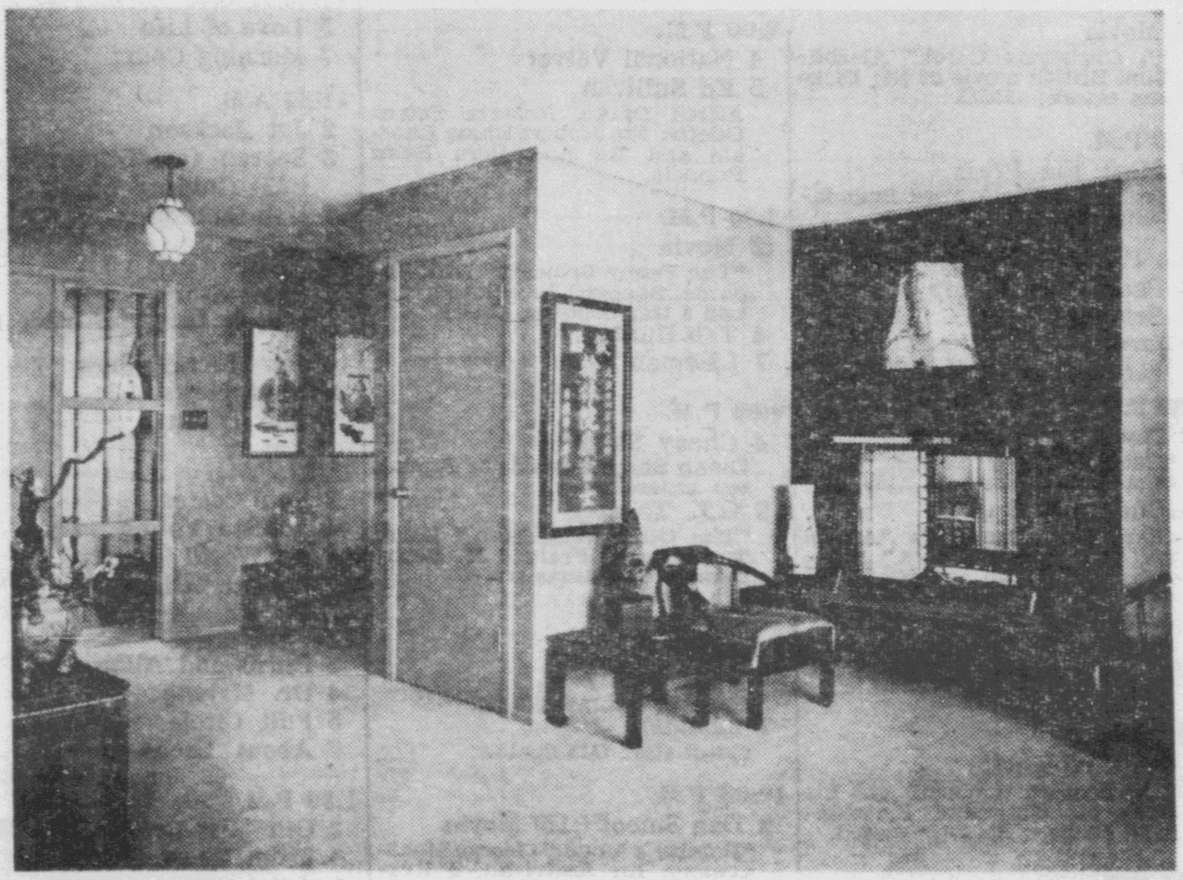
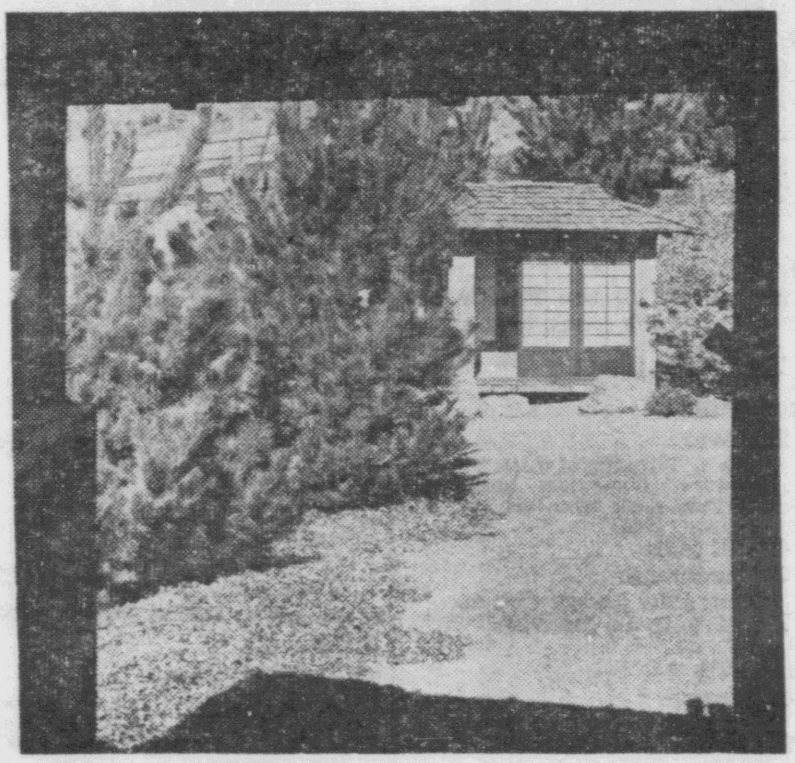
DECORATIVE wrought iron divides the family room from the kitchen and dining area in the San Rafael home of Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence Vireno. Ample storage and work space is provided in the kitchen. Charcoal formica is used for counter tops. Wall and cabinets are painted a soft grey to blend with stainless steel appliances. Oriental tables and chairs are black with silver trim. The door leads to the patio area.



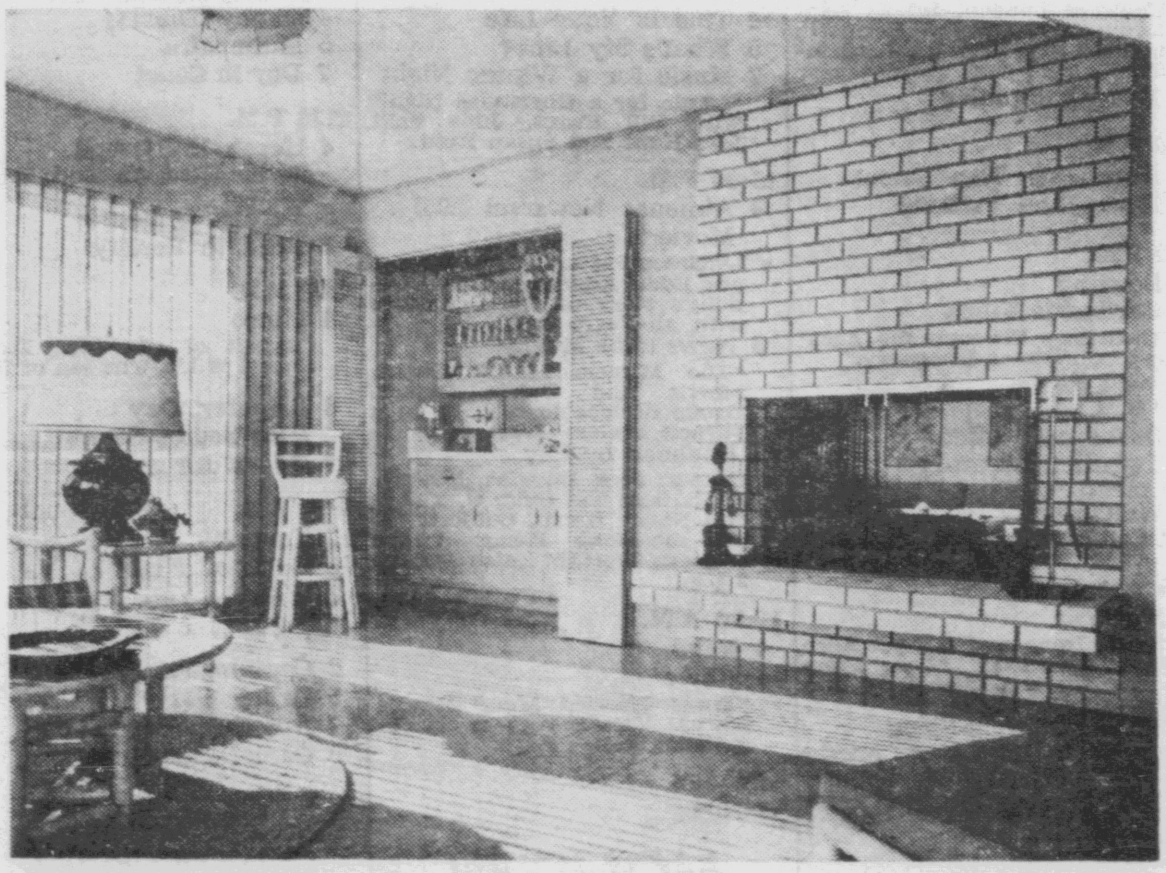
FRAMED IN A Shoji screen, a picturesque Hinoki tree typifies the Oriental theme used in the decor and landscaping of the Vireno home. Entry to the home, built by Custom Builders-Parnow Bros., is through this breezeway. Carving in redwood points up the Oriental motif. The horizontal redwood siding is stained a soft grey.



A SUBTLE grey-green stain on Philippine mahogany paneling provides an appropriate background for teak furnishings and Oriental art objects in the Vireno home. The unusual two-way fireplace is a focal point of the living room and goes through to the adjacent family room. The black fireplace provides a perfect foil for the gold Oriental woodcarving.



A JAPANESE teahouse on the grounds of the Lawrence Vireno home is one of the interesting Oriental touches planned by landscape architect George Mirata. A miniature waterfall is another unusual feature. Hardy pines and ground cover of Periwinkle make the garden easy to care for.



THE OTHER SIDE of the two-way fireplace is seen in the comfortable Vireno family room. Matchstick draperies are pushed aside to reveal sliding glass doors which open onto a spacious deck overlooking the pool area. The bar can be concealed by louvered doors. Flooring is cork tile.

Television To Bring Christmas Eve Services Into Your Living Room

CHRISTMAS EVE services as conducted by several of the world's great religious denominations in some of this country's most famous places of worship will be carried by the television networks tonight.

Such services will begin at 11 p.m. and continue into the early morning hours. Included will be Roman Catholic, Episcopalian, Dutch Reform and Russian Orothdox rites.

Climaxing this solemn programming will be a half-hour crib and carol service entitled "The West Is Bright," to be broadcast from the Franciscan Mission in San Diego at 12:30 a.m. on KPIX-TV (Channel 5).

Other Christmas Eve programs:

A program of Christmas carols beginning at 11:15 p.m. on KRON-TV (Channel 4) and featuring three of the country's outstanding industrial musical organizations—the U.S. Steel Swing Vo-Chestra of Gary, Ind.; the Gary Steelworks Goodfellow Carollers; and the Illinois Bell Telephone Co. Choir of Chicago.

Lawrence Welks' traditional Christmas party featuring his Music Makers with their families, 9 p.m., KGO-TV (Channel 7).

Wisely ABC-TV is dispensing with its weekly boxing show tonight at 7, and instead KGO will be carrying a special film of 1960 sports highlights.

BOTH OLD AND new is included in an attractive holiday package of Christmas Day programming scheduled for the Bay Area channels. And the "old" may very well prove to be the best of the two categories.

For instance, the re-broadcast of last year's award-winning "Christmas Startime" special scheduled for 5 p.m. on KPIX. This is the superb show featuring Marian Anderson, the Cathedral Boys' Choir of London, and Leonard Bernstein and his New York Philharmonic.

Or that now well-established TV Christmas tradition, Gian Carlo Menotti's opera, "Amahl and the Night Visitors." It will be seen at 4 p.m. on KRON.

Two movie versions of Charles Dickens' immortal "A Christmas Carol" will be shown during the day—a British production at 2:30 p.m. on KPIX, an American picture at 10:30 a.m. on KGO.

Walt Disney will parade some of his all-time cartoon favorites in his Christmas Day show at 6:30 p.m. on KGO. And Dick Stewart will host a locally-originated cartoon party for the small fry for KPIX beginning at 4 p.m. and featuring some of that station's newly-acquired "Mr. Magoo" laughfests.

As for the new:

"Christmas U.S.A.", 8 a.m., KPIX, will give you a one-hour panoramic view of holiday celebrations throughout the country. Included will be music by the Mormon Tabernacle Choir of Salt Lake City and a Harlem choir performing a new cantata by poet Langston Hughes.

"Music for a Christmas Night" at 10:30 p.m. on KGO featuring June Valli, Bill Hayes and others.

A "Shirley Temple Show" production of "Babes in Toyland" with Shirley, Jonathan Winters, Jerry Colona, young Angela Cartwright and others at 7 p.m. on KRON. (A movie version of the Victor Herbert operetta starring Laurel and Hardy will be seen on KPIX at 1 p.m.).

"The Rag Tent," an hour-long drama based on Henri Gheon's "Christmas in the Marketplace," is the "Directions '61" holiday offering on KGO at 1 p.m.

"Santa's Workshop" opens a new season for ventriloquist Paul Winchell and his sidekicks Jerry Mahoney and Knucklehead Smiff at 4:30 p.m. on KGO.

And "The Other Wise Man," the G.E. Theater's special Christmas attraction is based on a story written in 1895 by Henry van Dyke, and will be seen on KPIX at 9 p.m.

LATER IN the week:

On Monday — KTVU-TV (Channel 2) will repeat the award-winning documentary, "The Race for Space," at 7:30 p.m.; and KPIX will carry a report on the tragic holiday slaughter on our highways at 8 p.m. Earlier in the day, starting at 8:45 a.m., KRON will air pro football's championship game.

On Tuesday—KGO's "Expedition California" will tell the story of the birth and early growth of San Francisco at 7 p.m.; KQED (Channel 9) will carry what has been termed one of the most controversial discussions of the "Open End" series with a number of entertainment world figures exploring a wide range of topics at 8:30 p.m.; and KRON will present a repeat of "After Hours," a spoof on psychiatry starring Tony Randall at 10 p.m.

On Wednesday — KTVU's "Play of the Week" will be in a lighter vein than usual. It's the comedy, "The Girls in 509" with Nancy Walker and Larry Blyden, at 8 p.m.

On Thursday — KRON will show a 90-minute version of "Victory at Sea," the fine World War II documentary, starting at 9:30 p.m.; and the CBS news staffers will gather from around the world to make their annual roundtable observations at 10 p.m. on KPIX.

On Friday—NBC correspondents will hold their annual year-end gabfest at 9 p.m. (KRON); and at 8:30 KQED will present its third showing of the BBC version of Maxim Gorky's "Lower Depths."

And next Saturday—A big weekend of holiday football gets under way with the Blue-Gray all-star game (10:45 a.m. on KRON); the Gator Bowl game pitting Florida against Baylor ((11 a.m. on KPIX), and San Francisco's Shrine East-West classic (1:45 p.m. on KRON).

EDUCATIONAL Channel 9 has scheduled a repeat of the Sausalito Little Theater musical melodrama, "East of the Rockies," for next Friday at 5:30 p.m. It's the colorful show which had such a successful run on the Sausalito stage last summer.

WORLD OBSERVES CHRISTMAS EVE

President Lights Nation's Yule Tree; 3,000 Pilgrims Gather At Jerusalem

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Festive parties and religious observances marked Christmas Eve from the newest nations of Africa to Europe, America and Asia.

African carol singers in flowered costumes paraded the streets of Lagos, Nigeria, in 91-degree temperatures and 90-degree humidity, celebrating their first Christmas Eve as an independent nation.

Near-zero temperatures, laced with blizzards, gripped the Northeastern United States from the Upper Mississippi Valley to the seaboard.

President Eisenhower, lighting the nation's Christmas tree in Washington last night, expressed gratefulness "for all the material comforts with which we have been blessed." But he urged the nation to look seriously at its imperfections — racial prejudices and apathy toward violations of law and standards of public and private integrity.

NO MAN'S LAND

Pilgrims from far corners of the world in unprecedented numbers made the devout trek to the manger scene in Bethlehem. About 3,000 of them passed through Jerusalem's Mandelbaum Gate and the no man's land between Israel and Jordan.

Most European countries closed out one of the most prosperous Christmas sprees in history. Britain reported Christmas spending up 25 per cent over last year. Shopkeepers in Italy said they were running out of sable, mink and chinchilla.

OLIVE DRAB SANTA

In Korea, the Army is serving up 32 tons of turkey, plus trimmings. Many units will be visited by a Santa in a jeep with an olive drab duffle bag.

Three American prisoners were likely to have an austere Christmas in Soviet prisons. They are Francis Gary Powers of Pound, Va., pilot of the U-2 reconnaissance plane downed last May 1, and Capt. Freeman B. Olmstead of Elmira, N.Y., and Capt. John R. McCone of Topeka, Kan., among those aboard an RB47 reconnaissance bomber shot down over the Barents Sea July 1.

BEHIND CURTAIN

Communist regimes behind the Iron Curtain took varied ways of dealing with this year's Christmas. In some, such as Romania, Bulgaria and Albania, the Communists have tried to purge the old customs of Christmas Eve and turned Christmas into a regular work day.

In others, such as Poland, Hungary and Czechoslovakia, the authorities have decided to tolerate Christmas, permitting trees and midnight church services.

Radio Free Europe announced it will carry several hours of Christmas broadcasts daily during the holiday season to Eastern Europe.

BULLETIN

A Christmas Eve house fire gutted the attic at the home of George A. Ballantyne, 320 Laurel Place, San Rafael, this afternoon.

"The attic just went up in flames," said Ballantyne. "I don't know what started it." The family was routed out of the home, but no one was reported hurt.

Dark smoke poured over the city and attracted hundreds of spectators.

Accidents Mar Yule Weekend

COMBINED AP & UPI

Traffic deaths across the country inched upwards today as the long Christmas holiday weekend got under way.

At least 10 persons were killed in California highway accidents, including one in Marin.

Icy or snow-packed highways were reported in many parts of the country. The National Safety Council issued a reminder that speeding and drinking have been foremost factors in Christmas holiday traffic fatalities in past years. The council estimated 510 persons may be killed on the highways this year.

By 2 p.m. today, 111 had been listed as dead in traffic accidents; 15 died in fires, and 14 others died in other accidents.

In brief some of the holiday tragedies involved:

Two dead in Boston explosions and fires.

A five-car crash on a fog-shrouded Oregon highway killed two.

Kennedy Fills Key Arms Job

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — President-elect John F. Kennedy today gave a key disarmament post in the new administration to Paul Nitze, a New York investment man turned foreign affairs expert on everything from strategic bombing to economics.

Nitze, 53 and a 1928 honors graduate of Harvard, was named assistant secretary of defense for international affairs.

Driver Of Stalled Bus Dies

A Mill Valley soldier was being held today on charges of felony hit-and-run driving and manslaughter after a Greyhound bus driver was struck and killed last night on Highway 101 south of the Richardson Bay Bridge.

The victim was Julius Nabers, 57, of 219 Los Gallinas Drive, Rafael Meadows, north of San Rafael.

He was struck down at 5:25 p.m. while standing alongside his stalled bus while his passengers looked on in horror.

Suspected as the driver of the car was M/Sgt. Edmund M. Thompson, 45 of 49 Roque Moraes Drive, Mill Valley. Thompson, stationed at the Presidio, San Francisco, turned himself in to Mill Valley police at midnight. No bail has been set.

The sergeant, the father of two teen-age children, told police he thought he had been involved in an accident.

According to the California Highway Patrol, Nabers had pulled his stalled bus onto the

Daughter Of Kents Hurt In Car Wreck

Molly Kent, 24-year-old daughter of State Democratic Central Committee chairman Roger E. Kent, was reported in good condition today in Marin General Hospital following an accident last night in which her face went through the windshield of her car.

According to the California Highway Patrol, Miss Kent's car ran broadside into a car driven by James Mark Lindsey, 16, Redwood High School junior of 165 Via Lerida in Greenbrae.

The accident happened on Bon Air Road at the entrance to Marin General Hospital where both drivers were taken following the crash.

Young Lindsey, who was pulling into the driveway of the hospital where he was to sing Christmas carols with a group of students, was treated for an injured wrist and released.

Miss Kent was taken from the car by Albert Carpenter, 35, a surgery nurse, at work when he heard the crash.

Miss Kent was treated for deep lacerations of the face, hospital attendants said.

She was home from her studies at New York University to visit her family for the holidays.

In another accident Edward James Mahoney III, 17 of Ross, received back injuries when the car in which he was riding rolled over last night on Kent Avenue in Kentfield.

Driver of the car was Andrew William McFarlane Campbell, 20. He told the California Highway Patrol his car skidded when he applied the brakes. Mahoney's condition at Marin General Hospital today was described as "good."

Quiet Worship Planned At Marin's Churches

Tonight — Christmas Eve — many Marin residents, along with Christians throughout the world, will put aside hectic seasonal activities to quietly worshop God in their respective churches, or as a family at home.

Some Marinites will spend the evening caroling, and then later along with others, attend candle-light services or Masses at midnight.

Tomorrow worship services will also be held in sanctuaries throughout the county in honor of the birth of Jesus in Bethlehem almost two millenniums ago.

At many services a profound and beautiful expressions of the significance of Christmas will be read. It is in the stanza of a poem in the ninth chapter of the Book of Isaiah, here in modern translation and verse form:

For unto us a child is born,
Unto us a son is given,
And His name is called—
Wonderful Counsellor,
Mighty God,
A Father Forever,
Prince of Peace.

A story on Marin church services is on pages 4 and 5.

Goldfine Wins Yule Release

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Boston industrialist Bernard Goldfine today won a Christmas Eve release from St. Elizabeth's Hospital, where he was confined for two months for mental treatment.

Goldfine, embroiled in a long battle with the government over nearly $800,000 in income taxes, was sent to the mental institution Oct. 18 after he was found incompetent to stand trial.

A federal judge ordered his release late yesterday and signed the formal order today permitting him to leave.

BANKS, OFFICES TO BE CLOSED; NO I-J MONDAY

Government offices, banks and most businesses will be closed Monday and there will be no mail deliveries tomorrow or Monday, except special deliveries and parcels.

The Independent-Journal will not publish Monday. Local news will be broadcast five times tomorrow and Monday on radio station KTIM.

Fair Christmas Weather Forecast

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Weather Bureau today gifted California with a fair weather prediction for Christmas except in the extreme north.

But something may be brewing before the New Year arrives. A large and strong storm is being charted in the Pacific. It is moving northeast toward the Gulf of Alaska.

Two Perish, 12 Injured In Two Boston Blasts

BOSTON (UPI) — The Charlestown waterfront area was shaken "like a big rocking boat" by two shattering explosions early today. Two persons were killed and 12 injured, five seriously.

"If this had happened an hour later we'd have had 200 dead instead of two," said a policeman at the scene.

The thundering twin blasts, believed caused by a gas leak, destroyed the newly reconstructed Diamond Nugget Cafe and the adjacent Purity Ice Cream Cone Co. and shattered windows for 100 yards in all directions. A three alarm fire flared out of control for nearly three hours in the debris.

The explosions came when the city square area of Charlestown was nearly deserted. Only a handful of persons including sailors from the nearby Charlestown Navy Yard and longshoremen were on the streets.

An hour later under ordinary circumstances on the day before Christmas, several hundred persons would have occupied the buildings hit by the blasts.

One of the victims was Benjamin Siegal, 42, owner of the cafe. Frederick Lyman, 16, one of three youths delivering oil in cans to apartments in the area, also was killed.

Boston police first described the blasts as a "major disaster," and based an estimate of four dead on apparently lifeless bodies picked up in the streets by firemen. Two of the bodies proved to be persons critically injured with severe burns.

Boy, 10 Burned Grabbing Wire

Steve Yates, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Yates of 614 Glenwood Avenue, Mill Valley, will be able to spend Christmas with his parents, but he will have to return to the hospital to undergo skin grafts to his left hand.

Yates grabbed an electric wire while climbing a tree at 603 Glenwood Avenue yesterday. He was thrown some 20 feet to the pavement.

He was admitted to the Marin General Hospital with burns on his left hand, and a slight concussion.

Holiday Spotlight On The Debutantes

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

The holiday spotlight is on the young women who will make their formal bow to society at the Cotillion at the Sheraton-Palace on Tuesday night. These weeks have been filled with balls and parties for the debutantes. One of the most spectacular and gayest of these events was the reception on Tuesday night given by Mr. and Mrs. William Kent Jr. for their grandniece, Evelyn Thacher (Lyn) Bossange at the Bohemian Club. It was like old home week with Lyn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edouard Bossange (Evelyn Arnold) of Syoset R.I. here for the event. Until they moved east last year the Bossanges lived in Kentfield, named for the family which included Lyn's grandmother, the late Mrs. G. Stanleigh Arnold (Elizabeth Kent) and her great grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. William Kent.

The pretty curly haired deb wore an American beauty peau de soie dress and carried a small bouquet of roses and carnations. Mrs. Kent's gown was a beige and gold brocade. Mrs. Bossange's royal blue dress was full skirted. With the hosts and her parents, Lyn received guests in the Red Room in front of white columns. The huge iced tree in the Owl Room held the gift orchids. The orchestra played for the dancers in the Art Gallery. It was certainly a three generation party with grandsons taking a whirl around the floor with their grandmothers. Among those pouring coffee (champagne and cocktails were also served) were relatives and close friends including Mesdames Thomas A. Thacher, Nichols Clark, A. Crawford Greene John Kittle, Benjamin Dibblee, Herbert O'Brien, John Cushing, Thomas T. Kent, Roger Kent, G. Stanleigh Arnold Jr., Peter Arnold and George Wolff.

Lyn's escort at the Cotillion will be Daniel Abbot, who is a member of another old and prominent Marin family. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Leonard Abbott (nee Foster) of Diablo.

AN EXTENDED VISIT in the East has been made by Mrs. Norman B. Livermore of Ross. She went to New York more than a month ago and remained over to celebrate the seventy-fifth birthday of her sister, Mrs. Clifford Mallory of New York City and Connecticut.

CHRISTMAS AT SEA is being enjoyed by Sandra Sommers, who, accompanied by her parents Capt. and Mrs. K. J. Sommers of Belvedere, is spending her vacation on the Mormaemar, which is heading north for Canada. Sandra is waiting Santa's arrival, via the smoke stack. The family will visit Ski Grouse Mountain in Vancouver and Mt. Hood in Oregon.

FROM LAUSANNE, Switzerland, I received a holiday greeting card, showing the cathedral and street scenes, from Zora and Dan Sweeney Jr. of Greenbrae. The wording is in French as that language predominates in Lausanne. Dan and Zora have been traveling for about half a year and their three sons have been studying in a Swiss school. They are spending the holidays at Zermatt near the Matterhorn and enjoying skiing. The family will return home in the spring.

TO INFORM friends of their change of address the Fred Figones state on their Christmas card "We've made our move" and give the address of the home they have just completed as 137 Oak Avenue, San Anselmo.

VISITING Mrs. M. Galloway Ferrin at her Kent Woodlands home are her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Galloway of Evanston, Ill., who arrived last Saturday for a weeks' visit. Tonight Mrs. Ferrin is entertaining at a Mexican Christmas Eve party complete with a pinata and Mexican food. In addition to her parents, Mrs. Ferrin will entertain Mrs. Alyce Reyburn and her three children, also Mr. and Mrs. James Lysle, Dr. Margaret Maroney, Mrs. Juliet Vennard and Dr. Gordon Knowles.

ON THE HOLIDAY CRUISE to Acapulco are Mr. and Mrs. Niels Schultz, Alvin and Michael Schultz and Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Sedwick of San Rafael.

IN THEIR NEW HOME for Christmas are Joseph and Margaret Rice. Their address is 60 Bogey Lane Marin Golf Club Estates. The house, which they have just completed, is on a hillside overlooking the clubhouse and golf course.

IN HAWAII for the holidays are the Joseph Hickingbothams Jr. and their daughter Heidi, who are headquartering at the Halekulani in Honolulu. Diana and her daughter went over first and Joe flew to Honolulu today. From Hawaii, the family will fly to Tahiti and will be back in San Rafael in about a month.

The Joseph Hickinbothams III (Catherine Moretti) are back in Marin and have a new home and are awaiting the birth of their baby in January. Since their marriage a year ago Joe and Catherine have been living in Glendale, Ore. (near Grant's Pass) where Joe was associated with the Robert Dollar Co. He has been transferred to the San Francisco office and he and his wife have bought and moved into the Sydney Dorn home on Coleman Drive, San Rafael. The Dorns have taken an apartment in Marina Landings on the San Rafael Canal until they find another place to buy.

Catherine Hickinbotham's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Moretti, former San Rafael residents, live in Fairfax, where they bought the Peter Barnato home.

IN SAN ANSELMO the John Hemingways held an open house at their home last night.

IN LOCH LOMOND, the Arthur Sauters hosted a large cocktail party on Sunday.

HOLIDAY VISITORS at the Gordon Ness home in San Rafael have been treated to an exhibition of the paintings of William E. Heron. Three of his paintings were loaned in time for the Ness' open house Sunday evening when Mr. Heron unveiled his portrait of Mrs. Ness for 60 guests.

Mr. Heron studied art in England and Scotland, Armstrong College, Newcastle-Upon-Tyne and at Glasgow Art School. He won first award from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for the best of 50 paintings for the movie, "Samson and Delilah. The artist has exhibited at the Detroit Institute of Arts, the National Art Festival in Provincetown, Mass. Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts and in the Arts and Letters Exhibition, University of Michigan. He is a member of Scarab Art Club of Detroit. Mr. and Mrs. Heron recently moved to San Rafael after traveling and painting along the California coast.

HONORING Jan Gilman, a tea was to be given by Mesdames Rolla B. Hess, William B. Morrissey and Arthur W. Feidler at the latter's San Rafael home on Tuesday. Jan pledged Alpha Omicron Pi, the sorority of the hostesses, at University of Oregon and has been elected president of her pledge class. Invited to the tea were friends and their sorority daughters who exchanged holiday greetings with Jan and her mother, Mrs. John Cary Gilman of Ross.

JUST ARRIVED as I was writing this column was a card with holiday greetings from Irene and Victor Wollman of Sausalito, who have been traveling about Europe for the past year. The card was sent from Spain, a delightful place to winter.

MRS. EDSON ADAMS of San Anselmo and her daughter Steffani, left by jet yesterday to spend the Christmas holidays with her mother, Mrs. Anis Robinson in El Centro. Edson joined them later flying his Stinson plane down. He and his wife will fly to Palm Desert to visit friends from the east. Steffani is going on to the White Mountains in Arizona with Mrs. Adams' sister, Mrs Egan R. Pulliam, and daughter, Janis, of El Centro. Edson and his wife will visit in Rolling Hills, Los Angeles with his niece, Mrs. John McCoid Bennett and her husband. On Monday Mrs. Adams lunched with Mrs. George Coburn and Mrs. Lewis Denton in the Mural Room of the St. Francis as a farewell.

AT HER HOME in Kent Woodlands, Mrs. Andrew Stockton is entertaining several groups. She will be hostess to about 40 friends at a cocktail party on Dec. 28. Tomorrow she will entertain relatives and several friends at a Christmas dinner. Among those present will be Mr. and Mrs. Larry Whiteside, George Stockton and his bride of four months (Sue Starbuck), Andrea Stockton, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lindauer, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pritchard and their three youngsters, Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Bowers and Bing Moy.

Marin Women

Couturier Collection Captivates Audience

The John Cavin Couturier collection completely captivated the Thursday audience at the Ondine who filled every nook and corner to watch "Fashions With View."

They forgot unwrapped packages, unmailed cards and their list of things-to-do, preferring to look, eye and long for each Cavin creation and to give tremendous applause to John Cavin as the "guest with a viewpoint."

They welcomed the designer and his family to their first Christmas in Marin after a move of bag, baggage, workshop and studio from Beverly Hills.

Now John Cavin, Ltd., will be located in the Industrial Center Building of Sausalito. There, Mr. Cavin will design and make his fashionable originals bringing great distinction to Marin with his tremendous talent, impeccable craftsmanship and superb styling. A number of the Cavin designs are copied to be sold to the most select shops in the country.

Opulent, exquisite fabrics characterize the Cavin collection, many fabrics were woven in India to the designer's specifications. Simple, uncluttered lines and pure genius treatment of the fabric, plus a harmony of color make every Cavin creation impossible to forget.

Christmas standouts from the Cavin collection were: "The Season's Ensemble," a subtle silk beau monde town sheath, collarless and sleeved highlighted by a long sleeveless tunich of tussah silk woven in India; Mrs. William Byron Wallace accenting it with a high hat of nut brown maline. "The Cape," a reversible interplay of citron and tangerine silk bound in black, striking over a citron sheath dramatically emphasized by Jane Mapes. "The Sari," pure gold in an intricate, lacy pattern edging the black silk sari from neckline to hem; the dress strapless and beautiful in the matching black and gold; Mrs. John Bellamy Jr. showed it. "The Ting A Ling," jingle bells on a shocking pink purple and cerise plaid silk tunic to ride over lavender at-home-tapers, Mrs. William Donohoe, the Christmas accent.

Mrs. Graves Becomes A Bride

The wedding of Beatrice Harnden McKinney Graves, formerly of Marin, to Dr. Frederick Walter Burlingame, well known San Francisco dentist, took place last Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Scotford on Broadway in San Francisco. Dr. Ethel Higgins, a Unity minister, officiated. Mrs. Gladys Harnden of San Francisco, mother of the bride, was her only attendant. Dr. Burlingame's son, David Burlingame, was best man.

The just wed couple first met on the Shrine cruise to Hawaii aboard the Matsonia last Spring. They went to Carmel on the honeymoon and are residing in an apartment at 242 Franklin Street, San Francisco.

The new Mrs. Graves lived in Santa Barbara for three years and following the death of her husband, Llewelyyn George Graves, moved to San Francisco a year ago. She two daughters, Mrs. L. Edward Hollis of Kentfield and Mrs. William C. Mendenhall of Sonoma.

Kennedy Going Slow On Slump Policies

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy is taking a cautious approach in deciding what the new administration will do about the business slump and unemployment.

He says there will be no decision regarding such controversial steps as tax cuts and pump-priming public works spending nutil after he has taken office Jan. 29.

Kennedy's go-slow policy on the problem was clear today as he slackened his work pace for the Christmas weekend and made ready to enjoy the holiday with his family at their ocean-front home.

Kennedy's only announced engagements during the day are with Rep. Abraham Multer (D-N.Y.), and Peruvian Sen. Juan M. Pena-Prado.

Kennedy headquarters said it had no advance information on the purpose of Multer's visit. He requested the appointment. Pena-Prado is bringing a message from Peru's President Manuel Prado.

The president-elect probably will get in another round of golf in the afternoon and then turn tonight to a traditional and happy assignment of many an American father. He plans to help trim the Christmas tree, assisted by daughter Caroline, 3, and hang stockings at the mantle.

John Fitzgerald Jr., who will be one month old tomorrow is being showered with Christmas presents — toys, dolls, clothes—from all sections of the country.

Kennedy's caution on the business slump and unemployment of more than four million was pointed up as he announced yesterday the appointment of Walter W. Heller, University of Minnesota economist and tax expert, as chairman of his Council of Economic Advisers.

Heller said there has been a business recession the last six months and that the economy has been lagging for 3½ years.

This was Kennedy's answer when asked what he plans to do about what he last week called the lack of vigor in the nation's economy.

"By the end of January," he told his news conference, "we will be able to take a much better judgment as to what the prognosis is for the economy. But I think it would be premature to try to do it now."

During the campaign Kennedy said he favors keeping the federal budget in balance except in times of serious business recession or depression, or in event of a national emergency.

His problem after inauguration will be to decide whether the business dip and unemployment are severe enough to warrant spending more than the government takes in.

Terra Linda Group Pushes For Annex

Proponents of Terra Linda annexation today called on the Dixie School District and the Community Services District not to throw any further stumbling blocks in the path of annexation.

Anton T. Lonich, chairman of the Annexation Committee, issued the statement, as the annexation movement got a new lease on life. The county counsel and the city attorney of San Rafael yesterday disclosed that Dixie School District's protest had failed to stop the proposed annexation proceedings that would bring Terra Linda into San Rafael.

Lonich said:

"Our group is disturbed that the Dixie School District Trustees and the C.S.D. Directors have seen fit to protest the proposed annexation. Obviously they are attempting to perpetuate themselves in power. Their personal desire for political gain and importance has unfortunately overwhelmed their sense of good judgment. By their petty actions and small minded tactics they are endeavoring to frustrate and impede a democratic process."

Two Meetings Scheduled By County Board

Marin County's Board of Supervisors will finish the old year with two meetings during next week instead of the usual one.

The second, tentatively set for Thursday by decision reached after adjournment of the meeting last Tuesday, will convene at an hour to be agreed but probably 9 or 10 a.m.

It is expected to settle the reappointment of or successor to Leland H. Murphy of Inverness as director of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District. His current term will expire Wednesday.

Prospect for a change, considered strong some time ago, is understood to have weakened since the San Francisco supervisors reappointed two directors and gave endorsement of the way the bridge affairs are being handled.

Thursday's meeting will be the last for two supervisors, Mrs. Vera Schultz of Mill Valley who is to be replaced by J. Walter Blair, and James A. Marshall who is to give way to George Ludy as West Marin supervisor. There have been rumors that the two outgoing members have some final business, nature unspecified, to be taken up Thursday.

During the Tuesday morning session the board will complete arrangements for exchange of some Civic Center property with the Smith brothers. This will pave the way to awarding of a contract for excavation and grading at Civic Center and fairgrounds, the low bid of nine having been one of $111,424 by J. W. Richards of Rio Vista, Solano County.

Set for 2 p.m. are 10 planning matter including tentative map of 15-acre Montecito Heights near Novato, development plans for the Marinero planned residential area at Red Hill on Tiburon Peninsula as well as Red Hill Unit No. 1, and rezoning at Dillon's Beach.

No Decision Yet On Post, Democrat Says

Mrs. Elizabeth Smith of Kentfield, appointed United States treasurer last week, said today that she does "not indefinitely" plan on retaining her post as California's Democratic national committeewoman.

Mrs. Smith, who will leave Marin Jan. 15 for the East coast, noted that she "will be busy enough" with her new duties but added, "I expect to come back to California frequently until June."

She said that she has been too busy this week to give the matter much thought.

Her replacement as national committeewoman must be voted on by the executive committee of the Democratic State Central Committee, Mrs. Smith said. This body is not slated to meet until around the third weekend in March.

When asked if she planned to hand in her resignation, she answered that she had not made a decision and that it was "not the most pressing matter at the moment."

Mrs. Smith expects to be sworn in as treasurer of the United States Jan. 20 in Washington, D.C.

She resides at 21 Rancheria Road, Kentfield.

Three women have been mentioned as possible successors to Mrs. Smith. They are: Nancy Swadesh of Mill Valley, State Central Committee member; Martha Jane Morrison of San Francisco, women's vice chairman for Northern California; and Eleanor Heller of Atherton, former national committeewoman.

Novato Pair Announce Sale Of Market

The Food Fair in Novato will open the new year under new ownership.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jonas announced today they are selling the Food Fair to Mr. and Mrs. Dan Blaga of Novato. The Blagas have been in the grocery business for 18 years.

Jonas will operate a new store at Ignacio, where he will open his second Roger Wilco market. His other market is in Petaluma.

The Blagas will be assisted at the Food Fair by their son, who graduated from Novato High School last summer.

There will be no change in the management at present. Jonas, Dick Walker, Arnold Walker and Kenny Rowland will all retain their managing jobs until they move to Jonas' new store at Ignacio.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Home For Yule

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Twenty-eight surviving crewmen from the storm-wrecked tanker Pine Ridge were at home with their loved ones today or on their way.

Only chief engineer John Richart,the 29th survivor, faced a not-so-merry Christmas as he remained aboard the stern section of the broken vessel at sea.

Seven of the Pine Ridge's crew were lost when the ship broke in two Wednesday night.

On the stern section with Richart were four crewmen from the commercial tug Curb, which is towing the stern to Newport News, Va. Another tug, the Lamberts Point, and the Coast Guard cutter Cherokee remained alongside. The towing job is expected to take about 48 hours.

Nasser Warning

CAIRO (AP) — President Gamel Abdel Nasser has threatened Israel with a shooting war if it starts construction of an atomic bomb.

The United Arab Republic leader warned that "it means the beginning of war between us" if Israel's new atomic reactor in the Negev desert is used to build a nuclear weapon. He declared the U.A.R. would attack the "base of aggression."

Nasser spoke for two hours last night before cheering crowds commemorating the British and French troop withdrawal after the Suez war in 1956.

Ike Orders Pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the closing days of his administration, President Eisenhower has taken a strong stand on refusing to turn over documents demanded by a House subcommittee investigating foreign aid.

The president acted on a provision Congress wrote into the act that created the inspector general's office in the State Department.

The provision said that all funds for the office would be stopped if the office refused to turn over documents requested by Congress.

Eisenhower said yesterday that to turn over the documents would be an invasion of executive privilege. He ordered the Treasury to write checks to cover the pay of the employes.

Laos Talks Refused

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States says bluntly it never will agree to a Russian proposal for a new Geneva conference to end the civil war in Laos as long as the Soviet Union gives arms to pro-Communist rebels.

This country charged Russia with a "double violation" of the 1954 Indochina war armistice—first by sending weapons to Red forces in Laos and second by airlifting them in through North Viet Nam.

The U.S. position was spelled out yesterday.

The U.S., which is sending military aid to the pro-Western forces in Laos, reacted with almost unprecedented speed to the Soviet proposal for a new Geneva conference, made in a note to Britain.

Traffic Jam

BLYTHE (Riverside County) (UPI)—Destruction by fire of a bridge on U.S. 60-70 last night caused a massive traffic jam involving up to 1,000 vehicles, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Officers said westbound traffic alone was backed up 1½ miles and motorists traveling between Los Angeles and Phoenix, Ariz., were rerouted at Desert Center.

The fire, of undetermined origin, destroyed a bridge 37 miles west of here.

Weather Warmer

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A bitter cold wave that plunged temperatures to record lows yesterday gave way to more seasonable weather today including more snow for broad areas of the Midwest eastward into the Northeast.

The frigid temperatures moderated gradually during the night.

The warm front and accompanying cloud cover responsible for the rising temperatures behind the cold wave also brought snow to Kentucky and Tennessee northward into the Great Lakes region and northwest to Minnesota and the Dakotas.

Temperatures climbed to the 40s and 50s in southern Texas and southern Florida.

No Paychecks

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — New Orleans teachers planned a mass meeting today after the school integration hassle prevented some 5,500 of them from receiving their December paychecks.

The local unit of the Louisiana Teachers Association called the meeting to discuss "the teacher pay issue." There were rumors of a teachers walkout after the Christmas holiday if salaries are not paid.

No Negligence Seen

NEW YORK (AP) — The deadly, disastrous fire on the aircraft carrier Constellation was the result of an unforeseeable chain of circumstances and not caused by general negligence or by an individual, says the commandant of the Brooklyn Navy yard.

The fire took 49 lives and did an estimated total of $75 million damage.

Hall Riots View

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Judge Albert A. Axelrod, presiding judge of the San Francisco Municipal Court, said today "I very definitely agree" with the view of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover Thursday that the City Hall riot last May 13 was instigated by Communist subversives.

Judge Axelrod said in an interview that his dismissal of riot charges against 62 arrested persons, mostly college students, had been misinterpreted by some people as condoning the disorders during a hearing by the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Salvation Army Aids Marinites

This week the Salvation Army distributed some 55 food baskets — which included a ham and trimmings for a Christmas dinner — to needy families in Marin County.

This act was part of the Salvation Army's Christmas effort in Marin and a small portion of the organization's world-wide effort, reported Virgil Getchell, representative of the army's Redwood Empire area.

He said that the gesture was "one way of meeting the need at the point of need."

"The reason members of the organization attempt to meet material needs as well as assist people spiritually, is because members of the army themselves are spiritually motivated," said Getchell.

While those in the organization or those who aid it are concerned with the material well being of others, they are also "and perhaps more concerned that others will come to an individual knowledge of God through Jesus Christ," Getchell declared.

The baskets distributed this week were prepared on the basis of the situations revealed in applications received for the help, and it was hoped that the ham and all the trimmings would be enjoyed tomorrow, Christmas Day. Included with the food was the organization's magazine, War Cry.

The Marin Christmas-relief headquarters is temporarily located at 1840 Fourth Street in San Rafael, and the organization's pickup station and Thrift Shop is at 910 Lincoln Avenue in the same city.

Although regular full-time members of the army are in continual contact with the Marin headquarters and efforts locally, the actual workers in the county are all volunteers. In addition to the Christmas giving which also included "Sunshine" baskets for rest homes, hospitals and institutions, the Salvation Army raises money for the rehabilitation of alcoholics and for children's summer camps.

Beverly A. Sill, manager of the Corte Madera office of the First National Bank in San Rafael, is chairman of the county committee, newly organized this summer.

Study Shows Building Costs Have Risen, But Not A Lot

Despite spiraling prices of labor and materials, the actual cost of building a house in Marin today is less than 8 per cent above what it was 10 years ago.

E. Dougas Roberts, manager of the Marin Builders Exchange, has the signed bids to prove it.

Roberts, a man who believes in getting the facts, sets up a comparison test to learn just what had happened to building costs in the last decade.

Today's house is not the same as those built in 1950. It is likely to contain many improvements which add to the cost. So for text purposes, Roberts decided to call for bids on an actual Marin dwelling built a decade ago.

In selecting a home suitable as a "comparison residence," consideration had to be given to the type of dwelling, availability of architectural plans, use of equivalent building materials, topography of the site and other factors which would make the comparison test a fair one. The idea was turned over to a committee consisting of Etienne Rolin. Don Presco and Ernest Schallenberger.

The home selected was that of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Douglass on Loma Avenue, Tiburon, a typical Marin dwelling of some 1,500 square feet, with three bedrooms, two baths and a 380-square-foot carport. It was built on a hillside view lot of approximately one-third of an acre, but the house site had been graded level, thereby offering for all practical purposes a house on a concrete slab foundation on a level lot.

Plans for the home as originally submitted for bids in 1950 were obtained from architect Eugene E. Crawford of San Rafael and the original bids themselves were dug out of the files.

Some modifications of materials specifications had to be made to allow for changes and substitutions now in use—aluminum sash, for example, which is more commonly used today in place of steel sash, but at no increase in cost.

While the Douglasses eventually built the home with some variations from original specifications and subsequently made other improvements, these were not included.

In setting up the test, the Marin Builders Exchange could not foresee the outcome. It was hoped that findings would establish that present day home costs are higher principally by reason of increased lot values. But wage scales, with fringe benefits, in the construction crafts have been hiked considerably over 10 years ago. The average increase in the four basic crafts — electricians, plumbers, carpenters and painters — has been about 74 per cent.

Checking out the cost of materials showed that structural lumber is about the same, redwood rustic has risen about 8 per cent, sheetmetal 31 per cent, reinforcing steel 26 per cent and concrete 31 per cent.

One fact did show up to bear out the thought that the price differential in lot values was considerably more. The original housesite was valued at $5,000; present value was authoritatively set at $18,000—a 260 per cent increase.

Plans and specifications were submitted for bid to Larkins Construction Co., H. S. Meinberger and Son and Charles Hendrickson, with the understanding that the low bidder would agree to build the same house on any level site in Marin County falling under jurisdiction of the county building inspection department, within 30 days.

The three original bids received in 1950 were $24,252, $28,376 and $28,600.

Bids turned in last week by the three contractors named above were $25,954, $30,453 and $31,219. Lowest bid, which was submitted by Larkins Construction Co., was only a fraction over 7 per cent higher than the 1950 low bid. The comparative average of all three bids showed an increase of 7.8 per cent.

Significance of the comparison test was manyfold. The less than 8 per cent increase in building costs was far better than the Marin Builders Exchange had dared to expect.

The test bore out the exchange's contention that increase in lot values accounts principally for the higher prices of today's homes, and that builders have cut down on their own profits to help equalize the increase.

The Marin Builders Exchange points out, however, that home financing costs have gone up in the last 10 years, also that the tastes of buyers for new architectural designs and improvements are resulting in more expensive houses.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Dec. 24, the 359th day of the year with seven more in 1960. Today is Christmas Eve.

The moon is in its first quarter.

The morning star is Mars.

The evening stars are Mars, Saturn and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1809, American frontiersman, soldier and trapper Christopher (Kit) Carson was born.

In 1814, the War of 1812 ended with the signing of a peace treaty between the U.S. and Great Britain in Ghent, Belgium.

In 1871, Verdi's spectacular opera "Aida" had its world premiere in Cairo, Egypt.

In 1951, Libya was proclaimed a free and independent nation.

A thought for today: British playwright and novelist George Bernard Shaw said: "The test of a man or woman's breeding is how they behave in a quarrel."

Crippled Kids Tackle Hearts Of All-American Stars

Katherine, wearing a cast up to her chin, smiled from her hospital bed at 220-pound Ross Hawkins, center on North Carolina's 1960 football team.

"When the nurse told me I was getting you, I tried to develop a North Carolina accent to surprise you," the 13-year-old girl told the 6-foot-3 athlete who actually hails from Cowan, Tenn.

"But I couldn't. I'm from Oakland."

She got her message across.

So did all the other kids at the Shrine Hospital for crippled children who met yesterday with 48 players from colleges all over the nation. When these stars trot out at Kezar Stadium to play the East-West game Dec. 31 they know now who the proceeds are benefitting.

"I'm from a big family—four brothers, two sisters—and I'm used to seeing them in bed with measles or something," Ron Maltony, Purdue's 210-guard, told another guard, Mark Manders of Iowa.

"But, man, nothing like this."

The hospital, in the interest of rehabilitating the crippled children, asked use of only the first names of the little patients.

Scotty, a 5-year-old with braces on both legs had vowed he would be walking on crutches by the time the players arrived. Hospital nurses doubted he would. But Scotty did.

He made his way bravely up to Bill Kilmer, the sensational UCLA tailback, and bragged:

"They all said I wouldn't be walking, Kilmer, but they were all wrong."

Each child is assigned a player. Scotty explaining somebody had overlooked him, asked "How about . . ." That was as far as he got.

Broke in the 195-pound Azusa, Calif., visitor:

"You've got a quarterback named Kilmer."

Despite being away from home for Christmas for the first time in their young lives, the players didn't seem to mind.

"After that visit to the hospital to see the crippled children for whom we are playing," said All-America end Mike Ditka, of Pitt, "we would do anything for them."

Herb Adderly, a 190-pound halfback from Michigan State, picked up a crippled four-year-old girl and held her in his arms during the visit

"That gives you a funny feeling," he said as he gritted his teeth.

Gail, a freckled-faced girl of nine from Concord, looked over the crop of football players and announced happily:

"When I get a husband, he has to be at least six feet tall."

That made just about every football player in the room eligible except Jim Herbstreit, 5-8, from Ohio State.

If anybody plays their heart out in the Shrine Game it may be Ditka, the Pitt end.

A little lad who was born with arms only six inches long fell madly in love with Mike. Only 3 years old, he refused to leave Mike's side—and even the nurses couldn't tear him away.

Mike held the boy in his arms all during the hospital tour as he talked to other youngsters, reporters and players.

When it came time for parting, the tears in Mike's eyes glistened as much as they did in tiny Dave's.

The players, some accompanied by their wives, spent hours in the wards before bidding a reluctant goodbye. They all left their autographs—and a bit of themselves.

THEIR HERO — Jim Tyrer, Ohio University gridder, took a fancy to Caron, 4, (Center), and Kathy, 12, yesterday when he and other members of the East-West squads visited Shriner's Hospital in San Francisco. The Dec. 31 game's proceeds go to the hospital. (AP Wirephoto)

Desire, Determination Boost Eagles For Playoff Battle

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Desire? Determination? Those are qualities the Philadelphia Eagles have in abundance as they prepare for the National Football League championship game with Green Bay.

Like Chuck Bednarik, 12-year NFL veteran who will be called on by coach Buck Shaw to go the full 60 minutes if needed Monday, as an offensive center and on defense as a linebacker. The 34-year-old veteran says:

"This is a team that needs incentive. If the money and honor is up there, we'll bust somebody to get it." He adds that being rated the underdog is "great. Makes you a little hungrier."

Shaw said that for his Eastern Division champs "there is enough incentive. A lot of these fellows never have been first in anything. I think they'll want to now." For Shaw, in his last season of coaching, there is hope for his first NFL title.

Then there's Billy Barnes. He's heard the comment of many fans that perhaps he's outlived his usefullness to the Eagles. They point to his 2.7 yard average per carry this past season.

Hampered by a leg injury and what generally is acknowledged as a poor blocking line for runners, the former Wake Forest star says that at 25 years of age, "I'm just reaching the prime of life. I'll be playing . . . in the National League for quite a while." Barnes says "I hope I can start proving it against Green Bay Monday."

PAY INCENTIVE

There's the incentive of the money involved—the members of the winning team on Franklin Field will get about $5,000 each. The losers about $4,000.

The title game has gripped these hardened pros with a college player fever.

Bednarik likened the Eagles' attitude to that of the Japanese Kamikaze pilots who dived their planes into targets, giving up their lives.

"We've been yelling that (kamikaze) in workouts. When you have the gang tackling and pursuit, you win in this league. Like those kamikaze pilots, this is our last flight. We've got to hit."

The Packers planned to leave Green Bay by chartered plane today for Philadelphia and hold a brief workout there tomorrow.

They have worked out all week on frozen turf at Green Bay and, according to Coach Vince Lombardi, are "up" for the game. The team is in good condition, he added. A few of his top men have been bothered with minor bruises and injuries, but all are expected to be in shape to play.

Several players who were on Green Bay's 1944 championship team predicted the Packers would win.

Don Hutson, who held the NFL scoring record until Packer Paul Hornung broke it this year said: "I think the Packers have built up a momentum the Eagles do not have. The Packers had to play their season to the end to win, while the Eagles clinched their title early. Once you lose that head of steam, it's hard to build it up again."

Ted Fritsch, former Packer fullback who scored both Green Bay touchdowns in the 14-7 victory over the New York Giants in the 1944 championship game, said the 1960 Packers team is better balanced than the Eagles, "and I don't think they'll have much trouble."

Other members of the 1944 team, Capt. Charlie Brock, halfback Tony Canadeo and lineman Charley Tollefson also predicted a Packer victory.

Review Of 49ers Season Reveals Many Highlights—Glad And Sad

CONNOLLY

Always a bridesmaid but never a bride. That's the life story of the San Francisco 49ers.

Next Monday the Philadelphia Eagles host the Green Bay Packers for the winner's share of the pot and, incidentally, for the pro football championship of the world. The 49ers will be watching on TV, even as you and I.

Our Big Red didn't make the grade, but they left some pleasant memories of the past season and glowing promise for the season to come. Take a look over my shoulder and remember . . .

The sight of number 74, big Henry Schmidt, barrelling down the field on kickoffs and punts, scattering bodies to the right and left and nailing the ball carrier. Who ever watches the ball when this human flying wedge is in action?

R. C. Owens' tremendous touchdown catch that ended with a shoulder injury. Catch the ball and worry about a place to land on the way down. And Muddy Waters' come-through performance that started the Baltimore Colts on a four-game skid. Two for two and the winning touchdown makes a good enough debut.

QUARTERBACK John Brodie's comeback after failing to complete a pass for the first half of the first Packer game. The stuff that makes a pro. And the deadly aim of Abe Woodson's tackles on defense, always at the shoe tops where it drops a man like a log.

Speaking of guttiness, I remember the day John Thomas was hurt. I had my glasses on him as he went down, and when he got up from the pile he looked at his useless wrist and then quickly tucked it under his other hand and went back into the huddle for several more plays before somebody noticed.

MEMORIES OF the old Lion, Nomellini, still clawing his way through foes at an age when most pros have been in the rocking chair for years. At the other end of the age bracket, Dan Colchico making rookie mistakes but learning all the time and ending the season against the Colts with one of the best defensive end plays I have seen for a long, long time.

A few sad memories pop up too. Like . . .

The retirement of end Billy Wilson early in the season after years of being on top. And the season opener against the New York Giants, a tough loser 21 to 19 that didn't seem too important at the time but would have made the big difference at the end of the year. And the mud at Kezar that slid the championship to the Packers.

HAPPIER THOUGHTS again, of the "perfect" game against Papa Halas and his big bad Bears from Chicago. And of the double wins over the Los Angeles Rams and the Colts, enough to make ANY season a success. And Tommy Davis' kicking and improved field goal kicking after a shaky start. The more pressure or the deeper in the end zone, the farther went his boots.

And best of all the way the 49er defensive team bowed its neck all year and came up with the best record in the division. This is more than meets the eye because it must be remembered that the offense put a great burden on the stop 'em boys by giving up the ball too often.

All in all, it was a good season. We want to wish Coach Red Hickey, his staff, and all his players the best at Christmas. And that goes for you fans, too.

Anyway, it will be too cold in Philadelphia next week!

Trippi Mentioned As Possible New Coach At Georgia

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI) — Former football great Charlie Trippi was mentioned today as a possible successor to Wally Butts, who resigned yesterday as head football coach at the University of Georgia.

Trippi presently is backfield coach at Georgia. As a quarterback on some of Butts' greatest teams in the 1940's he gained All-America fame for his unerring passing ability and deceptive speed.

Trippi was voted into the football Hall of Fame in 1959. He captained Georgia's undefeated, untied Sugar Bowl championship team in 1947 and led Georgia to victory in the Rose Bowl in 1943, and the Oil Bowl in 1946. He generally is considered the greatest all-round back in southern football history.

Trippi played for the Chicago Cardinals for almost a decade before returning to Georgia to join Butts' coaching staff.

Butts offered a simple explanation for leaving the head-coaching spot he has held for the past 22 seasons at Georgia.

"I've been a head coach for 32 years," he said. "That's long enough to be in the coaching business."

S.F. May Lose Big Time Golf If Tourney Flops

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Big time golf of the professional variety never has clicked with regularity in San Francisco, but J. Edwin Carter, the PGA tournament bureau manager, wagers it will.

The do or die test comes Jan. 26-29 with the $50,000 San Francisco International Open at Harding Park.

"If this is a flop, we can tear up the contract and forget about it," Carter told Eugene Selvage, president of the sponsoring Lucky Lager Brewery. "Even though it's a three-year contract."

Professional golfer Bob Rosburg of Palo Alto agreed, "Professional golf in San Francisco has not been the success it should have been. Except for the National Open, I don't believe we have had a successful tournament here.

"Professional golfers are dubious about coming to San Francisco," Rosburg declared. "This is the test for all of us."

The San Francisco event, a 72-hole tournament, will be held at Harding Park and follows the $50,000 Bing Crosby pro-amateur at Pebble Beach.

Carter pointed out that golfers have been invited from Japan, the Philippines, Honolulu and Formosa.

"All in all," he said, "this will have perhaps the best international field of any tournament."

San Francisco held the Western Open in 1956, but the gallery turnout proved disappointing. The same was true for the 1958 Golden Gate Open, also held at Harding.

Selvage, who enters the picture for the first time, indicated at a press luncheon yesterday that he doesn't expect miracles in this first year of the International Open.

"Many don't realize the great field that will be here," he said. "It take time to build up a tournament. We won't accept anything but the ultimate goal of success."

Chargers Ponder Move To San Diego

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Barron Hilton, president of the Chargers, says he wants to keep his American Football team in Los Angeles next season. But he's not overlooking San Diego completely.

Hilton disclosed yesterday that he plans to visit San Diego in the near future to investigate the possible move of his AFL franchise there.

Dr. Albert Anderson, chairman of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce major league sports committee, wired Hilton urging him to visit and talk over the situation for 1961.

Huskies Lose Vallejo Star—Appendicitis

LONG BEACH (AP) — Washington's Huskies have suffered the first serious casualty in training for the Jan. 2 Rose Bowl football game.

Joe Jones of Vallejo, the No. 2 fullback on offense, underwent surgery for appendicitis yesterday and will have to watch the game with Minnesota from the sidelines.

Jones complained of severe abdominal pains Thursday night. Yesterday morning he was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, where Dr. Harold Neibling performer the operation.

Jones started two games for Washington this year and was rated as a top-flight defensive man.

Ron Quincy moves up to the No. 2 fullback spot behind Ray Jackson.

Washington held its first scrimmage yesterday and Coach Jim Owens was far from pleased.

"It was about what you'd expect a first scrimmage to be after such a long layoff," said Owens. "The boys tried hard enough, but they were ragged."

Yesterday's morning session was devoted to detailed drill against Minnesota plays as gleaned from movies of the Gophers' games.

Bowden To Return To Cinderpaths

SAN JOSE (AP) — Don Bowden, the first American to run the mile in less than four minutes, says his best Christmas present is the news he can return to track competition.

Bowden, currently a lieutenant in the Army, suffered a torn achilles tendon last June in the Interservice Track and Field Championships at Quantico, Va.

Doctors now say the former University of California runner's leg will return to full strength.

"I hope to be able to try out for the 1964 U.S. Olympic team," Bowden said today at his parents' home here.

Bowden, now 24, broke the four-minute barrier at Stockton, Calif., on June 1, 1957 when he ran the mile in 3:58.7.

Families Homeless In Truckee Fire

TRUCKEE (AP) — Fire today destroyed a movie theater and an adjacent apartment house, leaving seven families homeless on Christmas Eve.

Truckee's volunteer fire department fought the blaze in 18 degree temperatures in early morning darkness.

Firemen said the blaze started in the Donner theater and spread to the building next door.

Six families in the apartment house and another family living in an apartment above the theater were forced to flee. No one was injured.

Traffic Check Turns Up Drunken Drivers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A regular holiday traffic check by nine Bay Area police departments turned up 10 allegedly drunken drivers last night.

Officers reported they stopped 4,550 cars throughout the area as 218 patrolmen manned check points. Beside the drivers booked for drunkenness, one other person was arrested as a drunk and 28 drivers who had been drinking were given warnings. Altogether, 751 violations of various types were found and 552 citations issued, some of them for multiple offenses.

YULE PACKAGE ARRIVES, BUT 10 YEARS LATE

FT. ORD (AP)—The Christmas package was mailed in Kansas City, Mo., on Dec. 13, 1950, to Clara L. Drommer, then in Salzburg, Austria.

It was delivered this week to Miss Drommer, now service club director at this army post.

Despite the "do not open until Christmas" stickers, Miss Drommer couldn't resist. It contained beads and earrings.

There was nothing to indicate where the package had spent the last 10 years.

15 Hurt As Bus, Train Collide

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (AP)—A suburban bus filled with Christmas shoppers slammed into the side of a moving Canadian National Railways train at crossing here today. Officials reported 15 persons injured and called it miraculous that no one was killed.

James Clements, 28, the bus driver, was reported in critical condition. He was making his first trip as a substitute driver on a run from Petty Harbor, six miles away.

Another bus driver who got to the scene minutes later said Clements' bus slid into a freight car at the middle of the combination passenger-freight train. Witnesses said the crossing had not been sanded.

Employees Dunked In Boating Mishap

NEWPORT BEACH (AP)—Forty-three persons got a dunking in Newport Harbor last night during pre-Christmas festivities.

Harbor officials said the group, members of the City Employees Assn. and their families, were aboard a gaily decorated barge that became swamped when the passengers distributed themselves unevenly.

MARIN FIRE CALLS

8:38 a.m., San Rafael—Broken gas line on fork lift sprayed gasoline on hot exhaust pipe and ignited causing fire, 260 Canal Street; damage estimated at $750.

3:53 p.m., Tamalpais Valley—Steve Yates, 10, of 614 Glenwood Avenue, grabbed electric wire while climbing tree at 603 Glenwood; fire department responded with resuscitator.

Thief Breaks In, Takes Family's Yule Gifts

When a salesman returned to his San Rafael home late last night, he found someone had stolen the family's Christmas gifts from a living room couch, San Rafael police reported.

Ernest T. Louis, a furniture salesman for a San Francisco firm, returned to his home at 23 Knight Drive, about 11:20 p.m. He found the gifts missing, along with a .22 caliber colt automatic and a Bell and Howell movie camera and projector, police said.

The theif entered the house by breaking a small piece of glass over the front door knob, and ransacked the home the police reported. A piano stool was placed in front of the door.

Louis estimated that the missing articles were valued at between $350 and $400.

Vandals yanked lights off a large Christmas tree in Sausalito last night and trampled the bulbs to bits.

Mrs. Martha Pereira of 17 Glen Drive said she and neighbors Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nelson of 15 Glen Drive, decorated a 20-foot tree as they have been doing for five years.

The vandals destroyed the decorations last night while Nelson was away from his home for about 10 minutes to pick up his wife.

shoulder of the highway's northbound lane, and was standing alongside to direct a second bus which was going to give him a push.

A light grey station wagon with Alaska license plates struck Nabers down, knocking him at least 20 feet onto the crowded highway, witnesses said.

He died at Marin General Hospital of internal injuries about two hours later after being given six pints of blood in a futile attempt to save his life.

Walter Mervin Thompson, 44, brother of the suspect said his brother came home yesterday just before 6 p.m. and went straight to bed.

"He asked me to drive him to the police station when he woke up about midnight," the brother said. "He told me he thought he had been in an accident and wanted to give himself up."

According to CHP Officer T. A. Bragg, the death car lost part of its radio antenna. A broken antenna on Thompson's car was found to match the piece found on the highway.

Naber's death was the 26th fatality of the year on Marin highways, compared to 18 for last year.

Naber's wife, Anna, was reported in a state of shock this morning. "He didn't have a chance," she sobbed last night when told of her husband's death. The couple had no children.

Thompson has been stationed at the Presidio since June following a tour of duty in Alaska. His car, a grey station wagon, still carries Alaska license plates.

Funeral arrangements for Naber are pending at Sinai Memorial Mortuary, San Francisco.

Coins Stolen

FRESNO (AP)—A coin collection valued at $3,500 to $4,500 was taken by two armed men who held up Robert D. Klopenburg in his Hill-'n-Dale shop last night. The robbers taped his hands and feet and threatened to kill his wife and two children if he called police.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service says 1,628,365 duck stamps were sold during fiscal 1960.

There's Wonderful Feeling From Observance Of Christmas Eve

Our rush is over. We've bought our presents and wrapped them. Our trees glow beautifully in our living rooms. Flames flicker in our fireplaces.

It is Christmas Eve, parents. It's our night of all nights in the year.

Do you have a family Christmas Eve? We always do. I can't conceive of Christmas Eve away from the children. Several families gather together. Some of our children are grown now. The others are shooting up. But Christmas Eve with teen-agers is just as nice as with toddlers.

We turn off the radios, the phonograph and the TV. Who wants canned music when we ourselves can sing? Who wants artificial drama when there is the great story of Jesus' birth to hear?

We listen while one of our children reads "And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night . . ." Do you remember the rest? It is a story our fathers have listened to and marveled over for a thousand years. An old, old story. But new and wonderful each time we hear it.

We sing all the familiar carols. Tears come to my eyes as I hear the strong young voices of our children singing "Joy to the world, the Lord is come, let earth receive her King." They aren't afraid. They really mean joy to the world.

We have presents. Our Santas used to be little guys. Now they are hulking adolescents. We're proud of them. They do the job well.

Next we have a huge birthday cake, and all the ice cream our big kids can eat. Do you know how much ice cream a teen-ager can consume? Finally we say our quiet good nights.

It's a simple Christmas Eve, but to us it's wonderful.

A very merry Christmas to you and your children.

READERS' FORUM

(Q) "Is it fair to impose your own religion on your children? Shouldn't we wait and let our boys and girls choose their own faiths when they're grown?"

W.A.D.

(A) No, we should not wait. Even small children need the strength of faith in a personal, loving God, and the release which prayer can bring.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

LOOKING FOR SANTA

This puppy seems to be waiting for Santa as he hangs loosely in a Christmas stocking at the doorway of the Anti-Cruelty Society in Detroit. The puppy, living at the society home, is one of many looking for a home this winter. The society has issued an appeal that pets not be given for Christmas unless they are really wanted. (UPI Telephoto)

Is There A Santa? This Man Says, Yes

Red suit, black boots, flowing beard and a sash around his middle—that's Le Moyne Porter of Mill Valley who said today, "I never quite quit believing in Santa Claus. I know now there is one." He is.

This year will be his seventh that he has brought presents and good spirit to children and adults alike in his Enchanted Knolls neighborhood.

Porter, personnel manager for Shell Oil Co. in San Francisco, said he delivers toys to children on Christmas Eve and talks to everyone in the house.

"Especially the older people," he said, "who seem to have lost faith in the fact there is a Santa Claus. Grandmothers and grandfathers get my particular attention to renew their faith."

"I have left some rather elderly women standing shaking their heads. They just don't believe this," Porter said.

"We have the unbelievers as to 'where is the sled and reindeer?' I say, naturally, we can't drag them down on the city streets. They are parked on Mount Tamalpais. And youngsters who look can see Rudolph's red nose blinking up there."

Further, Porter explained, before going out I get all weather reports between the North Pole and Mill Valley and can give a complete accurate weather report, rain, snow or whatever. This is often checked on in the newspapers."

"All this is designed to keep up the patter so that the kids are off guard and don't ask me embarrassing questions. The key to the whole thing is speed. In, do the job and get out."

Porter, who is five feet, seven and weighs 215 pounds said, "Sir, I do not need any pillows." He was once asked at the outdoor art club after a performance to remove his pillows and replied, "Lady, that's me." the woman disappeared.

His method of delivery is this: His wife, Edythe, (Mrs. Santa) takes the orders and sets the schedule by telephone, making sure to get names and a description of the children. She also finds out where the presents will be left for Porter to pick up.

"My daughter, Carol, drives the car since one can't see too well in a beard," Porter said. Packages are picked up in the garage or in the car. Santa enters the house and calls each youngster by name. Sometimes families combine their broods and Porter doesn't have to make multiple calls. He leaves the toys, talks a bit and departs.

Besides his daughter, Porter has a son Jimmy, 16. And the family lives at 101 Longfellow Drive. He started being Santa with a cub pack. "I was disgusted with the Santa Claus I had seen and thought I could do a better job." He went from Cub Scout Pack to church groups and individual visits. Starting with two or three houses, last year he visited 16.

He also goes out at other times than Christmas Eve. Last year he went to Marin City School. Following his visit he was called from a convalescent home nearby and pleaded with to make a visit. "I kissed more old ladies than I ever thought I would," he said. Always have my best luck with those under six and over 60."

Missilemen Top Quota For Blood

When asked to donate blood, the Army's Bay Area Nike missilemen did so—almost 30 gallons.

Capt. James N. Calway of Corte Madera, medical officer for the Sixth Region, Army Air Defense Command, which has headquarters at Fort Baker, disclosed results for the first three-month period of a continuing drive in support of the Letterman Army Hospital blood donor program. At the same time he announced a goal for the second quarter donations: "Top 30 gallons."

In a letter to Maj. Gen. E. J. McGaw, who commands the Sixth Region, Maj. Gen. J. W. Schwartz, commander of Letterman Hospital, said:

"During the first cycle of donations by all units of your command . . . 246 blood donors were supplied to the Letterman Blood Bank. This total represents 51 more donors than had been originally planned by your organization . . ."

Dumont, Firm In L.A. Tell Merger Plan

Dumont Manufacturing Co. of San Rafael has merged with the H. I. Thompson Fiberglass Co. of Los Angeles, it was announced today by presidents of the two companies, Robert Diass and William Winterhalter.

Dumont is a subsidiary of Dutron Corp., also of San Rafael. The merger is subject to audit and approval of stockholders of both companies, Diass said.

H. I. Thompson is a large producer of missile and aircraft insulating materials. Dumont manufactures high-pressure moulded insulation.

Dumont employs more than 200 persons at the plant at 607 Irwin Street. The corporation has been in Marin for 13 years.

The proposed merger was expected to greatly increase local production, Diass said.

Several Boys Caught Shooting Out Lights

Two Fairfax teen-agers last night were caught by police as they shot out street lights with an air gun from an auto.

Police said the boys, 15 and 16, and three others shot out "numerous lights." Police Chief Clifton Cordes said he will keep the guns, taken from the boys, as a warning to others.

Mrs. Jacqueline Sowada of 24 South Knoll Road, Mill Valley, has received a $130 cash award from Headquarters Pacific Transportation Terminal Command, Fort Mason for superior job performance as a teller.

50 YEARS AGO

Marinite Listened To Famous Singer

Fifty years ago tonight Mrs. Jean Bingley of 29 Onyx Avenue, Larkspur, pushed her way through crowds of San Francisco citizens to the foot of Lotta's Fountain.

And there, on Christmas Eve, she heard and watched the famed singer Luisa Tetrazzini give the performance that has become a part of San Francisco's history.

Mrs. Bingley, a young woman of 25 then, went to hear the concert with her husband. They were in the crowd of 250,000 who jammed the area of Third and Market Streets.

Tonight that historical concert will be reenacted at Lotta's Fountain. Soprano Olga Chronis will sing the songs Tetrazzini sang.

"I wish I could be there," Mrs. Bingley said wistfully, but I can't." She is confined to her home by a leg injury and failing sight.

She remembers that Tetrazzini had a "most gorgeous voice. It was a thrilling experience."

Perhaps Mrs. Bingley's memories of that long-ago night were stirred this week by some visitors to her home. The group, young people and adults from the Larkspur-Corte Madera recreation center, stopped to sing carols to her as they made the rounds of rest homes and other shut-ins in the area.

Living here alone . . . it was terrific," she said.

The Larkspur woman, a chiropractor in San Francisco for many years, will manage to leave her home for a Christmas celebration, however. Her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Abbey of Petaluma, and granddaughter Lynn, plan to take her to dinner at a Larkspur restaurant.

Gasoline Runs Free

CASTLE, Okla. (AP) — Residents carrying saucepans and buckets reaped a bonanza of free gasoline one day. The gasoline poured freely after a road grader slashed an eight-inch gasoline transmission line near here.

Good News Of Great Joy Come To All People

In those days a decree went out from Caesar Augustus that all the world should be enrolled. This was the first enrollment, when Quirinious was governor of Syria.

And all went to be enrolled, each to his own city. And Joseph also went up from Galilee, from the City of Nazareth, to Judea, to the city of David, which is called Bethlehem, because he was of the house and lineage of David, to be enrolled with Mary, his betrothed, who was with child.

And while they were there, the time came for her to be delivered. And she gave birth to her first son and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no place for them at the inn.

And in that region there were shepherds out in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And an angel of the Lord shone around them, and they were filled with fear.

And the angel said to them, "Be not afraid; for behold, I bring you good news of a great joy which will come to all the people; for to you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, who is Christ the Lord.

"And this will be a sign for you; you will find a babe wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger."

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying:

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men with whom he is pleased."

When the angels went away from them into heaven, the shepherds said to one another, "Let us go over to Bethlehem and see this thing that has happened, which the Lord has made known to us."

And they went with haste, and found Mary and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger. And when they saw it, they made known the saying which had ben told them. But Mary kept these things and pondered them in her heart.

And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all they had heard and seen, as it had been told thme.
sene, as it had been told them.

The Boxing Day Holiday

Monday will be a holiday in every city and hamlet in our land. In England, the 26th of December is always a holiday. They call it Boxing Day.

It has nothing to do with prize fighting, however. The kind of boxing referred to is that of boxing gifts for various people, including the postman, deliverymen and servants, if any.

It is widely regarded as one more day of Christmas celebrating. In a chilly country where winter storms roar out of the North Sea to lash the land, people are inclined to make the most of every opportunity to take time off and enjoy themselves during the bad weather season.

We don't have the English excuse, but we are happy so many Americans, including us, will be able to enjoy a three-day holiday. We hope you enjoy yours.

KNOW YOUR FACTS

The average person who owns stock shows an appalling lack of knowledge about the company in which he invests his money. To make matters worse, his grasp of financial affairs is often quite shaky.

These conclusions are the result of a survey of 2,000 shareholders made by an investors' group.

Three-quarters of those interviewed had a college education, but most of them could not name a single product of the companies into which they had bought. An even larger percentage could not name the president of any of the corporations in which they had invested.

We can be our own worst enemies by neglecting to make a careful evaluation of our material, intellectual and spiritual strength.

Take practical steps to become well-informed about your temporal and eternal destiny. Too much is at stake to do otherwise.

Be tireless in seeking knowledge, which is the basis of good judgment. No one can do it for you.

"Be prudent therefore and watchful in prayers. But above all things have a constant mutual charity." (1 Peter 4:7-8)

Enlighten us, O Holy Spirit, with the understanding necessary for salvation.

Let's Spread Christmas Out Over Six Months

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Along about this time every year you can hear a lot of grumbling to the effect that the Christmas season is too long.

To this I say "bah!" and "humbug!"

The trouble with the Christmas season is that it is too short. If I had my way, the "Twelve Days of Christmas" would be changed to the "Six Months of Christmas."

BUT I DON'T mean that the way it might sound. In proposing a stretch-out, I'm not thinking in terms of enjoyment, but rather of survival.

Most of us are old enough to remember the time when the Christmas season started the day after Thanksgiving. That was the day the department stores turned on the colored lights, put a carol album on the record player and opened their Christmas "sales."

But few stores nowadays have the patience to wait until after Thanksgiving. About the only merchants who bother with Thanksgiving are the food store operators. They have a vested interest in the holiday, it being one of the few times when they can unload pumpkins.

IT IS THIS trend toward an early Yuletide that the traditionalists decry. They contend that by the time Christmas itself rolls around, people are tired of the whole thing and are eager to get on with New Year's.

Now let me make clear that I am as weary as the next man of hearing Bing Crosby dream of a white Christmas. And isn't it a blesssing that we don't have those blasted chipmunks with us as much this year?

But in deploring the situation, the traditionalists overlook a vital element which negates their argument — namely, the population explosion. There simply are too many people trying to buy gifts at the same time.

This point has been driven home every night this month as I have driven home from work.

IN ORDER TO reach my little nest, I have to pass two big suburban shopping centers. Maneuvering an automobile by these places is roughly comparable to driving a herd of elephants through a sheep dip.

It is nothing uncommon to find traffic backed up for two or three miles behind nocturnal shoppers who are looking for a place to park. By next Christmas I probably won't be able to get home at all.

There is, of course, a way to avoid this ghastly entanglement. All we have to do is start the Christmas season on the Fourth of July.

I HAVE WORKED out a plan under which people would shop in alphabetical order—A-through-E in July, F-through-J in August, K-through-O in September, P-through T in October and U-through-Z in November.

Note that I am leaving December open. That's when I intend to do my shopping.

Prosperity Almost Causes M.D.A.'s Death

By CHAPIN A. DAY

CHIP DAY

The Marin Democratic Assembly, sometimes a powerful, active organization, almost died last week, and political prosperity was one of the contributing factors.

At a practically unpublicized meeting in College of Marin, an attempt to kill off the county-wide organization was made by some members who felt they would rather belong to smaller, more localized organizations beginning to spring up around the county.

These clubs, like Mill Valley's Democratic Club and similar organizations in Novato and Central Marin, are either affiliated or plan to affiliate with the California Democratic Council, in just the way MDA is affiliated. Their proponents says it's easier to organize and keep enthusiasm in small local organizations.

One cause of dissatisfaction has been inactivity on the part of MDA. Democratic prosperity, national and statewide (not locally), has syphoned off many of the county's top Demo leaders into state or national jobs, leaving great voids in the local leadership.

The most recent blow was the resignation of Bob Guyol as MDA president, not for a political job, but because his boss, Standard Oil, is sending him to India.

When it was finally decided to keep MDA in operation, Gabriel Lehrer of Mill Valley was elected temporary chairman pending formal elections next February.

MARIN DEMOCRATS are happy about one result of the election insofar as our county is concerned, although they failed to tally a majority here for any of their candidates.

The vote showed, they say, that Marin's vote for Kennedy was the highest percentage in the state, 85 per cent, in relation to the number of Democrats registered in the county. San Mateo County had the second highest percentage Democratic vote.

Everyone seems able to find something to be happy about if you just figure percentages long enough.

Another interesting figure, I've been told, (I haven't actually seen the statistics) is in the recent election the Democrats tallied the largest absentee vote, proportionately, of any election in recent years.

Although the absentees swung the state from Kennedy to Nixon, the Democrats tallied a higher percentage of the absentees than is usual.

As I said, you can find a silver lining if you look for it.

A NON-PARTISAN political rumor of the moment is that printer Lothar Salin of San Rafael is about ready to start collecting signatures on a petition to qualify him to run for San Rafael School Board next Spring.

The story goes that at least one and possibly two of the incumbents, whose terms expire, will not seek re-election. Lothar has an interest in schools — he has five children.

THOSE UNINFORMATIVE campaign expenditure statements are still being filed. As an example of how useless they are, Fred G. Dupuis of Tiburon, unsuccessful congressional candidate, filed a statement reporting contributions to him and his committee of $49,624. However, he said he had no personal knowledge of how it was spent, the committee did that.

His successful opponent, Rep. Clement W. Miller of Corte Madera, reported contributions to him of $2,266, expenditures of $2,266 and didn't report at all on his committee. He isn't required to.

Everett Matzen, the unsuccessful Democratic candidate for Marin-Sonoma assemblyment, set a record expenditure of $23,438.72 in his campaign. Contributions toward this amount were shown in one big list with the total contributions all lumped into one sum.

William T. Bagley, who polled about 60 percent of the vote in the two counties, spent $20,360.78, but he listed by name and amount every one of the 150 or so donors to that total.

It's too bad legislators aren't interested in getting some sensible and informative method of required expenditure filings.

IN WISHING ALL a Merry Christmas I'd like to plagiarize a poem sent out by teletype a few years ago by the United Press International bureau in San Diego. Entitled "Feliz Navidad, Amigos," it goes:

'Tis the night before Kreesmas and all through the casa
Not a creature is storing, caramba! Que Pasa?
The stockings are hanging con mucho cuidado
In hopes that St. Nicholas weel feel obligado
To leave a few cosas aqui and alli
For Chico Chica (y sometheeng for Mi!)
Los ninos are sugiled all safe in their camas
(Some in vestidos and some in pajamas).
Their little cabezas all fool of good theengs
They esparan que old Santo weel breeng.

Santo is down at the corner saloon
Muy borracho since mid-afternoon.
Mama is seeting beside las ventana
Shining her rolling pin para manana.
Then Santo weel come in un manner extrano
Leet up like the Star Spangled Banner, contando.
And Mama weel send heem to be con los coches
Merry Kreesmas to all, and to all Buenos Noches.

Thanks For Help To Senior Citizens

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

During the year of 1960, hundreds of great-hearted Marin people have contributed through me to good times for our older citizens. Some 200 have sent me Christmas greeting cards.

I wish I could reply to each of these in person and send Christmas greetings to each. But that is too big a chore for me, so I am writing in hope the Independent-Journal, which also contributed so much in publicizing the senior citzens' events, will let me use its "Letters" column to say to all:

Many, many thanks for your help and good wishes, and may you have a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

There's A Miracle On Miracle Mile

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

When our utmost efforts to do something are not crowned with at least some success, our chin is liable to sag.

Such seems to have been our efforts, to interest Marvelous Mariners in its Miracle Mile.

Some front-yards would still not be a credit to the backyards of a hicktown.

We read concerning the First Yule: "When the Three Wise Men saw the Star, they rejoiced with exceeding great Joy."

So also at this A.D. 1960 Yule Time, because of the same Joy—our chin is liftting . . .

The reason: Some doings (finished just before these holidays) on the San Anselmo part of the Miracle Mile verifies the maxim, architectural construction is frozen music. (Not included is jazz and rock-and-roll.)

In order to fill our cup to overflowing, a fountain is playing in front of the new building.

Now the fountain's joyful playing is with H_2O — two gases forming water. Who would say there are no miracles on the Miracle Mile?

S. R. Chamber Chief To Move On? It's Tough To Lose A Wife

What's this we hear about San Rafael Chamber Manager Dick Shirley looking ahead to the New Year and to new horizons?

Or is it just wishful thinking on the part of some of these people who are already talking about a possible successor in the Chamber of Commerce post.

Mentioned off and on are people like Paul Richards and Ed Kaenel.

CHRISTMAS CHEER is running high, and some of the well-known court customers are showing up with increasing frequency. The other day, Judge Joseph Wilson asked a regular customer why he imbibed so much the night before. The man peered up sheepishly, then picked up hope when he noticed the judge was new on the bench.

"Your honor," he sagged, in his best form. "I was feeling bad. You see, I buried my wife." Veteran bailiff Jack Bones clutched his face to wipe off the smile.

The judge quickly assessed the situation. "And just when did you bury your wife?"

"Well, your honor," the drunk scuffed one shoe against the other, "I guess maybe six years ago. But for a while there, it sure seemed like yesterday didn't it."

FROM LOS ANGELES comes word that they're looking for two Marin officials of high rank who took someone else's limousine out for a spin without the owner's consent.

It was during the recent League of California Cities convention. Seems the car belonged to some Southern California mayor, who would have been blistering mad. Only, he didn't know about it.

DOESN'T PAY to be too curious. The "exact change" hopper at the Golden Gate Bridge always intrigued me. Every chance, I toss in a quarter and putter away happily while other wait in line.

This time, I decided to try two dimes and a nickel, which should work (and they tell me it always does).

I carefully placed two dimes and a nickel in the hopper and waited, but no "go" signal.

"Aha," I thought. "I caught the mechanical monster cheating." I walked back to the toll taker in triumph. The man said, "Aha, you put in only one dime and a nickel. I argued. But the man showed me a glass case in back. "See, only one dime and a nickel!"

By that time, other motorists were glaring at me. I quickly threw in another dime and drove on.

Wonder if this happened to anyone else? I'm still convinced the hopper has lapses of memory once in a while. At least, that time it did.

THE RASH OF Christmas light thefts has prompted an irate citizen to pen this note:

'Twa the night before Xmas
and throughout Marin, nothing was stirring, not even a pin.
Fireplaces were glowing and
gifts wrapped neat, and
outside decorations lighting the street.
All of a sudden a dark figure
alights, and just for the heck of it steals all the lights.
Even tho it's Xmas I can't help thinkin, that Xmas
light pifering is downright stinkin.

Merry Christmas to all.

Oops, who turned the lights off the Christmas tree outside, Maw? No one did?

Well, Happy New Year anyway.

Had Faith In School Board

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

Perhaps the Rev. Barkowska will now get back to the concerns of his parish. This is a busy time of year for churches of the Christian faith.

The fact that the Board of Trustees of Tamalpais Union High School District voted unanimously against banning the books in question, is no surprise to me.

Unfortunately, I am not in the habit of attending school board meetings, so I see no reason why the antics of a minister should rouse me from my Christmas card addressing and gift wrapping.

I have faith in the school board and I knew they would know best how to handle the problem.

During a Christmas rush in a big department store, one of the dear little kiddies kicked the store's Santa Claus so hard in the shin that he had to put up a sign, "Gone to feed my reindeers," for a half hour until the pain abated.

And speaking of last Christmas, here's an entry Joan Brooks swears she copied from a 10-year-old's diary:

December 25: Pop gave me a swell new air rifle, but it's pouring so I can't go hunting.

December 26: Still raining. Can't go hunting.

December 27: Still raining. Can't go hunting.

December 28: Still raining. Couldn't wait any longer. Shot Uncle Morris."

A SILENT, HOLY NIGHT

Here's Christmas Eve Message For People Of Marin County

President, San Francisco Theological Seminary

On certain radio and television shows ingenious contrivances have been used to measure the amount of laughter given the various contestants and their purportedly funny stories. As the audience dutifully brays its response to the jokes, the laughmeter computes in decibles how much noise is made for each, and so the winner is chosen. If such an apparatus could be set against each season of the year, I have no doubt that Christmas would win for noise, hands down.

Just think how loudly we celebrate the day: The laughter and chatter, the swinging bells, the greetings, the carols sung and crooned, bright paper wrappings being folded around gifts, being torn off gifts, kitchen clatter, and dining room clink and rattle, office party pandemonium, corks popping, and much, much later, celebrants still shouting in the streets. All noise, all Christmas noise — some dear and some doubtful —but all noise.

Hundreds of years before Christmas was, squinting down the centuries to see who was to come, the Psalmist thought he spied a quieter event: A silent night which would yet be the holy night, when all would be calm, yet all would be bright. The dreaming poet, hundreds of years before the Bethlehem miracle, sang: "He shall come down like rain upon the mown grass: as showers that water the earth" (Psalms 72:6). What quietness, what peace there is in that.

Rain upon the mown grass. As over against the clamor and confusion of our Christmases, the striking thing about that simile is its quietness. It is a reminder of how seriously we ought to take our own silences. The most important thing that ever happened in the earth was hushed and unspectacular as rain upon the mown grass. No more noisy, no more noticeable than that. The sort of thing we can miss if we are too loud. There is a warning in that for us—a suggestion that we not mistake flamboyance for importance.

The truly important things that happen to us, happen in us, and that without tumult or shouting. Gradually, quietly, we begin to see ourselves as separate individuals, we begin to see the difference between right and wrong, we begin to understand that we are responsible people, we begin to know that what we do matters, and we begin to be concerned for our eternal destinies. And these great mysteries, these all-important mysteries are explored inside, in silence, each man for himself.

Think how Jesus appeared in the earth. All too often, in the excitement of our celebration, we forget how quietly He came and how quietly He lived almost to the end. Because of the revolution which Jesus released in the world, we tend to overlook the serenity of His birth and of His growth. But the remarkable thing about His nativity and His development was their lack of noisy pomp, ceremony, ostentation. There was no specialists, no consultations in the stable; there was nothing flashy about the manger; there was no throne for the growing boy; there was no brassy advertising for Him. The great life progressed in patient peace and quiet. Even when the miracles could have made a great splash in the public attention, Jesus asked that they not be talked about. It just is not God's way to howl us into His train, to dazzle us into following Him.

Instead, the Incarnation of God takes place unheralded save to a few sleepy shepherds. God steals into history one night in a little backwoods town. He doesn't try to impress, He doesn't try to yell down, He doesn't try to force Himself on anyone. He comes to us, He is there — simply there.

Our own rapt attention is called for now and always if we are to understand all that transpires in that silent, holy night. Our own meditation must be hushed and earnest if we are to appreciate the meaning of Christmas. Oh, the fun and the frolic of the season are fine—the Christian may be all for bigger and better celebrations, and be none the less Christian for that. But the important thing about Christmas is what its central silence says to our central silence, what its quietness speaks to our quietness.

This Jesus who was born and who grew up so unostentatiously—who is He really? This humble manger child, this unobtrusive carpenter boy—who is He really? Do I see God in Him? Do I meet God in Him? Does God reach out through Him to me, to claim me and make me His own? These are the questions Christmas asks, the choices it calls for, the decisions it requires. We must decide now about what happened back there in quietness, what really happened, what it means to us—and that deciding takes place in our own quietness; that happens in our hearts. May no one permit the season to go by without letting deep call unto deep: the deepest part of history ask it questions in the deepest part of you. Don't miss the point.

Somehow, in the midst of all the shopping and shouting, the milling and mailing, the festooning and feasting, you must find time to decide why all this is. In some personal solitude, you must let a starry solitude of long ago come through to you. By yourself, you must decide why what was so hushed and tranquil is the focus of the grandest excitement of all. You must decide who this Baby was, who made that particular silence eloquent to all the ages.

Sister Mary Patrick—College President

Her Prime Objective: The Best Possible Faculty At Dominican To Teach 'Her Girls'

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

Sister Mary Patrick, O.P., president of Dominican College, gazed out on the campus and said, softly and proudly: "Dominican compares favorably with any women's college in the country. It is one of the leading women's colleges in the United States."

Sister Patrick can rightly take such pride in the college which spreads over 100 beautifully-landscaped acres in the northern part of San Rafael.

But it is not the buildings and grounds which are her principal source of pride, but the high educational standards maintained by the college.

"MY MAJOR concern is to have an excellent faculty," Sister Patrick explained. And the college brochure with its listing of names of top educators as faculty members is proof that the college president has achieved her aim.

Sister Patrick bears the weight of her considerable responsibilities bravely, and faces the world with a smile. She never loses contact with "her girls."

After graduation from college, many of these go to distant parts. "Hardly a day goes by but I hear from one of them," she said, and reached for a letter on her desk, written in an eastern city. It told about the writer's becoming a director of the Scranton Philharmonic Orchestra. "She wasn't much interested in music when she was here. That wasn't her major," Sister commented.

Sister Patrick was born in San Francisco. When she was a few years old the family moved to Sacramento, where her father was president of the Sacramento Transportation Co., now River Lines which operates boats on the Sacramento River.

She attended public schools in Sacramento, and from Sacramento came to San Rafael and Dominican College as a student. She was one of a class of five which graduated from the college in 1922. This marked the school's first indoor graduation. It took place in Angelico Hall, which was just being completed.

In August of 1922 Sister Patrick entered the novitiate.

"What made you decide to become a Sister?" we asked.

HER REPLY: "Well, I was thinking of it a great deal during my last year at college. I believe it was Mother Raymond (then college president) who gave me inspiration. I admired her very much."

The novitiate was then located on the fourth floor of the main or administration building of the convent.

After four and a half years in the convent, Sister Patrick took her vows. She first taught in the fifth grade of the Dominican Lower School. She was next assigned to teach at St. Agnes High School in Stockton which is under the auspices of the Dominicans. It is a co-educational institution, and Sister Patrick's eyes twinkled as she said: "I liked teaching boys, too." Another year, and Sister was back at Dominican to teach English and French in the high school, and then to come to the college as dean of students in 1944.

In 1945 Sister Patrick was appointed president of the college. She succeeded Sister Thomas, who became a council member of the community. With her new position, Sister Patrick assumed responsibilities. She not only has authority over nearly 700 students plus the faculty, but she also has all the financial details to worry about including the building program.

She has the advice of the board of trustees of the college of which Mother Justin is chairman, and the further counsel of an advisory council composed of laymen. This council includes three Marin County residents: Dr. G. Thomas Quigg, Norman Ballantine, and John Cahill. Other members are J. Philip Murphy, Clarence Sullivan, Charles O'Gara, Frank Baker and Mrs. Eugene Prince.

SISTER PATRICK is enthusiastic about the growth of the college. And, without looking up a date, she can tell you rapidly when each building was constructed.

The annex to Meadowlands, the former M. H. DeYoung home, was built in 1924. The physics building was put up in 1925.

Sister Patrick, from a window in her office which is in Guzman Hall, pointed to the small red building nearby. "Believe it or not," she laughed, "it was built without an architect. Mr. Faggiano did the work. Dr. Ralph Minor, who was dean of the School of Optometry at the University of California, came over two days a week to teach physics. The building was built at his direction, and he selected the equipment."

The college president went on to say:

"Our relationship with the University of California has always been very pleasant. It has been most helpful, giving up its finest professors as part-time professors here.

"In 1927 Mother Raymond built Fanjeaux on Palm Avenue. It was built on a piece of the William Babcock property we bought. It is a residence hall for 80 college girls. Fanjeaux, of Norman-French architecture, was named for a little town in France where St. Dominic did his first missionary work. Guzman Hall, which houses the library, classrooms and offices, was constructed in 1930. Guzman was the family name of St. Dominic.

"In 1935 Mother Raymond bought the John Buck home and property, and remodeled the house for another residence hall, Benincasa. Benincasa was the family name of St. Catherine of Siena, a Dominican of the 14th century.

"IN 1939 THE new novitiate, Santa Sabina, was built on what had been the Babcock property. Santa Sabina is the house of studies for those training to become Sisters.

"During World War II there was no construction. In 1947 a quonset hut was bought as the art building. It was remodeled under the direction of Ann O'Hanlon, head of the art department. We now need a larger building.

"In 1948 we built a small chemistry wing for what will be a science building.

"In 1957 and 1958 we built the new residence hall near Fanjeaux called Pennafort. This honors the memory of Mother Raymond, as it was named for her patron saint, Raymond of Pennafort. It houses 130 students. In 1958 the dining hall, Caleruega, was built on the former Babcock property. It is equipped to serve 500, and can be expanded.

The college president went on to say that construction of the new library building on what was the Buck property will get under way in June of 1961. That structure, which will cost approximately one million dollars, will house 150,000 volumes, and will have a few seminar rooms, audiovisual facilities, a record library, and a curriculum library for the education department.

And after that, what happens if Dominican's lower and high schools are moved to the 500-acre site recently bought in Sleepy Hollow?

"We are waiting eagerly, I assure you," said Sister Patrick. "The present high school will be remodeled as a residence for Sisters and student Sisters, since the present convent is overly crowded. The college needs more classrooms, which will be available when the lower school moves to Sleepy Hollow.

"We have 28 acres in Forest Meadows, the former Coleman property, where athletic events are held. But we do need more buildings."

THEN, AFTER a pause: "We hope to have a new chapel."

Sister Patrick noted that the college expects an enrollment of 1,000 by 1970. But she also emphasized that no stress is being placed upon an increase in enrollment.

"What we want to make very sure of is that we have top teachers and fine students," she said.

And that, as Sister Patrick sees it, is her prime objective as president of Dominican College.

SISTER MARY PATRICK, O.P., president of Dominican College, gazes out onto the beautiful campus around which so much of her life has been centered. Following her graduation from the college, she entered the Dominican novitiate. And she taught in the Dominican lower and upper schools before becoming a college administrator. Marin's Most Unusual Christmas Tree Brightens Hospital Halls

Staff At San Rafael General Puts Its Ingenuity And 'Native Materials' To Work

Patients at San Rafael General Hospital are enjoying this Christmas Eve what must be Marin's most unusual Christmas tree.

It was made entirely of native materials—native to a hospital, that is—plus a lot of ingenuity on the part of the staff.

Started as strictly a fun project, the tree became a thing of real beauty, especially when spotlighted from below. It has been stopping traffic on the first floor ever since it was completed.

When members of the staff started to "build" the tree, they looked around for a supporting pole or trunk, and found a perfect one—an IV stand. This is a standard from which jars are suspended for intravenous feedings.

To provide a conical shape in the manner of a real tree, Mrs. Patricia Leonard, director of nursing, brought from home a hula hoop borrowed from her daughter, Janice.

A lot of IV tubing was strung from the crossbeam at the top of the stand to the hula hoop on the bottom, all around the tree.

Then the fun began. Ampules and test tubes filled with colored water, plastic medicine glasses, discarded plastic needle holders, soap samples and miscellaneous other small items were tied to the tubing as ornaments. Paper drinking cups were turned upside down as bells and inverted pill cups became smaller bells.

There are some real bells, too—old-fashioned patient call bells brought by one of the nurses.

At the top of the tree is an angel, of course. Only this angel is made from "Ah Sticks" (tongue depressors).

When the tree was completed as far as decorating it with hospital items was concerned, the nurses and aides and orderlies and maids stood back and looked at their creation. Well—maybe—they decided—it DID need something else.

So a concession was made to tradition. During her lunch hour one day, one of the nurses paid a visit to a downtown store and brought back some angel hair, tinsel and aluminum foil garlands. These were added, and Joe Bell of the hospital lab rigged up a spotlight.

The result, they decided, was stupendous. At least, nobody had ever seen a tree quite like it. Maybe they never will.

IN ADDITION TO the traditional Christmas decorations at San Rafael General Hospital, this most unusual tree, built by hospital personnel from hospital materials, adds further holiday spirit. Punsters have labeled it a "Quaking Aspirin" because of its medicinal-type ornaments. (Independent-Journal photos)

A PATIENT IN wheelchair, Mrs. W. E. Ball, and her nurse, Mrs. Donna Wills, stop briefly to admire the unique San Rafael General Hospital Christmas tree. It began as a fun project, but blossomed into an effective addition to the hospital's Christmas decor.

KEY FIGURES IN the current television series, "Virus," produced by the Bay Area's KQED for national showing are Dr. Wendell M. Stanley, left, Nobel Laureate and director of the University of California virus laboratory who is the series host, and Evans G. (Red) Valens, producer-director and a Mill Valley resident. The Man Behind A TV Series

He's Producer-Director E. G. (Red) Valens, Whose Job It Is To Surmount Frustration

Thrice a week, on Monday afternoons and on Wednesday and Friday evenings, the Bay Area's educational television station, KQED on Channel 9, carries a program entitled "Virus."

Viewers who watch it see the prominent scientist, Dr. Wendell Stanley, by lecture and demonstrations, and using terms understandable to the layman, explore both the known and the unknown facets of the virus.

It is obviously a painstakingly planned, carefully put-together show.

The man responsible for this polish is a Marinite — Evans G. (Red) Valens of Mill Valley. He is the producer-director for the "Virus" series.

AND WHAT IS the job of the TV show producer-director?

Red Valens will tell you that at times it seems to consist largely of encountering and struggling with frustration.

For instance, his part in "Virus":

The idea of making a television series out of research work being done in the virus laboratory at the University of California was first brought up and discussed at KQED as early as 1956. Two years later the project moved into the planning stage. And at the beginning of 1960 the National Science Foundation granted funds that enabled KQED to produce "Virus" on film for National Educational Television. By last February test films had been made, and in March the series was actually under way.

Here was a challenge to the ingenuity and talent of a producer-director whose responsibility was to do "every thing." The right people, properties and stage settings must appear in coordination before cameras, manned and supplemented by technical crews, at a scheduled time. They must move and speak and appear in a manner so as to tell an exciting story that would invite the attention and response of future audiences in San Francisco and other National Education Television station areas, and in classrooms in schools and colleges.

The "talent" were busy experts, each preoccupied with his own work, each with a different temperament and manner of communicating, many suddenly called upon to travel to distant cities. Prime job of the producer-director was to keep men and cameras matched to each other's timing and happily.

UNEXPECTED technical difficulties during filming wore on energy and goodwill, and the producer-director had to encourage and humor. Tobacco plants, fertile eggs, experimental animals were needed at appropriate stages of maturity or disease to illustrate processes and results of laboratory achievements. The producer-director incubated plants and placated prima donna chicks who wanted to out-chirp the scientists.

A model of tobacco mosaic virus, constructed by a scientist in England, was used as main stage property for the series. Handsome as it was, the U. S. Customs Service refused to consider it a work of art and duty-free. Balloon-models leaked; jelly bean models melted. No frustration was spared the producer-director.

Studio scenes had to be set up in miniature to make sure the camera could "see" the most effective pictures. So the producer-director had to build paper-doll scientists and doll-house scenery to test his plans. Working with these tiny sets and talking with lighting men and camera men, the director plotted a shot-by-shot schedule, briefed his talent where to be and when. He helped each scientist prepare to present his ideas and the results of his research most clearly, with movements and gestures and voice that would be effective on camera. And all this must be measured to the exacting second-hand of the stopwatch.

Working with musicians, the producer-director had to evolve a theme which was unique and evocative — and acceptable to the participating scientists, some of whom were competent musicians. Quality recording of the music had to be done when musicians and music studio were available.

Title and credit cards had to be designed by artists to suit the mood of the programs. More coordinating and planning

FILM EXPERTS went to work on time-lapse movies of growing plants. Drawing and animation sequences were assembled to illustrate laboratory processes and findings not directly available to the camera. Photographs were taken by microscope and electronmicroscope.

Then when the talent had performed, the sets been struck, the producer-director must work closely with film and sound editors for many hours to insure technical synchronization and clarity.

Of course all this activity had been subject to the financial terms of the grant, and at the end—as all along the line — he must reconcile all the planned and unplanned expenses with the money that had been made available and render a competent accounting.

What talents and background did Red Valens take into this formidable undertaking?

He was born in State College, Pa., April 17, 1920, but grew up and went to high school in South Orange, N.J. He then attended Amherst College where he earned his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1941.

He worked for the El Paso Herald-Post in El Paso, Tex., then for United Press in San Francisco, Salt Lake City, Helena, Mont., Boise, Idaho, and the Central Pacific where he was wounded on Okinawa and returned to the States.

While he was recuperating in New York, the war ended. And Valens was sent to Germany where he worked as United Press bureau chief in Munich and also covered assignments in Frankfort and Berlin as well as the Nuernberg trials.

VALENS BEGAN working for KQED in its early days in 1954 and has been connected with Channel 9 ever since, except for two short periods—a six-month stint in Baltimore writing and producing "File 7" for Johns Hopkins University, and another half-year or so with the National Broadcasting Co. in New York writing and co-producing a series on the International Geophysical Year.

At KQED Valens has worked on the production of a series entitled "The Atom" with nuclear scientist Dr. Edward Teller of the University of California, and, also with Dr. Teller, on programs for the "World and Physics" series. He produced a series entitled "Elements" with Dr. Glenn Seaborg and other chemists at the University of California.

His other work has included programs on humanities with Dr. John Dodds of Stanford University, and some of the chapters of "Red Myth," a chronicle of the development of communism which will appear early in 1961.

In addition to his television work, Valens is an author.

He wrote "Me and Frumpet," a fanciful adventure in size and time for children. Together with Dr. Seaborg, he wrote "Elements of the Universe." Early in 1961 "Viruses and the Nature of Life," a book which he wrote with Dr. Stanley as a result of the television series, will appear.

When Valens isn't wrestling with—and conquering—frustration and problems in the performance of his TV duties, he and his wife, 10-year Marin residents, live in a rambling old hillside house in Mill Valley with their four children, ages 9, 10, 12 and 15.

Trees Have Changed, But Not The Spirit

The White Fir Has Become The Favored Symbol Of Yule Gaiety

By DOROTHY SLATTERY

In the days of the horse-drawn sleigh, candlelight, raspberry ices and roasting goose, the men of the family treked through the snow and out into the woods, felled a tree, and dragged it home to decorate the hearth.

Tonight families will gather around brightly-lighted trees to mark a tradition that has been the focal point of the home yule celebration for over 300 years in the Christian world.

The fragrance of freshly cut fir, glowing lights, shimmering tinsel and gaily colored ornaments have become over the centuries symbols of the season: A time of year when people stop and remember and give.

But as the meaning of the tree has remained the same, the way it gets to the hearthside has changed drastically over the years.

TODAY THE family climbs into the car, drives to a roadside lot or grocery store, wades through a tanglement of green boughs and usually ends up buying a tree favored by the 5-year-old member of the group.

Your Christmas tree was marked for the market last summer when a local dealer contacted an agent in the north, placed an order and paid a cash deposit.

When the trees are finally felled in the weeks just before Christmas many Marin dealers run their own trucks to the forests to freight home the shipments of trees.

This year a tree shortage was predicted because of heavy snows falling at the cutting time, but clearing skies within the last few weeks permitted the loggers to go to work and send truckloads of trees to Marin.

As Igor Gordon, a salesman at the Redhill Nursery in San Anselmo, noted: "This year we won't have to burn our trees."

Last year thousands of surplus trees that went unsold during the holiday season ended up in bonfires around the Bay Area.

The Christmas tree business is a risky game and a lot dealer should sell 75 percent of his supply to break even.

Leo Del Santo, partner in United Produce Co. of San Rafael, said that sometimes a lot operator "has to invest up to $5,000 or $6,000 before he makes a profit." Del Santo, a smiling, white-haired man, has been wholesaling Christmas trees in Marin since 1934. This year he and his partners, Al P. Nerviani and George Epidendio, decided to stay out of the tree business. (We'll be back in it next year," he noted.)

Twenty-six years ago the most popular tree in Marin was the Silver Tip ("really named the Red Fir"), according to Del Santo. "They were very expensive in those days and were sold by looks, not by the foot."

FAMILIES STILL tightening their belts in the post-depression years of the 1930s would nevertheless "not hesitate to spend seven dollars for a tree," the wholesaler remembered. ("Those seven dollars would be the same as 21 dollars today.")

"People always forget what they make at Christmas," Del Santo noted, "and will spend 20 dollars for a tree when they won't spend 22 cents for a loaf of bread."

Dealers buy their trees from lumber companies or the state, Del Santo said. "Forest rangers decide what can be cut on the government property," he added.

"The trees sprout stumps and are cut to size so that two trees will come out of one in 10 years," Del Santo commented. Most of the trees sold in Marin come from Northern California, Oregon or Nevada, but "in 10 years they may have to be imported from Canada and Montana the way the forests are being cleared."

During the war years of the 1940s taste in trees switched from the Silver Tip to the White Fir "which has more foliage than the Silver Tip and is less expensive," Del Santo said.

"The Silver Tip is less and less beautiful every year now, because of the forest clearing," he added sadly.

The last decade saw three White Fir trees being sold to every Silver Tip or Douglas Fir (the old fashioned tree), Del Santo estimated.

The Douglas Fir "has been falling off in popularity for the last years because of its tendency to shed in a warm room," he said.

Today the average family wants a tree from five to six feet high, Del Santo reported, and usually "pays about eight dollars a tree."

The 18 and 20 foot trees are almost exclusively sold to banks and private clubs.

THE RETAIL LOT operator starts lining up his space and ordering trees in October, reported Mrs. Hans Weise, whose husband was a partner in a lot this year in Novato and Marinwood.

The retailer buys trees from the wholesaler by the foot early in the season, she stated. "People don't realize the overhead in this business — the insurance liability, workmen's compensation, and rental."

Her husband's young partner, Mike Sandbach, said that the peak of the season is reached around Dec. 17, and that to break even a lot must sell 400 out of 600 trees.

He noted that the "Douglas Fir was more prominent in 1950 than now because as their income increased, people have started buying the more expensive White Fir."

The taste in tree trends may change. New decorations come and go. The electric light replaced the candle, the lot and tree salesman the ax and hike through the woods, tinsel the old strands of popcorn and cranberries. But the tree will always be a towering mass of green, wonderful excitement to wide-eyed children with visions of Santa Claus dancing in their heads.

Mill Valley Tandems: Free-Wheeling Folks

Church Organization For Young Couples Is Full Of Life And Fun

By BRUCE COLEMAN

Wheeling along into its 14th year, Tandems at the Mill Valley Community Church looks back on more than a decade of stimulating fellowship and fun.

Rev. Gordon Lynn Foster, pastor of the church and the one who started the young people's group, describes it graphically: "It's full of life and very funny."

The spirit of the Tandemites is symbolized in its own, ready-to-run tandem bicycle. From this cycle titles of positions are taken. For example, the presidents, man and wife, are the "handlebars," the treasurers, the "coaster brakes," and the publicity chairmen, the "horns."

Hospitality chairmen are the "spokes," head chefs, the "lunch baskets." Officers are called the "wheels" and the constitution is the frame.

REQUISITE TO belong is that the combined age of married couples be not more than 70 years.

In relating how the group was formed, Reverend Foster said, "In 1947, hundreds of young men came home at the end of the war. They were united with their wives and children and most of them were settling down for the first time to married life in peace time."

"They discussed interests of a young married couple—children, the husband's first job, getting a home established, baby sitters, child psychology and problems that go with this period."

"The idea was immediately received with great enthusiasm."

The Tandems vitality, Reverend Foster said, is due in a large measure to the fact there has been an age limit. "There are several stages in life. The young married couple goes into Tandems. But, when the couple's children get into upper classes and junior high school, they have a different outlook on things. For example, a couple in their late 30s or early 40s do not have too much in common with a couple with three kids in diapers.

"So, after Tandems, there is another group called the Voyagers for people between 30 and 45 years.

"VOYAGERS CAN be single people. Then there is yet another group, the Sempervirens, which takes in people from 45 on to the end of life, couples and individuals."

"In Tandems," the pastor continued, "when we have a barn dance, we always have eight or 10 people standing alongside who can't dance. They are pregnant women, people in the early stages of productivity."

Tandem activities include an annual work night when members go to the church in work clothes and do such things as painting the nursery furniture, redecorating a room, cleaning rafters in the vestry, chopping wood for the fireplace or sprucing up the church grounds.

"We have a grand time," said the minister.

"Discussion groups are also very lively," he added. "We take some problem that hits everybody in the club such as how can you make your religious faith relevant to your pattern in life?"

He explained that last year there was an exciting program in which "we started talking about success and threw out ideas about what we thought success really was. We found where some of the success goals wear pretty thin sometimes.

"WHAT CODE OF life do you have to live to be a 'success'? Is it defined materially, as it is in a number of cases, or has it some other meaning? This is a kind of program which starts from an experienced problem which everyone can recognize and have some share in it.

"When you start from where people live, you get some warmth. Maybe not light—but warmth."

Reverend Foster said that sometimes the group outlines a situation that is imaginary and yet has basis in reality. For example, one night he described an industrial dispute where, in an industry, workers were meeting with management and a threat of strike was in the wind.

"We debated a raise in wages, picking a union negotiator and another person to negotiate for management. 'Let's see if you can settle it,' we said, 'without a strike.' We had real information so that we weren't just talking in a vacuum. It got so real, we could hardly cut it off," he said, smiling.

Mrs. H. W. Symmes of Mill Valley, a charter member of Tandems with her husband, Will, said: "There is always a spark of fun and humor" with Tandems. "Kicked out" because the Symmes' ages added up too high, they can remember such commencement exercises as the eighth.

At that time the class of 12 chose lavender and old lace as class colors. All graduated with honors. Class motto was "Sempirvirens en garde." Overture processional was "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

THERE WAS a bequest, presentation of diplomas, acceptance of diplomas, alma mater, recessional and, finally, an informal reception for parents and friends.

In celebrating the Tandems 13th birthday recently, Reverend Foster said of the group: "It's full of life and very funny."

SYMBOLIC OF THE Tandems, young married couple's organization at the Mill Valley Community Church, is the long tandem bike which belongs to the group. Tandemites Mr. and Mrs. Cummins Jr. of Mill Valley test out the bicycle built for two with Lyle up front and Jean taking the back seat. Cummins is chairman of the board of stewards at the church. COLLECTING OXYGEN gas is a fundamental operation in chemistry laboratory study. And it is used in the new experimental approach to the course, too. Left to right are Pete Reckwell, Eric Grissell and Jean Barley, all Drake seniors.

WORKING WITH MODELS of molecules and crystals in the Drake High chemistry lab are students Jean Barley, Eric Grissell, and Pete Reckwell, and teacher Keith MacNab. Such models are used extensively in the new approach to high school chemistry instruction.

The New Frontiers Of Chemistry

A prime example of the exciting new things that are going on these days in our high schools can be found in the chemistry department at Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo.

It is the result of the inclusion of chemistry instructor Keith McNab among 20 teachers chosen to participate in a program headed by Dr. Glenn Seaborg of the University of California.

MacNab spent the summer at Claremont helping to develop a new textbook in high school chemistry. Now that experimental text, in lithograph form, is being used in the Drake High classroom and laboratory.

MacNab's description of the new text and course: "Modern chemistry concepts with the folderol omitted."

He adds: "It contains the meat of chemistry—not applied chemistry, not about chemistry. It is what the title says it is: Chemistry and Experimental Science."

And it is, MacNab adds, the only text written by chemists and professors actually in the field in consultation with the high school teachers who will use it.

Like MacNab, the other high school teachers who worked on the Claremont project last summer are also using the new material with their classes so that at present approximately 1,500 chemistry students are being exposed to it. Once a week these teachers meet "to iron out the kinks, foresee problems, and avoid pitfalls others have encountered."

The teachers also submit reports to Claremont.

Their experiences will be weighed before the next text goes into print in final form.

MacNab says the new approach to chemistry puts little emphasis on memory work. Instead it attempts to teach the students the methods of science, to think critically. Minds, therefore, are not cluttered with useless facts.

For instance, students do not learn valences until they have a sound experimental basis for understanding them.

"The content forces people to think," MacNab emphasizes, "instead of merely regurgitating facts. Most of these students will not be chemists. It's not important for them to acquire facts of chemistry. It is important for anyone to learn how to make deductions according to sound principles."

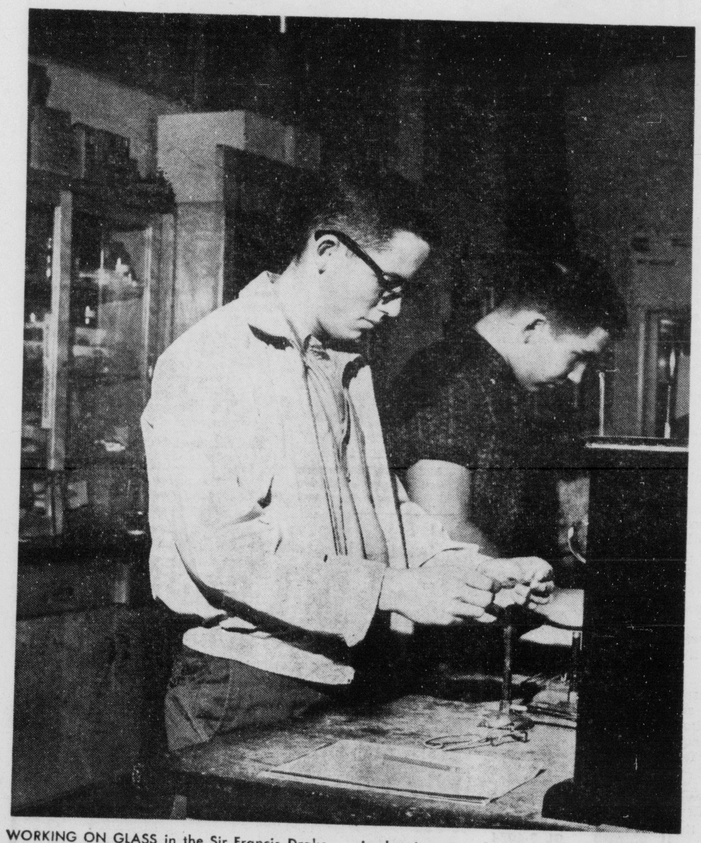
At the same time, the instructor says, the course grounds students well for college chemistry. The fact that its general content is the work of college professors who were disturbed by inadequately perpared students is the best proof of this pudding, MacNab says.

In the instruction itself, a lot of time is spent on the structure of molecules, their actual shape and size, because "this is the most important thing in determining how chemicals react," according to MacNab. One of the new techniques is the use of models which were made by the instructor himself.

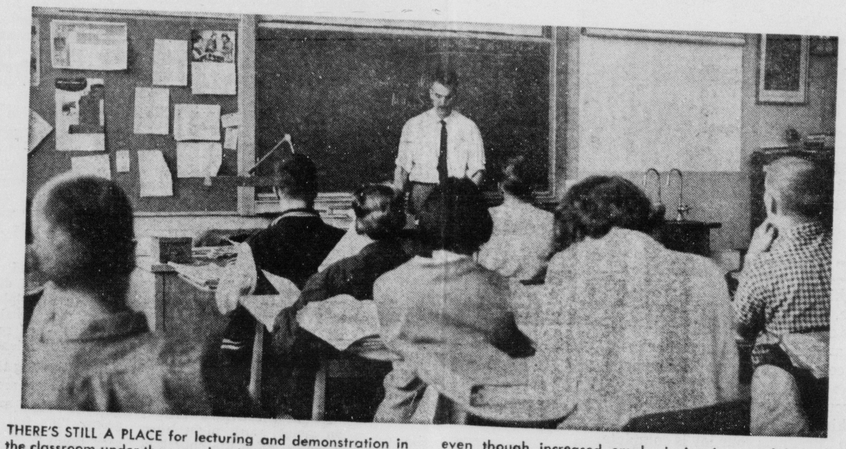
In summary, he said, new frontiers of chemistry are being explored through high school teaching. Basic principles are taught and "frills" are discarded. Students are not being trained as if they are going to be chemical technologists because most of them are not.

"We give them much more laboratory work, much less straight lecturing. Students are actually doing the experiments and, more important, they're solving problems. Mere recitation of facts is less and less useful. We want them to know how to solve the problems from broad principles they learned."

INSTRUCTOR KEITH MacNab looks on while student Jean Barley performs a delicate laboratory experiment involving the weighing of oxygen on a special lab scale.



WORKING ON GLASS in the Sir Francis Drake High School chemistry laboratory are students Bob Fogerty and Fred Divita. The new concept in chemistry instruction being "tested" at Drake calls for increased lab time, less time in the lecture room.



THERE'S STILL A PLACE for lecturing and demonstration in the classroom under the new chemistry instruction program, even though increased emphasis is given to laboratory work. Teacher Keith MacNab is shown in front of one of his Drake classes.

The Loneliest Guy In The World— A Curmudgeon At Christmas Time

THE LONELIEST, the most pathetic figure in the world must be the curmudgeon on Christmas Eve.

We are not speaking of those phony Scrooges who are to be found during the pre-Christmas days in every office and in every neighborhood. For some reason they deem it smart to sneer at Christmas as the date approaches. But when the magic day does arrive, they throw off that false facade. And they become just as wholeheartedly involved in the holiday observance as any one of us.

The curmudgeons to whom we refer are, fortunately, an even smaller, and, unfortunately, a far unhappier group. They are the ones who do not sneer at Christmas. They ignore it.

They simply do not acknowledge the existence of Christmas.

And, in so doing, they miss one of the finest things in life.

The wise guys who enjoy aiming jibes at Christmas sometimes irk us. But those unhappy people who are unaware of Christmas provoke from us a far different sentiment—pity.

They cannot this Christmas Eve share with us the memories of happy holidays of the past, for they have never known them.

They cannot enjoy festivities of the present as will the rest of us this very evening because they are incapable of the festive spirit.

Nor do they have Christmases of the future to look forward to, as do the rest of us.

Perhaps they look upon the rest of us as soft-headed, sentimental slobs. But then, say we, better soft heads than hard hearts.

For Christmas is a time when each and everyone of us can afford to be sentimental without sense of shame. When the customary abrupt nod of the head or vacuous "hello" we give those we meet can become instead a cheery and meaningful "Merry Christmas."

When we can experience the warmth of giving. The fellowship of gatherings of family and friends.

And when we can relive a great and inspiring religious experience.

When we can rededicate ourselves to the true ideals of Christianity, and vow to live more closely by them in the year to come.

Yes, we pity those whose limited horizons prohibit them from enjoying this Christmas Eve with us.

But, then, they may not be entirely lost. As Charles Dickens pointed out, even a Scrooge can see the light if it burns brightly enough.

And every "Merry Christmas" heard on the street, in a store, in the home is fuel that makes those flames burn brighter.

So here's our "Merry Christmas" to our readers. We bet there isn't a curmudgeon in the lot.

Resume Of U.S. Foreign Policy Offered At A Bargain Price

THE UNITED STATES IN WORLD AFFAIRS 1959 by Richard P. Stebbins, Vintage Books, 449 pages, $1.45. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Since it is doubtless true that the vast majority of Americans pay altogether too little attention to what's going on in the rest of the world, Vintage Books is to be complimented on bringing out this volume at a low price.

"United States in World Affairs 1959" is a complete and scholarly resume of the American position as regards our foreign affairs during the year just past. A chronology of world events in the back is an especially valuable feature.

Author Stebbins, however, writes something like a professor and something like a Time-Life writer. Every sentence is "interpretive." This is not calculated to fascinate the casual reader and is likely to irritate the serious student.

THE LOST SENTINEL by Rene Hardy, Doubleday and Co., 221 pages, $3.95 Reviewed by Bill Hendricks.

The pre-ordained death of a submarine during World War II is the centerpiece of this interesting and lively novel.

Limping into a neutral harbor, Tangiers, the commander of an Italian submarine has only 24 hours to make repairs and leave. Since the intelligence of the city has alerted Allied shipping of his whereabouts and necessary time of departure—leaving is like walking into a cannon's mouth.

This then is the atmosphere of this tightly written and moving book. A captain, a crew, a boat, an exotic city, are tied together in a skein of violence and bloody inevitability.

A TREASURY OF WITCHCRAFT by Harry E. Wedeck, Philosophical Library, 270 pages, $10. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Billed as "a source book of the magic arts," this work is indeed impressive from the standpoint of research done and presented. It contains a series of essays on thaumaturgical practices and beliefs plus hundreds of citations from historical records, books (both fiction and non-fiction), and similar sources.

We're a little hard put, however, to understand just what "earthly" good this book might be. But if you are interested in this sort of thing, it most certainly is all here.

OUT FOR THE KILL by Anthony Gilbert, Random House, 235 pages, $2.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Here's a light-hearted mystery written in the best British tongue-in-cheek approach to crime and its detection.

Lawyer-detective Arthur Crook and a somewhat zany crew of colleagues unravel an unlikely but still highly entertaining crime puzzle.

For the most part the rollicking style is delightful. And you are more than willing to forgive the author for the few spots where he seems to have encountered a dry spell and where his humor—which in this book is more important than the mystery—drags a bit.

Now Science Fiction For The Children

SECRET UNDER THE SEA by Gordon R. Dickson, Holt, Rinehart and Winston Inc., 121 pages, $2.95.

Science fiction is not generally associated with young readers, but this is part of a series ~~in that field~~ which is aimed at the juniors. And if this book is typical, then the idea is a good one and the stories have considerable merit.

The year is 2013. The place: the Point Loma Research Station off the coast of Mexico. The characters: Bobby, his trained dolphin and a huge Martian sea badger.

There is suspense and surprise in the underwater adventure, with some facts on deep sea plant and animal life and general data on underwater exploration mixed in. Little boys, 8 to 12, in particular, will find it all very exciting.

STEREO

A Roman Travelog In Music

By JOHN SUNIER

RESPIGHI: PINES AND FOUNTAINS OF ROME—Chicago Symphony conducted by Fritz Reiner—RCA VICTOR LSC-2436 — Another stereo show-off item.

These two tone poems, along with No. 3 in the triptych, "Roman Festivals," are a sort of Technicolor Todd-AO Roman travelog in music.

Beginning at the Villa Borghese, we are taken on a sound-tour contrasting strident and brash orchestral climaxes with quiet and moody orchestral meditations, concluding our day at the fountain of the Villa Medici at sunset.

"Pines" has achieved renown for its inclusion of a rather unusual orchestral instrument—a phonograph. Respighi specified a certain sound effect record of a nightingale be played at one point in the score. Perhaps this was the first step along a route that has now led to symphony orchestras sharing the podium and even the main thematic content of the score with a tape recorder.

The dynamic range of the recording is exceptional. The disc contains Victor's new "Miracle Surface" anti-static material to keep it dust-free and prevent surface noise. However, if anything, I find the disc more scratchy of surface than other recent releases.

CHRISTMAS PRAYER

Ring loudly, bells.
Acclaim joy because
Joy should be here.
But is it? Are there
Wells of knowing one another,
Of recognizing a brother
For what he is,
Rather than by the label that is his.
Inward Angel, ring
The bells of aloneness
That we may sing
Of Joy deeply!

CHRISTMAS JOY

'Twas the night before Christmas and somewhere out there,
The stockings are empty, the cupboards quite bare.
The children are waiting for Santa Claus too,
But if he's to come, it's up to me and to you.

So here's to you, who always have plenty!
Fill up a stocking that might be empty.
You'll find on Christmas your joy is complete,
For you've laid a gift at the Christ Child's feet!

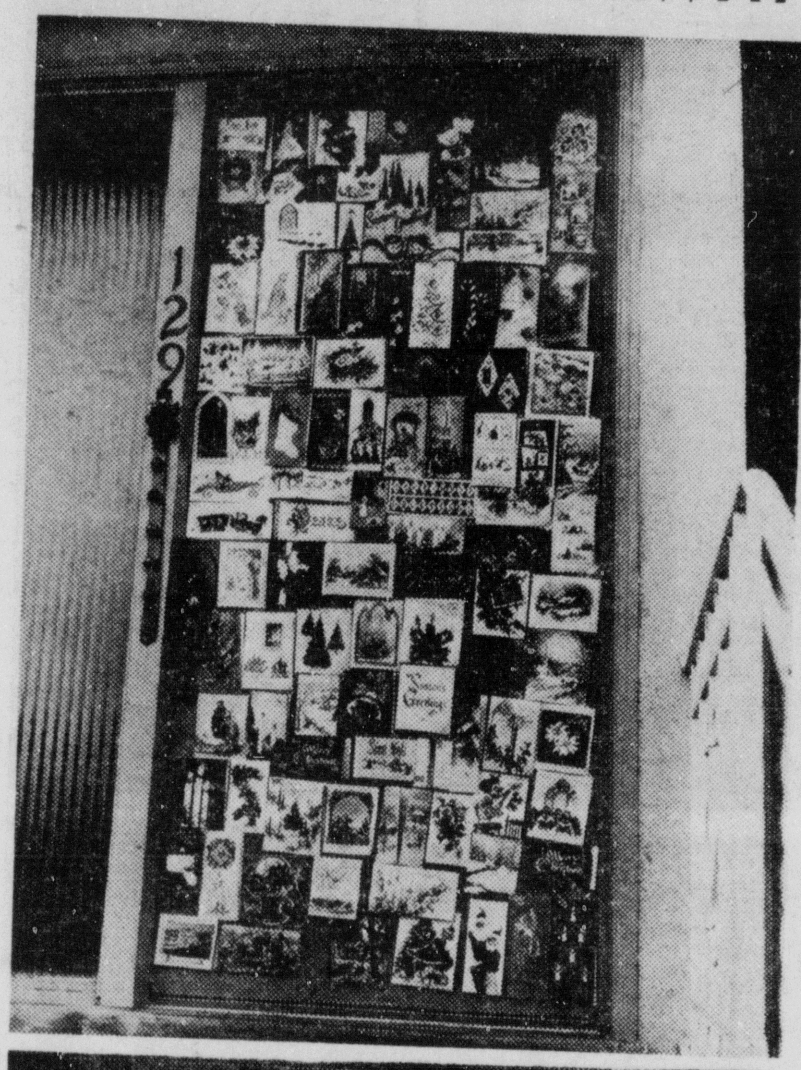
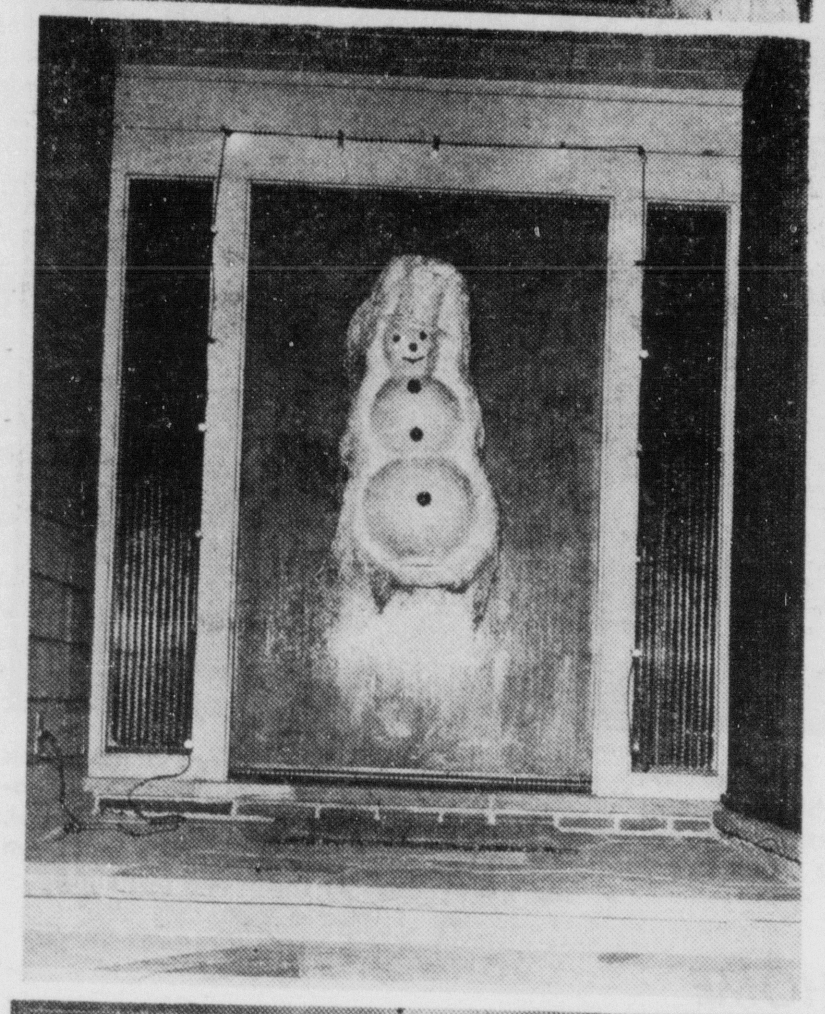
DECORATED DOORWAYS





SCORES OF MARIN householders have brought the Christmas spirit to their doorsteps by decorating the doorways to their homes — some elaborately, some simple. DISPLAYING A Christmas ornament which he made from an old tin can, B. R. (Red) Barton is a firm believer in handwork as a means of relieving the boredom of convalescence. Barton took up his new hobby while a patient recently at San Rafael General Hospital and has continued it while convalescing at his Mill Valley home. (Photo by Joe Bell)

Ornaments From Old Tin Cans

"Handwork is great for convalescents" in the opinion of B. R. (Red) Barton of Mill Valley.

And to prove his point he can use himself as an example.

Furthermore, Barton can also demonstrate from his own recent experience that you don't have to go far to find materials for such "physical therapy."

Barton uses old tin cans.

And his tools are simple, too: Tin snips, long-nosed pliers, a can opener, and a pair of heavy gloves to protect his hands when cutting the tin.

Although Barton is currently enjoying the relaxation and stimulation of handwork as a convalescent at his Mill Valley home, it was as a patient at San Rafael General Hospital that he first discovered his new hobby interest. A friend gave him a book on tincraft, and he was off on a dozen creative projects. Previously his hobbies had been drawing and painting, and that served him in good stead in his new undertaking.

As a patient at San Rafael General, prior to surgery, Barton found that all he had to do was ask—and he had plenty of materials. Friends brought him beer cans. Members of the hospital dietary department contributed old tin cans of various sizes from the kitchen. Those with "gold" lining he found especially useful because of the color they added to his creations.

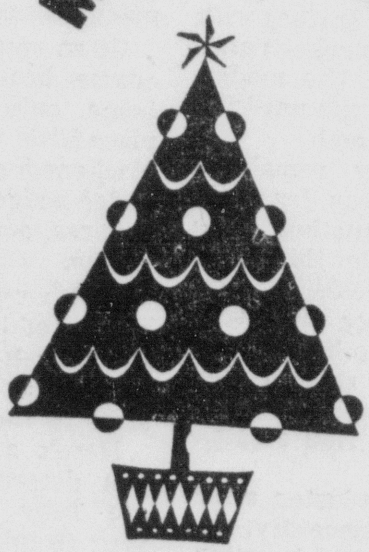
From the tin cans Barton fashioned striking ornaments, sunbursts, and Christmas stars.

In the center of some of them he placed pieces of sparkling costume jewelry from a collection contributed by members of his family and friends.

"I highly recommend handwork for any shut-in," says Barton. "Just reading and watching television get boring after awhile."

To show his appreciation to the hospital staff for the nursing care he received as a patient, Barton made a special big star which was a featured piece this Christmas season in the decorating of the San Rafael General waiting room.

MERRY CHRISTMAS



We wish to thank you, our friends and customers alike, who helped us make our first Christmas a real success.
We wish you and yours a joyous holiday season and a very happy, healthy and prosperous New Year.

Clear Varnish Hits Spot For Handyman As Furniture Finish

Clear varnish has deservedly long been the most popular finish used by home craftsmen to enhance beautiful woodgrain and protect the surface of furniture.

The secret of a satisfying varnish finish is threefold: Selecting the right kind of quality varnish, proper surface preparation and correct application.

Since not all varnishes are suitable for furniture, consult your paint dealer for the proper type. A semi-gloss or satin-finish varnish is preferred for most furniture, but glossy varnish gives a tougher surface.

MORE THOROUGH surface preparation is required for varnish than for opaque finishes like enamel or paint since the transparent varnish will show every flaw in the wood.

Old surfaces that are worn only in spots present no problem. Wash the entire surface with a paint cleaner to remove all traces of wax and polish, along with dirt and grime. Shallow dents can be raised by placing a damp cloth over the dent and applying a hot iron. Touch up worn spots with the varnish you are using. When it has dried hard, sandpaper lightly and remove the sandings with a cloth dampened in odorless paint thinner. Then varnish the entire surface.

Cracked, discolored or badly worn surface must be stripped down to the bare wood with paint and varnish remover. Follow the directions on the can carefully as to use and neutralization. Provide plenty of ventilation. Fill any holes with a wood filler that will accept stain, then sand satin smooth.

New wood surfaces should be prepared the same way as those from which the old finish has been removed. Unless the color of the wood is exactly what you want—and this is rare—common practice is to stain it the shade desired. Select the color you want and apply according to label instructions.

Most woods do not have to be filled, but open pore woods such as oak, walnut, mahogany and chestnut require a filler to close the pores and provide a smooth surface for the varnish. Choose a filler of the same color as the stain you have used.

NOW FOR THE actual varnishing which should be done in a dry room, as dust free as possible and without drafts. Do not stir or shake varnish, since this causes bubbles.

Use a good quality, clean brush, which should be soft, pliable and with plenty of flagged bristles. Never dip it into the varnish for more than one third its length, but load it fully. Don't wipe the excess varnish off by dragging it across the inside of the can — this causes bubbles, to. Instead, tap the tips of the bristles lightly against the inside of the container.

Flow the varnish on liberally in the direction of the grain with long, light strokes. After covering the surface completely, immediately cross-stroke it by brushing across the grain. Finish off by stroking lightly with the grain using an almost dry brush. If more than one coat of varnish is to be applied, thin the first as directed on the can label. Sand lightly with 2/0 sandpaper between coats after the first coat has dried hard. Be sure to remove all sandings.

THE BEST VARNISH to use for this rubbed finish is called cabinet rubbing varnish which dries in one day to an extremely hard finish. If this type varnish is not available at your paint dealer, then use any quick drying, hard drying varnish.

The first step, after the varnish has hardened, is to make a paste of pumice stone and crude or rubbing oil right on the surface of the piece. Then fold a heavy, lintless cloth into a pad. Press the pad into the paste and rub over the surface with straight surface strokes parallel to the grain. Use moderate pressure and rub until the surface feels smooth.

Wipe off any remaining pumice with a clean dry cloth. Then moisten another cloth with odorless paint thinner to clean off any residue. Now wipe the surface dry with another clean cloth. The surface will be smooth but slightly cloudy because of nearly invisible fine scratches.

To restore the luster, a second rubbing is necesary, this time with powdered rottenstone and oil. Mix a paste as was done with the pumice and then rub with a pad of clean felt or similar material in straight strokes with the grain. When the surface has been polished to the desired degree of luster, wipe off the paste with a clean cloth.

HEART OF THE HOME

Don't Neglect Your Fireplace

In hundreds of Marin dwellings the hearth is truly the heart of the home.

Yet it is surprising, interior decorators will tell you, how many of these homes fail to take full advantage of the potentialities of the fireplace.

Often you walk into an otherwise beautifully decorated home, only to find the fireplace little more than a stark, blackened gaping hole—or a hodge-podge of conflicting fixtures, accessories and gimcracks.

And very frequently some simple addition—or a bit of subtraction—will turn an out-of-place fireplace into a real asset to the home.

Here's a checklist to help you determine whether you are fully capitalizing upon your fireplace:

Q. Does your fireplace equipment fit with the fireplace design? Does it blend with the overall picture, yet lend an effect of richness and color? Is it clean and shining, or blackened and discolored —vintage 1890?

A. Fireplace equipment is available in a very wide range of styles and materials — brass, bronze, copper, nickel, Swedish steel, etc. Your local fireplace equipment dealer can advise you on the problems pertaining to all fireplace accessories. If your fireplace equipment is basically sound and harmonizes with the room decor, it can frequently be cleaned and relacquered to restore its original beauty. However, if you do decide to give your hearth a lift with new accessories, remember that there are no "bargains in equipment. Here, as elsewhere, you get what you pay for.

Q. Does the general design of the fireplace blend with the overall decor?

A. If you aren't certain of the answer, ask the aid of an interior decorator, who will advise you for a very reasonable fee. If your fireplace needs alteration, you can often change its whole appearance with a coat of paint, some wood paneling or in any number of inexpensive ways.

Q. Is your hearth cluttered with non-essentials.

A. Homeowners seem to want to display all of their most prized possessions in the hearth area. Perhaps the reason why so many modern fireplaces are designed without mantels is to encourage the stark simplicity that makes every fireplace more attractive. The answer to clutter is to select one or two outstanding accessories and highlight them.

Big Plants Are Decorating Aid

Sometimes you have to wait a while—and save—until you can afford to buy all of the furniture your heart is set upon.

A green thumb will come in handy. While you are nurturing the savings account, you can use some big plants to fill up the empty places and balance the furniture arrangements. The half-empty wall will some day have more bookcases and stacking units. Meanwhile, you can fill it with these plants.

California Gardeners Too Often Overlook State's Native Plants

Nature has been kind to Californians. While it has shorted us on rain, it has still given us exciting native plants that seem to do without it.

As one English plantsman has said: "California is that country of flowers."

However, how many of us have profited from nature's gift? Far too often we snub our own native trees and shrubs, choosing for some reason to fight nature instead of swimming with her tide.

Aren't there areas in your own garden that could use plants which seem indifferent to drought and present a pleasant front despite neglect? We are tempted to suggest that there should be if there aren't.

And if you think the natives are common, you just don't know.

You can't see, or even read about, the lovely Matilija Poppy, for instance, without knowing it for a prince among plants. The lovely blooms with their crepe-like white petals and prominent orange stamens are only one of Matilija Poppy's recommendations. Its grayish-green foliage is a permanent attraction.

Our "Native Lilacs" present a varied number of garden attractions from ground-hugging creepers to prominent background shrubs and small trees. The gardener will appreciate the crisp foliage and clean blooms mainly in shades of blue, which the many forms offer.

There are almost too many to list: The showy yellow blooms of the Tree Poppy—eye catchers in any garden; the myriad white flowers of Bush Anemone; the golden-yellow blooms of Fremontia—all the richer for the coppery foliage against which they bloom; and the shining red berries of our Toyon or Christmas Berry. They are all fitted to garden use; and if you try them, you won't go wrong.

LILACS FOR MARIN

Here Are Some Varieties That Thrive In Our Area

Lilacs are shubs of memories.

So often have poets sung their praises that most of us—whether we've grown them or not—view lilacs with a certain nostalgia. And if you grew up in a colder climate than this, your memory of these beauties of spring is no doubt strong, indeed.

Why more Californians do not treat themselves to "Lilac time" is anyone's guess. Likely as not, however, it's because many people are not familiar with the varieties bred and grown for this climate.

In an earlier day, when lilacs were imported direct from the East, they found conditions so different that they often sulked. Lilacs offered by nurserymen today are a different story.

Wait until you've cut the fragrant blue flower heads of Clarke's Giant, the delicate lavender blooms of Sweetheart or the pink Esther Staley. There are countless more, and not the least of them is Lavender Lady, a recent introduction which really thrives in the Marin going.

Lilacs like a sunny spot in your garden, warm in summer and as cool as a sunny exposure allows in winter. They are bare root this time of year and should be planted with the bud union well below the surface—three inches at least.

Lilacs bloom each spring on new growth from the previous year, so the gardener should aim at encouraging all the new growth he can. This means heavy watering after bloom and through early summer. Once the growth is attained, however, you can slack off. The shrubs are actually better for being kept on the dryish side when fall approaches.

We know it hurts to pass up bloom, but all flower buds should be removed during the first year. Lilacs reach their full stride in the third year and after that they'll repay your first year's loss with plenty of bloom. Be sure to cut these as you need them. Flower heads should be removed as they fade, anyway, and what's the good of waiting 'til then?

Deciduous Trees Help Mark Changing Of The Seasons

You find gardeners in every block who shun deciduous trees and shrubs because "they are so bare in winter time." To us, they miss the point.

We seek this very bareness as a reminder of seasonal change in a land where seasons change so little. A deciduous plant's return to life after winter's sleep can be a highlight of spring.

The flowering deciduous shrubs concern us here. They are many and varied, but any member of the California Assn. of Nurserymen will tell you that some do better than others in given areas. Check with your neighborhood nurseryman to see which are best for you.

Flowering Quinces start showing color early in the New Year and keep going well into spring. They are well adapted to our climate. So too, are the delightful Pomegranates, with foliage and flower to match the freshness of spring. Decorative fruits follow the first red blooms and coincide with blooms to follow.

Viburnums reward the gardener with lovely white-to-pinkish flower heads in late winter and early spring—as fragrant with their perfume as any blooming thing. Some are evergreen, some are deciduous. We're thinking of the latter.

Saucer Magnolias are slow to start blooming when very young, but patience is amply rewarded in later years when they are profuse with tulip-like blooms of white to pink and even purple. The smaller Star Magnolia has no reluctance to show off right from the start.

As to deciduous trees, if you're looking for bloom, look to the flowering fruits. They often provide the most spectacular show of spring. Flowering Peaches, Flowering Cherries and Plums are without peer when full of bloom. Plant them and you'll greet the spring in a fashion no one could argue with.

Think Ahead For Next Spring Now

Gardeners who think ahead are rare specimens. While others are trying to remedy past mistakes, they are planning for the months to come.

If you would be such a rare specimen yourself, start setting the stage for spring right now. Don't be satisfied with planting a few bulbs and figuring on adding other things later. Plant the bulbs and add the other things at the same time.

It's a well know fact that perennials, for instance, will do better if planted now than if you wait for early spring to set them out. Their roots take hold during the cool months and sturdier, more prolific plants are the result.

Set out Delphiniums now, also Canterbury Bells, Sweet William, Columbine and Gerbera. With the latter, perfect drainage is a must. Nurserymen suggest planting them with the crowns above the surface and keeping an eye out for any sign of water standing about them after a rain.

Annuals, likewise, do better with planting now. Some, as Pansies, show color in winter. Others, as Cineraria, will start showing it early in spring. Calendula, Fairy Primrose, Snapdragon and Viola will all help to make your spring a happy one if you plant them now.

All manner of spring shrubs can go in now or in the next few weeks.

A CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Early planting of dormant roses is preferable to late-season planting. The shrubs have more chance to establish themselves before spring growth starts.
- Crabgrass controls can be applied now to kill seeds that are awaiting spring germination. Ask your nurseryman to recommend a product for the job.
- Post-Christmas care of gift plants includes plenty of water and an occasional breather outside the stuffiness of a heated room.
- Prune grapes and berries now or next month. When in doubt, ask your nurserymen for pruning advice.
- Fuchsias should not be pruned until later—not before February at least.

A Touch Of Orient In Marin

Taking advantage of the contours of a gently sloping lot, Custom-Builders-Parnow Bros. of San Rafael built a two-level, three-bedroom, two-bath home to meet the requirements of Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence Vireno at 18 Balboa Street in the Villa Real of San Rafael.

A graceful oval-shaped pool by the same builders accents the lower end of the property and is reached by easy steps from the convenient shower rooms and playrooms on the lower floor. A spacious deck off the comfortable family room overlooks the poolside activities from top side.

AN ORIENTAL theme in interior decor, as well as exterior landscaping, gives harmony to the house and grounds. George Mirata, landscape architect, has chosen plantings to carry out the oriental scheme, and has added a delightful Japanese tea house on the graveled walkway leading to the pool area, where a miniature waterfall is the focal point in the patio.

A Japanese Hinoki tree is framed by a handsome Shoji screen decorating the breezeway which leads to the main entrance on the upper level. A skylight in the covered breezeway makes the entry light and cheerful. Exterior redwood horizontal siding is accented with vertical battens and stained a soft grey tone.

Soothing grey was also employed by Custom Builders in the living room walls, where the Philippine mahogany panels were stained a grey-green shade.

Featured in the living room is the unusual double fireplace which also serves the adjacent family room. Dramatizing the stunning black fireplace on the living room side is an Oriental carving in gold. The living room carpet repeats the grey tone. The ceiling is in warm white. Teak furnishings in the living room accented with burnt orange cushions add a pleasing contrast. From the living room a door leads to a downstairs bedroom and bath and the playroom-shower section for the pool, while the carpeted entry hall gives access to other rooms on the upper level.

ON THE OTHER side of the double fireplace is the pleasant family room. The same tone of grey-green stain is used in this room for the Philippine mahogany walls, with ceiling and fireplace finished in warm white. Custom Builders used a cork tile floor. Louvered doors fold back to make the bar available for entertaining. Brown, gold and orange accents are used to complement the informal rattan furnishings. Sliding doors open onto a large deck which commands a view of Tamalpais and the Bay in the distance plus the landscaped pool area. Landscape construction for the Virenos was also done by Custom Builders-Parnow Bros.

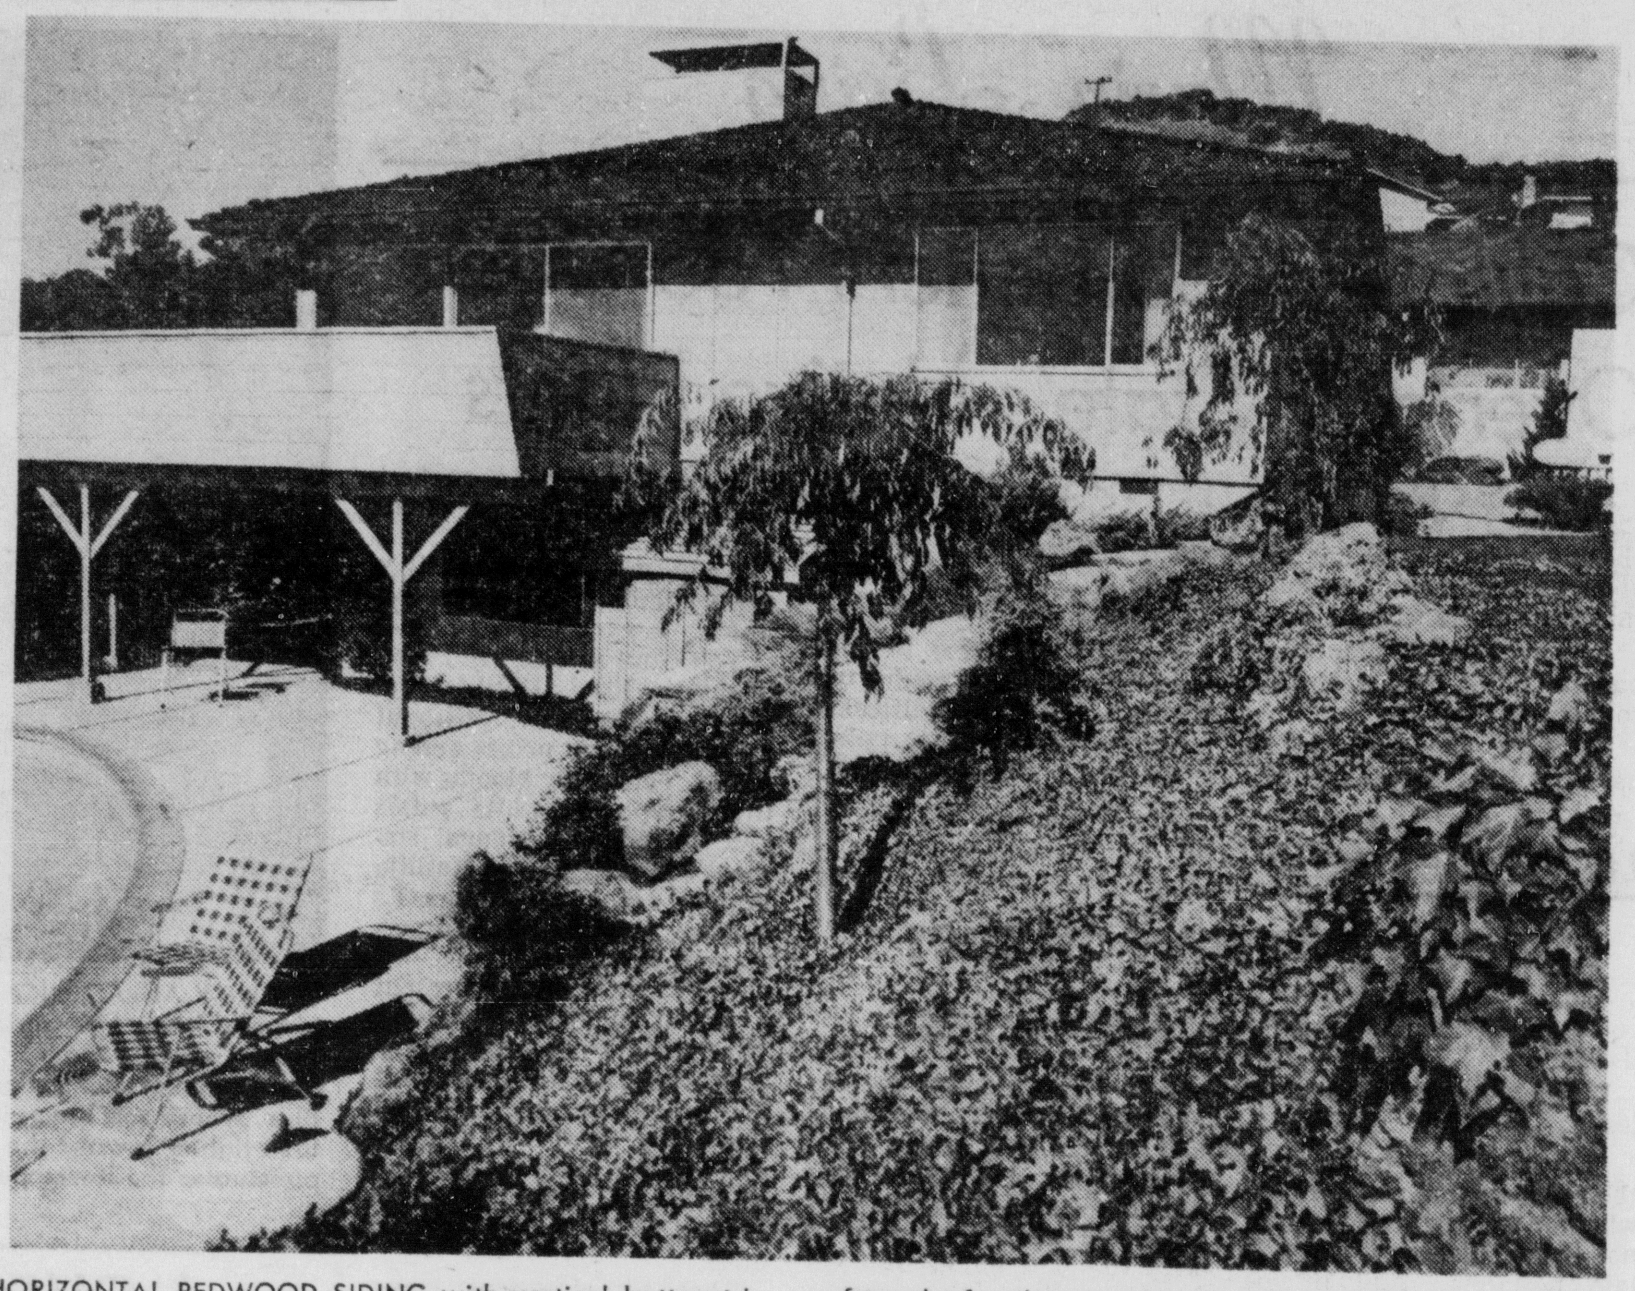
Following the open plan arrangement, the kitchen and dining area adjoin the family room, with only a decorative wrought iron separation. The cork flooring is continued, and the warm white ceiling is repeated. Excellent storage space is provided in the well-arranged square kitchen. Cabinets are finished in the same soft grey tone throughout the house and blend well with the stainless steel stove, refrigerator oven and hood.

Charcoal rice paper is featured in the dining area. A parchment lantern light fixture and Chinese figurines provide a continuation of the Oriental motif. From the dining area a door leads to the patio at the side of the house where the eye-catching Japanese waterfall is a center of interest.

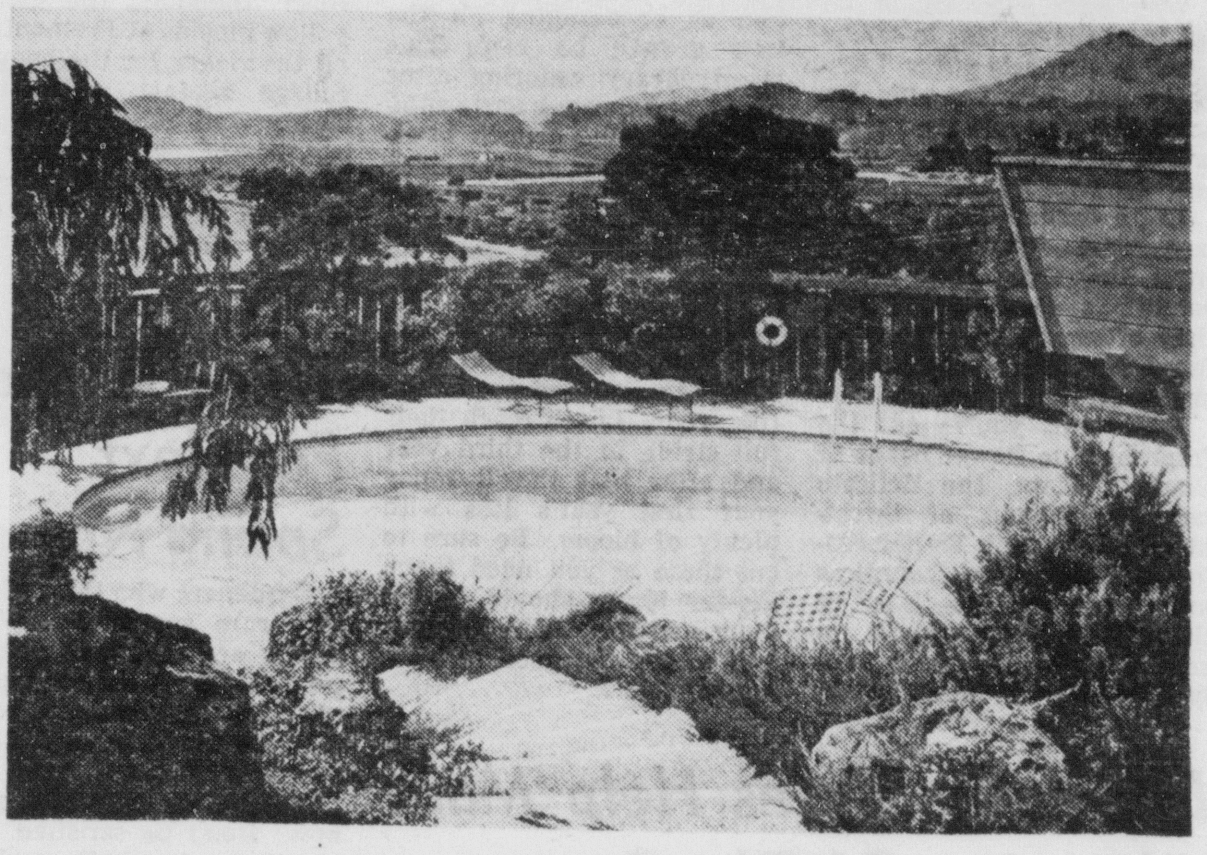
Master bedroom and bath on the upper level repeat the color scheme of subtle greys. which provide an appropriate background for the Oriental decorative motif of the Vireno home.

MRS. VIRENO'S interest in Oriental art objects began several years ago when she acquired three decorative panels, which are now displayed in the entry hall. This led to an interesting collection of ceramics, metal work and furnishings by Orental artists and craftsmen.

Dr. Vireno, who has dental offices in San Francisco, and his wife have lived in Marin County since 1946. They moved into their home in Villa Real three years ago. They have derived much pleasure from developing the home and grounds. And collecting suitable Oriental objects to enhance their home has become something of a hobby with Mrs. Vireno.



HORIZONTAL REDWOOD SIDING with vertical batten trim was used in the exterior of the home of Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence Vireno of 18 Balboa Street, San Rafael. The deck overlooking the pool is reached through sliding glass doors from the family room. The paved pool area provides plenty of room for sunbathing at the edge of the pool. Custom Builders-Parnow Bros. constructed the house and the pool. (Photos by Ken Molino)



EASY STAIRS lead from the oval-shaped pool to the patio area of the Vireno home in Villa Real. Rocks and planting in the Oriental manner complete the picture of good living. See facing page for additional photos.

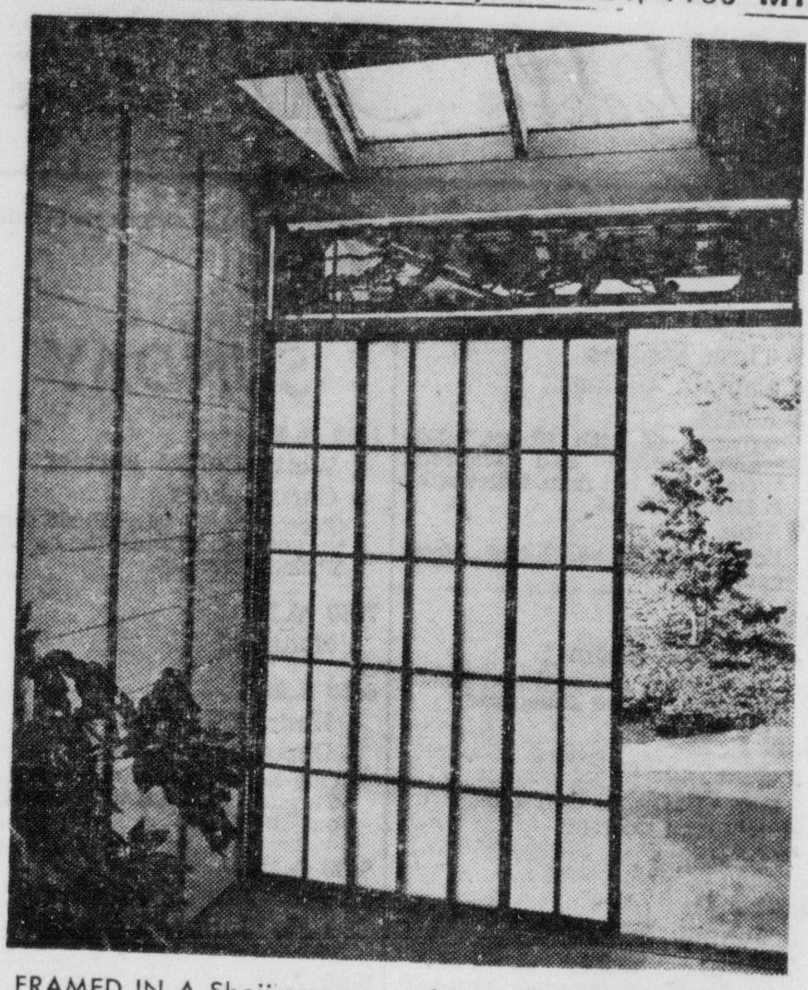
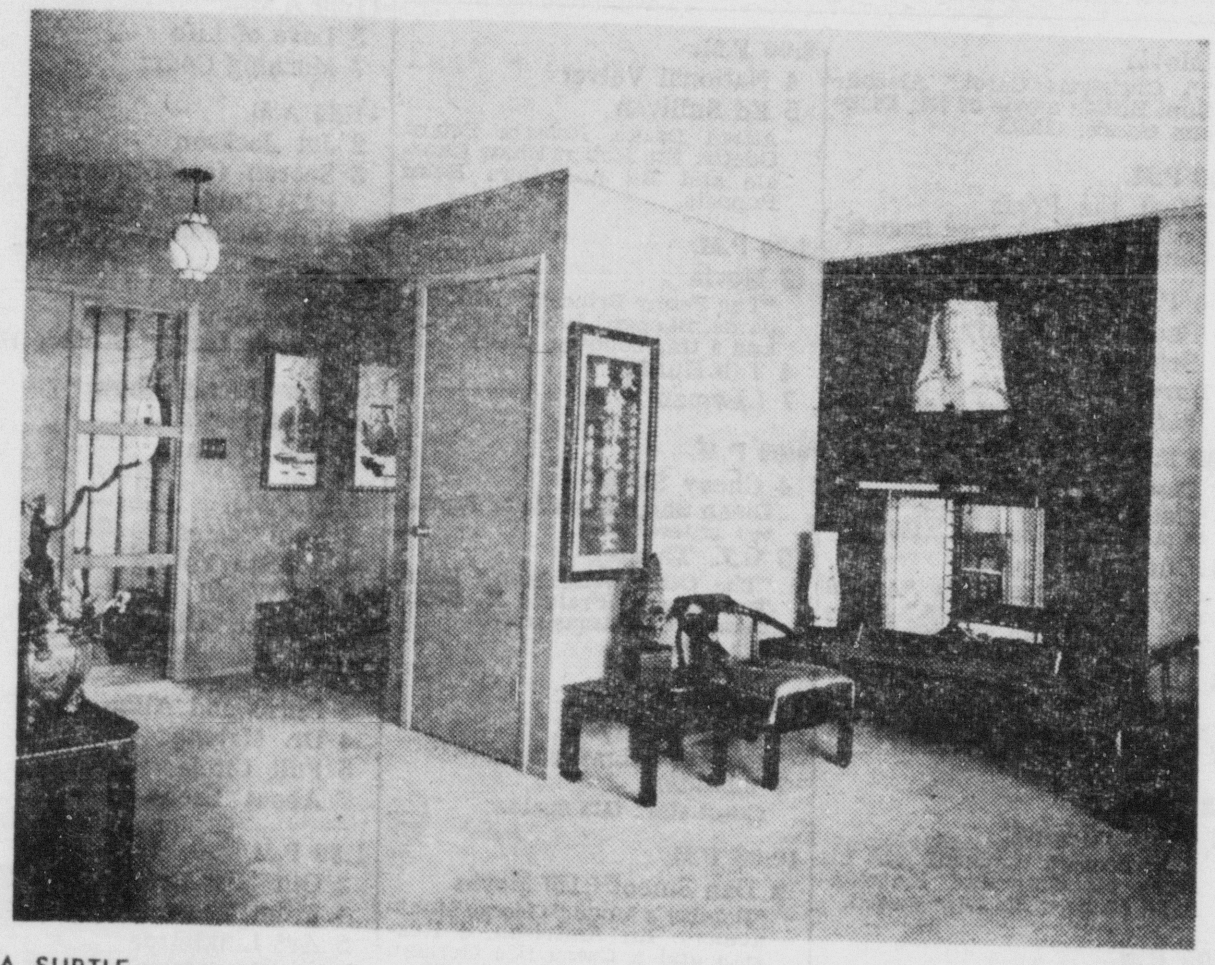
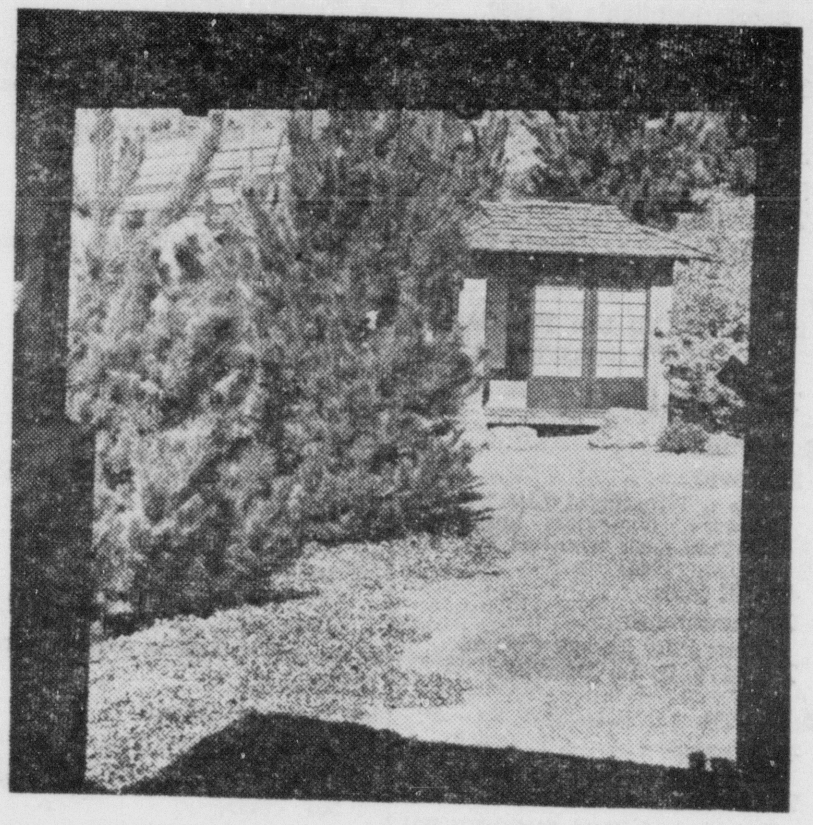
DECORATIVE wrought iron divides the family room from the kitchen and dining area in the San Rafael home of Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence Vireno. Ample storage and work space is provided in the kitchen. Charcoal formica is used for counter tops. Wall and cabinets are painted a soft grey to blend with stainless steel appliances. Oriental tables and chairs are black with silver trim. The door leads to the patio area.



FRAMED IN A Shoji screen, a picturesque Hinoki tree typifies the Oriental theme used in the decor and landscaping of the Vireno home. Entry to the home, built by Custom Builders-Parnow Bros., is through this breezeway. Carving in redwood points up the Oriental motif. The horizontal redwood siding is stained a soft grey.



A SUBTLE grey-green stain on Philippine mahogany paneling provides an appropriate background for teak furnishings and Oriental art objects in the Vireno home. The unusual two-way fireplace is a focal point of the living room and goes through to the adjacent family room. The black fireplace provides a perfect foil for the gold Oriental woodcarving.



A JAPANESE teahouse on the grounds of the Lawrence Vireno home is one of the interesting Oriental touches planned by landscape architect George Mirata. A miniature waterfall is another unusual feature. Hardy pines and ground cover of Periwinkle make the garden easy to care for.

THE OTHER SIDE of the two-way fireplace is seen in the comfortable Vireno family room. Matchstick draperies are pushed aside to reveal sliding glass doors which open onto a spacious deck overlooking the pool area. The bar can be concealed by louvered doors. Flooring is cork tile.

Television To Bring Christmas Eve Services Into Your Living Room

CHRISTMAS EVE services as conducted by several of the world's great religious denominations in some of this country's most famous places of worship will be carried by the television networks tonight.

Such services will begin at 11 p.m. and continue into the early morning hours. Included will be Roman Catholic, Episcopalian, Dutch Reform and Russian Orothdox rites.

Climaxing this solemn programming will be a half-hour crib and carol service entitled "The West Is Bright," to be broadcast from the Franciscan Mission in San Diego at 12:30 a.m. on KPIX-TV (Channel 5).

Other Christmas Eve programs:

A program of Christmas carols beginning at 11:15 p.m. on KRON-TV (Channel 4) and featuring three of the country's outstanding industrial musical organizations—the U.S. Steel Swing Vo-Chestra of Gary, Ind.; the Gary Steelworks Goodfellow Carollers; and the Illinois Bell Telephone Co. Choir of Chicago.

Lawrence Welks' traditional Christmas party featuring his Music Makers with their families, 9 p.m., KGO-TV (Channel 7).

Wisely ABC-TV is dispensing with its weekly boxing show tonight at 7, and instead KGO will be carrying a special film of 1960 sports highlights.

BOTH OLD AND new is included in an attractive holiday package of Christmas Day programming scheduled for the Bay Area channels. And the "old" may very well prove to be the best of the two categories.

For instance, the re-broadcast of last year's award-winning "Christmas Startime" special scheduled for 5 p.m. on KPIX. This is the superb show featuring Marian Anderson, the Cathedral Boys' Choir of London, and Leonard Bernstein and his New York Philharmonic.

Or that now well-established TV Christmas tradition, Gian Carlo Menotti's opera, "Amahl and the Night Visitors." It will be seen at 4 p.m. on KRON.

Two movie versions of Charles Dickens' immortal "A Christmas Carol" will be shown during the day—a British production at 2:30 p.m. on KPIX, an American picture at 10:30 a.m. on KGO.

Walt Disney will parade some of his all-time cartoon favorites in his Christmas Day show at 6:30 p.m. on KGO. And Dick Stewart will host a locally-originated cartoon party for the small fry for KPIX beginning at 4 p.m. and featuring some of that station's newly-acquired "Mr. Magoo" laughfests.

As for the new:

"Christmas U.S.A.", 8 a.m., KPIX, will give you a one-hour panoramic view of holiday celebrations throughout the country. Included will be music by the Mormon Tabernacle Choir of Salt Lake City and a Harlem choir performing a new cantata by poet Langston Hughes.

"Music for a Christmas Night" at 10:30 p.m. on KGO featuring June Valli, Bill Hayes and others.

A "Shirley Temple Show" production of "Babes in Toyland" with Shirley, Jonathan Winters, Jerry Colona, young Angela Cartwright and others at 7 p.m. on KRON. (A movie version of the Victor Herbert operetta starring Laurel and Hardy will be seen on KPIX at 1 p.m.).

"The Rag Tent," an hour-long drama based on Henri Gheon's "Christmas in the Marketplace," is the "Directions '61" holiday offering on KGO at 1 p.m.

"Santa's Workshop" opens a new season for ventriloquist Paul Winchell and his sidekicks Jerry Mahoney and Knucklehead Smiff at 4:30 p.m. on KGO.

And "The Other Wise Man," the G.E. Theater's special Christmas attraction is based on a story written in 1895 by Henry van Dyke, and will be seen on KPIX at 9 p.m.

LATER IN the week:

On Monday — KTVU-TV (Channel 2) will repeat the award-winning documentary, "The Race for Space," at 7:30 p.m.; and KPIX will carry a report on the tragic holiday slaughter on our highways at 8 p.m. Earlier in the day, starting at 8:45 a.m., KRON will air pro football's championship game.

On Tuesday—KGO's "Expedition California" will tell the story of the birth and early growth of San Francisco at 7 p.m.; KQED (Channel 9) will carry what has been termed one of the most controversial discussions of the "Open End" series with a number of entertainment world figures exploring a wide range of topics at 8:30 p.m.; and KRON will present a repeat of "After Hours," a spoof on psychiatry starring Tony Randall at 10 p.m.

On Wednesday — KTVU's "Play of the Week" will be in a lighter vein than usual. It's the comedy, "The Girls in 509" with Nancy Walker and Larry Blyden, at 8 p.m.

On Thursday — KRON will show a 90-minute version of "Victory at Sea," the fine World War II documentary, starting at 9:30 p.m.; and the CBS news staffers will gather from around the world to make their annual roundtable observations at 10 p.m. on KPIX.

On Friday—NBC correspondents will hold their annual year-end gabfest at 9 p.m. (KRON); and at 8:30 KQED will present its third showing of the BBC version of Maxim Gorky's "Lower Depths."

And next Saturday—A big weekend of holiday football gets under way with the Blue-Gray all-star game (10:45 a.m. on KRON); the Gator Bowl game pitting Florida against Baylor ((11 a.m. on KPIX), and San Francisco's Shrine East-West classic (1:45 p.m. on KRON).

EDUCATIONAL Channel 9 has scheduled a repeat of the Sausalito Little Theater musical melodrama, "East of the Rockies," for next Friday at 5:30 p.m. It's the colorful show which had such a successful run on the Sausalito stage last summer.
